Wars Will Be Short.
Ideas, Not Economy.
The Clergy Protest.
The Kaiser Gazes.

SIR JAMES COLOUHOUN IRVINE, one of Britain's greatest chemists, says future wars will be settled in a few days, by poisonous gases, dropped from airplanes. Nothing simpler than to beat a nation, by asphyxiating hundreds of thousands of millions, conveniently crowded into cities.

VICTORY will be with the nation that first sets in airplanes to work. This nation, with plenty of gold, and little intelligence in government, lacks airplanes, and is sentimentalizing about forbidding experiments with poisonous gases, and their manufacture. If the next war should hit the United States and turn out an disastrously as it probably would turn out, some respectable Americans might be less fortunate than the former kaiser.

ITALY, by order of Mussolini, is on a strict economical diet. Belgium forbids making white bread and from the king down, strict economy is to be the rule, and law. France follows suit. Poi... ces his meals to two dish... lt for the French, who kno... eat and will not have din... t soup, and salad or fruit... Frenchmen will make thei... f a good soup, Bonne Fem... ad or fruit.

ALL this is patriotic self denial. But one good idea might do more for for Europe. No mere economy could have restored Europe after the Napoleonic wars. The steam engine an idea—quickly made Europe richer than she had ever been. Taxation, which some Europeans will not tolerate, and development of electric power could do for Europe in this century what steam did at the beginning of the last century.

NIETZCHE, German philosopher, lived in hate and died insane, but Europe might recall his prediction of

Do You Clean House Systematically?

Housecleaning need not be the bugbear it has long been regarded in many households.

If the work is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there will be no need for the upheavals that result in discomfort to the entire household.

How to make this task simpler and easier is discussed in a booklet which this bureau has for distribution. Any reader can secure a copy of this Government publication by filling out and mailing the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

EDERLE RECORD IS BROKEN AS VIERKOETTER REACHES DOVER

TIDES AID HIM

Accompanied by Tug, His Time is 12 Hours, 35 Minutes.

DOVER, England, Aug. 30—Ernest Vierkoetter, German swimmer, today was added to the small group of those who have been able to swim the English channel.

Vierkoetter landed at Dover at 2:10 this afternoon and thereby set a new record for speed in swimming the channel, breaking the record set by Gertrude Ederle.

Lands at Langdon Stairs.

Vierkoetter started from Cape Gris Nez at 1:34 this morning and accomplished the swim in 12 hours and 35 minutes, which is the fastest ever made in a channel swim, Gertrude Ederle having held the previous record of 14 hours and 32 minutes.

Vierkoetter was accompanied on the swim by a tug.

Heavy mists off the English coast during the morning made it questionable whether Vierkoetter would be able to make the shore and his landing at Langdon Stairs was something of a surprise.

The German swimmer had the advantage of the flood tides, which Mrs. Corson barely missed when she made her swim on Saturday and this aided him materially in setting up a new record for time.

Until Vierkoetter made his remarkable swim today the fastest time ever made by a male swimmer across the Legislation calling for the submission of a $225,000 bond issue to the voters of East Liverpool at the November 2 election, for the purpose of erecting a new municipal building, will be considered by the city solons at their regular meeting Thursday evening.

NEW YORK THAT GAVE HIM FAME PAYS TRIBUTE TO VALENTINO

Impressive Funeral Services for Famous Screen Sheik.

BUSINESS STOPS

Gotham's White Way Thronged for Last Rites.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The funeral of Rudolph Valentino, an impressive, dignified ceremony touched with deepest pathos, was held in New York today, in St. Malachy's Roman Catholic church, just off Broadway—the Broadway that gave the world-famous screen star his start to fame, that loved and admired him in life and assembled in great numbers today to pay him a reverent tribute in death.

No funeral in the history of New York city was witnessed by a larger crowd than that which silently watched the procession move slowly from Campbell's funeral parlors to the church.

That mile of Broadway, between the undertakers' parlors and the church, was black with people. As far as the eye could see Broadway was packed.

Business is Halted.

Traffic came to a dead standstill. It was even impossible to traverse the sidewalks, so dense was the throng, block after block all the way to the church.

Mounted police, motorcycle men and patrolmen were kept busy holding the people back of roped-off spaces. Crowds thronged elevated stations and other vantage points. Hundreds viewed the procession from office buildings. Business came to a complete halt.

Although they had been warned repeatedly that they would not be permitted near St. Malachy's, thousands gathered in the vicinity while solemn requiem high mass was sung.

Police reserves were on duty and roped off Forty-ninth street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. Only six hundred persons were permitted to pass these barriers. They were the only ones who carried printed invitations.

Pola and Jean Mourners.

Pola Negri, reported engaged to Valentino, was near collapse as the procession moved down Broadway. She arrived at the church at 10:30 o'clock with S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager; Mrs. Ullman, a phy-

CANTON GRAND JURY EXPECTED TO RETURN FROM THREE TO FIVE INDICTMENTS IN MURDER OF DON R. MELLETT, CRUSADING PUBLISHER

BY PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—A man whom officials declared is known to have driven the "death car," that carried the assassins of Don R. Mellett, will perhaps be called to testify before the grand jury following the testimony of Charles E. Morris, publisher of the Canton Daily News, it was definitely learned today.

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—The murder of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, will be reenacted and solved today before the Stark county grand jury picked to investigate the crime.

Officials conducting the grand jury action that is expected to result in from three to five murder indictments before the end of this week, so declared.

All of the special and regular investigating agencies today were of the emphatic opinion that drastic attempts to intimidate vital witnesses had failed.

Optimism for hurried "clean-up" of the murder that startled a nation today was at its highest ebb in investigating ranks.

The first witness expected to appear before the jurors today will be H. J. Burton, private detective who gathered evidence in Mellett's anti-vice crusade and who has assisted in investigating the publisher's murder.

Burton will be followed, it has been announced, by Charles E. Morris, successor of Mellett as publisher of the Canton Daily News, who is also editorial chief of the James M. Cox chain of newspapers.

Morris, who has been exceptionally active in carrying on a determined investigation into the assassination of his former friend and colleague, is expected to be before the jurors for several hours, and it has been predicted that he will make startling disclosures in the form of corroborated evidence.

Today or tomorrow, according to when Morris' testimony is concluded, a "key witness" will be taken before the investigating body. This witness, whose name is being withheld by authorities, is a Canton business man and the president of an association of persons claiming the same nationality here.

After admitting to authorities shortly following the murder of Mellett that he was an eye witness to certain situations immediately before and after the assassination, the man, evidently threatened, recently refused to relate his previous statements, officials said today.

Authorities expected, however, that he would tell his original story which is claimed to involve one member of the Canton police department as a plotter in the crime when called before the jury.

Two other men, looked upon as important witnesses by investigators, who will also be asked to testify this week, are Captain Ben Clarke, Bertillon chief of the Canton police department, and Detective Floyd Streitenberger, also of the local detective force.

Clarke is said to have made an investigation surrounding the Mellett home immediately after the murder.

Streitenberger is expected to be quizzed concerning the statement of Louis Mazer, accused of the Mellett murder, that he was at Streitenberger's home "treating a sick dog" during the time of the assassination.

HARVEST HOME OUTING HELD

L. J. Taber, Master of National Grange Give Address.

Approximately 1,000 people attended the annual harvest home or grange outing at Eagleton Glen Saturday for the purpose of hearing L. J. Taber, master of the national grange speak. He came to Salem direct from Williamsport, Pa., where he addressed a gathering of farmers Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Taber was introuced by W. A. Morris, lecturer of Pomona grange of Columbiana county.

Previous to the address of Mr. Taber, the Stoffer Sisters sang several selections.

Hays Sitler of Salem township was elected chairman of the picnic committee for the next two years, with G. C. Greenisen as vice chairman and Mrs. LeRoy Frederick of near Leetonia as secretary.

"History tells us," Mr. Taber said, "the social educational and economical condition of the people has improved in proportion as mechanical power has increased efficiency and lightened drudgery. Agriculture has kept pace with the manufacturing world in the use of labor saving conveniences. Its further progress, however, is in no small measure dependent on its small measure ability to harness modern agencies to assist the farmer in his daily toil. Electricity promises more to the arm and rural home than any other recent modern improvement. This afternoon, however, the three horse team that we shall discuss will not be purely of a mechanical nature but rather we shall discuss three great forces that will mould the future of rural life.

"Our team will be composed of organization, the church and the school. Or we might say, organization, religion and education are the great triumverate to pull agriculture upon a higher plane. The evener, or in farmer English the "three horse hitch needed is simply understanding and good will.

"It is well for us to remember that in one-hundred years the American farmer has increased his productive efficiency twelve hundred per cent. In the last decade his efficiency measured by the amount of food produced per man has increased eighteen per cent. But in spite of productive efficiency agriculture in a national way has not enjoyed a fair measure of prosperity. For proof, the mortgage indebtedness of the nation's farm indebtedness increased more than three billion in the decade. Tenantry has also increased indicating that there are problems that need consideriag.

"There has been much loose thinking and much propaganda spread broadcast relative to the farmers' condition and the remedies needed. It is a privilege to remind this group of Ohioans that they have a responsibility and an opportunity to see that their membership thinks soundly on this and kindred problems. There are three schools of thought dealing with the farm problem. The first I will call the hardshells who think that there is nothing that can be done, that the farmer must blindly work and toil and let fate bring what it may. Then there is the constructive school of thought, or those who believe that organization and co-operation will do for agriculture what they have done for industry, finance and labor.

"Lastly we have the "free ride" school, who think that the government must do for the farmer what he has failed to do for himself. We must discard the last school for in the end it will lead to the government regulations and socialistic control deadening rural life. The grange has been a mighty, constructive force and we must today keep agriculture on a sound footing and hold a sane, constructive program for the farmer.

"Having recently spent some weeks in Europe attending the European Institute of Agriculture at Rome and studying agriculture conditions in much of Europe, we come back convinced that southern Europe has but one lesson and that is what not to do. The low standards, the hard toil, the grinding economy of the French, Italian, Belgian and other south European peasants have no lesson for us. In Denmark, however, we find evidences of what organization, education and co-operation has done for this country. The standards of living have raised, the prosperity of the farmer has increased and the whole nation has improved because of a well balanced rural life.

"What a constructive program has done for Denmark the rightw type of program can do for America. Marketing production guided by intelligence and information, economy in government, proper enforcement of law and a host of religious problems can be made to add tremendously to rural prosperity within the next quarter of a century. But this program is impossible without the strengthening of our farm organization and the broadcasting of their field of work.

"Knowledge is power. Education can work wonders for th efuture of agriculture. Our schools, our agriculture colleges, our extension services, our boy's and girl's club work hold unlimited possibilities for good. More emphasis will need be placed on the farmers ecomomic problem in the coming years.

"I now come to the third in the team, the church, or rather we should say religion and morality, because without the finer virtues there can be no civilization worthy of the name. We Americans are prone to boast of our many blessings and forget our national failures. It is always a more pleasant achievement but this afternoon I must call attention to our apparent weakness. We are becoming a nation without proper respect for law. We have more murders per thousand than any other civilized nation. But more serious than this is the age of the present day criminal. A great western newspaper stated in 1925 that the majority of murders and hold-up crimes were committed by young men with an average age of little more than twenty-one years. There are many causes for this but the primary cause is our failure to properly respet law. We must awaken to our danger and think clearly on the problem. I have been stating that we could bring respect for law by first deporting every un-naturalized bootlegger, second, jail all naturalized ones, and lastly, trest the patron of the bootlegger like we do the bootlegger. We must realize that there would be no bootlegger problem were it not for the men who make it profitable. Every bootlegger is a potential murderer; he carries a gun; he operates under cover and those that patronize him are responsible for his crimes. When we recognize that the church and the Sunday school can become mighty agencies in bringing about respect for law and that they are the one force that can keep us in the right attitude toward life, we realize again that we dare not neglect this agency so essential for rural betterment and our national life.

"Let there radiate from the grange halls of Ohio, a determination to rekindle once again those fine qualities that enabled the pioneers from this territory to influence for good that life of the nation. We dare not allow this stronghold of patriotism and virtue to lower its standards or stop in its leadership.

"This has been a great year for the grange. Organizations have increased, our membership has strengthened and our work improved. At the beginning of the year our goal was set for each subordinate grange in the nation as follows; 1. An outstanding piece of community service. 2. Net gain in membership.

"We can not stress the request for community service too strongly. The grange that does something of a worth while and lasting character for the community in which it is located will grow and prosper. Grange suppers, grange entertainments and similar activities have their place and are a part of a worth while program. But do not forget that when your grange benefits the community life and stimuates its moral atmosphere you have rendered a contribution that will live after suppers and entertainments are forgotten."

In concluding Mr. Taber said, "take back to your membership not only renewed faith in the grange but in Ohio. Your agriculture is staging a comeback, You have advantages you farmers do not appreciate, lower freight rates, proximinty to markets, fine improvement and reasonable land values. Here is a challenge! To be worthy of Ohio.

LIQUOR RAIDS NET CITY $800

Guy Sapanaro Fined $500; Ralph Martin Pays $300.

Two Saturday night liquor raids by local police will net the city $800.

Guy Sapanaro, charged with possessing intoxicating liquor, arrested at his place in Main street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, was assessed a fine of $500 and costs by Mayor W. L. Fogo at a hearing today, and Sapanaro made arrangements to pay it.

Ralph Martino, arrested on a similar charge, was fined $300 and costs. It was Martino's first offense.

Martino paid and was released, police announced.

The raiding party, headed by Acting Chief A. L. Newton, included Patrolmen Ed. Pugh and John Cole. Several quarts of liquor, in all, were confiscated at the two places.

SOLONS PLAN BOND ISSUE

Will be Submitted to Voters at General Election.

At a special session tonight in city hall, council will take preliminary action toward putting a bond issue of approximately $35,000 up to voters at the November general election.

The bond issue will be designed to include the cost of the proposed sewer improvement work in the west end of the city and the cost of a new "pumper" fire truck.

In view of recent occurrences, including the fire that wiped out the hotel building and threatened for a time the entire block, and the recent rain that practically inundated portions of the west end of the city, the solons are agreed that immediate action should be taken looking toward raising a fund for both the truck and the sewers.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN MACHINE

An automobile stolen from Riverside avenue Saturday night was recovered Sunday morning by local police and returned to its owner.

The car, belonging to Louis Little, who resides near Highlandtown, had been parked in Riverside avenue and when Little looked for it after making a call, it was gone.

Police traced the car out the Cemetery road and yesterday morning Mayor W. L. Fogo and Acting Chief A. L. Newton located it, abandoned, on the Bergholz hill, a short distance out of Salineville.

With the exception of the fact that the battery was dead, the automobile was not damaged.

ATTEND FUNERAL AT PAINESVILLE

Several local residents attended funeral services for the late Charles vzSnowden, formerly of this city, who died Thursday in a Cleveland hospital.

He was buried Saturday afternoon from the late residence in Painesville.

BIBLE NEVER WITH LIQUOR

Two Don't go Together Kansas Sheriff Says.

TOPEKO, Kan.—"You will not find booze and the Bible in the same house, in Kansas."

That was the message Sheriff Arthur Hamm of Jefferson county, brought to the congregation of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church in Topeka.

Sheriff Hamm said that he had learned that wherever he found a family Bible on the center table, that showed usage and its lids were not covered with dust, there was no "hootch" cache on such premises. It is in communities where the church is placed in the background that the sheriff's force has to work, he said.

Sheriff Hamm told of one community where everybody goes to church and did not have a disturbance serious enough to require a sheriff during his tenure of office.

British Soldiers are To Study Astronomy; Stars as Guides

LONDON.—British soldiers are all to become astronomers so they can find their way by the stars.

Duncan MacEwan, a Scot, has invented a littie device that makes astronomy easy.

It is the ready reckoner of astronomy and Tommy Atkins could carry it in his waistcoat pocket, except that waistcoats are as scare in the army as white spats in a mining village.

It took MacEwan six years to induce the War office bureaucrats to take up his little scheme, but as it took Maxim seven years to get them to try his machine gun, MacEwan persisted.

"The object,' MacEwan said, "is to train the ordinary soldier to find his way by the stars by being able to read the heavens at a glance.

"The invention comprises two miniature domes of the heavens made of metal and are about the side of a watch.

"In these the constellations are perforated accurately and the soldier, by holding it to the sky, can locate the stars corresponding to the perforations and can thus make direct for a given spot."

G. A. R. MAY BE DISBANDED AT NEXT MEETING

CHARTERS RETURN

Youngest Vet is Now in His Seventies.

Like good soldiers, their ranks thinned by age and disease, the old veterans know when to retreat. In the face of the last enemy, Death, which each year demands an appalling toll, their leaders feel it is time to set their camps in order and wait quietly for "Taps."

A committee consisting of former Governor Samuel R. Van Sant of Minnesota, Lewis Pilcher of New York and James Hanner of Washington, D. C., each having served as past national commander, will present a report to the forthcoming national encampment here Sept. 19-24, covering plans for disbandment and disposition of the funds and records of the organization.

The youngest civil war survivor is in the late seventies, records reveal. Each year, Grand Army officials and leaders say, it is becoming more difficult to keep the organization work moving. The ranks of the veterans are thinning in a larger ration year by year.

In many cities and villages of the country, where posts have flourished is has been necessary to abandon their charters.

The veterans hope that the patriotic program of their auxiliary, the Women's Relief Corps, may go on forever, but as for themselves, they falteringly admit, the time will come when they are through.

A vote will be taken at the meeting here in September whether they are to disband this year or postpone it a little longer, but at best it is agreed the time is short.

Bathing Costumes Banned for Street Wear In Paris

PARIS.—No more bathing-costumes on the street, in cafes and hotels. The Mayor of Parame on the Finistere coast, the center of many smart bathing resorts, has just made a proclamation to the effect that a bathing costume is not the same as a street one. It reads:

"It is henceforth strictly forbidden for holiday-makers and all others to station themselves on the dykes, in public streets, hotels and cafes while dressed in bathing suits.

"It is equally forbidden to circulate in the public streets. Whenever the bathing-suit is worn is must be completely covered by a closed dressing-gown reaching to the calf of the leg at least."

Egypt to Reduce Diplomatic Service As Economy Move

Russian Scientists Test Workability of New Television Machine

LENINGRAD.—A group of the most prominent Russian scientists has attested the workability of an apparatus just invented here in the Physical Roentgenological Institute for the projection of scenes by radio in the same manner as the familiar radio transmission of sound.

The machine, which may be called Television, does not merely transmit pictures, but, as in a mirror, reproduces on a screen what transpires at a distance. It is the realization, declares the Russians, of the long awaited dream of a machine which would do for the eyes what the telephone does for the ear.

The Academician Joffe, known abroad for his preeminent work in physics, declared the invention was of world importance.

A Queen Comes

Queen Marie of Roumania is coming to visit the United States in October. This is good news to our democratic people. It is seldom that a real queen comes here. We are lucky to get a princess.

Better still, this good and deservedly popular queen intends to travel about the country mostly by automobile, in order to see our land at closer quarters and get a more intimate view of American life. Ordinarily, visiting notables see very little of America—only a few high spots of scenery and society.

As for society, the queen cleverly dodges that. She will stay at hotels, not visiting at private homes, it is explained, because she will travel not incognito, but in her own right as queen, and so couldn't be a private guest. Which is as good an explanation as any for avoiding the social pitfalls of the New World. But there will be wailing in the home of many an ambitious social leader.

The Auto Pound

The horse and cattle pound is an almost forgotten institution. The dog pound, as a refuge and prison for strays, is still extant. Now comes the automobile pound, which serves a purpose different from any of its predecessors.

It is used to corral the cars of motorists from afar, who disregard the local traffic rules, in a city that has suffered much from such violations. The local offender can usually be dealt with satisfactorily in the usual way. He is given a summons to appear at police court, and he obeys. The "foreign" motorist blithely disregards such a summons, and is in the next county or state before anything can be done about him. So there is no longer any dallying about it.

When a car bearing a license plate of another state is found encumbering traffic by being parked where it has no business to be, a police towing truck appears, hoists its rear wheels off the ground and tows it ignominiously backward to the city pound, where it remains until the owner, coming in to complain about his car being "stolen," reclaims it by paying the towing charge and a small fine.

It is rather severe treatment for stranger-guests, but probably deserved in most cases. If it is more widely applied, instead of acting as if they were above the law, as they often do, visiting motorists will soon start treating local traffic regulations everywhere with more respect.

The Next Dance

Ned Weyburn, stage dancing instructor, defending the Charleston, says that while this lively dance is the outcome of post-war restlessness, it has basic merit in it and so will continue to live.

Furthermore, he insists, it is "a moral dance," since it keeps the dancers apart—they have to stand "from four to six inches from each other." That at least is something, as any observer of recent dancing styles must admit.

Some of the dancing masters, however, insist that the Charleston already faces its successors. The "Spanish fox trot" is hailed as a conqueror. A feminine dancing teacher characterizes it as "without the vulgarity of the Charleston, and destined to satisfy the modern desire for new steps."

We shall see next winter. But generally speaking, "new steps" have the call. And in that very fact is hope for moralists and reformers.

If a dance or a style is bad, be sure that it will soon be followed by something also. The good likewise may be superseded. But optimists, at least, are inclined to believe that, as a general rule, in any field of human experience, the good lasts longer than the bad.

Rain

Christians in South Carolina prayed for rain recently after a long period of drought, and the rain promptly came in such volume as to wash away some of the crops that otherwise would have been burned up.

Therefore the Hopi Indians, at their annual snake dance in Arizona, prayed for rain to their heathen gods, and within two hours the dry desert stream-beds were filled with torrents of muddy, ushing water.

It was said of old, "It raineth upon the just and upon the unjust." Also that "the prayer of a righteous man evaileth much." Even a heathen "snake-dancer" may be righteous according to his light. But let us not carry this hesitent comment too far, lest we get into trouble with some Christian or Hopi fundamentalist.

General Motors

Good morning! Have you a little General Motors in your home? Nice day, isn't it?

If you haven't any—or perhaps even if you have—the chances are that at this moment you are contemplating the purchase of another motor car or a little iceless refrigeration, or any one of a number of things which will make a future day still brighter for the General Motors family.

That $600,000,000 melon sounds like rather a cheerful thing, all in all. Fine for those who got a slice. And fine for those who didn't, because they can sell something or collect something from those who did.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Diary of a modern Pepys. Up and sat awhile with Dan McKetrick, who abandoned journalism to manage prize fighters, and he asserted the most honorable fighter he ever encountered was Joe Jeanette, a colored man. Yet praised others.

I cast an opinion the cleanest minded fellow fighting today is Gene Tunney, and so to walk through town and met up with George Rector and told him how greatly I enjoyed his recent memoirs of other cafe days on Broadway, and he seemed pleased.

Home and found Roy Howard who dropped in a moment to say farewell against joining his family in Europe and then to my trifling labours until far into the night and to bed.

Passing the Lamb's theatrical club the other evening, I counted three distinguished actors among a group idling at the entrance. Not one has had an engagement for months. The public as well as the players themselves little realize that outside of New York a theatrical famine has hit the land. It is a bleak outlook for the legitimate player.

First class theatrical ventures no longer go trouping. A year's run on Broadway does not mean a thing in the out country. The only possible reward for a successful season on Broadway today is a brief engagement in London or Paris. Or a chance in the movies.

There are—outside of Chicago—few one night or one week stands. A theatrical paper records that not a single "original cast" of a successful play will be sent on tour the coming season. The answer is simple. All theatres catering to such attractions in other cities have become movie houses.

I sometimes wonder if vaudeville is losing its grip although I hope not. A recent visit to a large vaudeville house on Saturday night—revealed a handful of people. It was sultry and that may have contributed to slim attendance but there was a lethargy I never noticed before. I have thought vaudeville the finest of light entertainment and it would be calamitous for it to suffer the fate of the so-called legitimate drama.

Even the Ziegfeld Follies is passing to the limbo of forgotten things, for with dissolving of that corporation the usual summer pleasantry is known as Ziegfeld's Revue.

I recently crossed the ocean on the same vesel with Lee Shubert and could not help but observe the change that has come to showmen. Shubert is the neatly dressed type of aggressive business man found everywhere. Showmen were once spotted by their silk hat, embroidered vest or gold knobbed cane.

Andy Spears was the only residental showman of my town. He "wintered" there and spelled romance to youth, for in the Spring he started on tour with "The Andy Spears' Greater Canine Carnival"—consisting of Andy, Mrs. Spears, nine dogs and a tent accommodating an audience of about 50. Mrs. Spears wore a spangled dress in the arena and Prof. Spears a white high hat and gold embroiderey coat. They certainly looked elegant.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Adirondack Country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—More Americans have visited the Adirondacks this season than in any other season in the history of that great playground of the East because of the presence there of President Coolidge. Camps, hotels and boarding houses have been filled to overflowing by tourists who have flocked to this picteresque section, curiosity having prompted them to see what manner of region the president has sought for his holiday.

What they see must satisfy more than their curiosity for the Adirondacks contain a wealth of splendid scenery worth seeing by others than presidents. Mr. Coolidge is the second president who has been attracted to this domain, Grover Cleveland having regarded it as a favorite camping, hunting, and fishing ground. One diference in the relaxations of the two chief executives, however, is that while Mr. Coolidge is so much an amateur at outdoor sport that his catch of a single fish was broadcast far and wide through the press, Mr. Cleveland had made a name for himself as an ardent hunter and fisher before ever he came to the White House.

Singularly enough an interesting connection exists between the visits of the two presidents to Paul Smith's. The story in the Adirondacks is that President Cleveland employed Paul Smith as his guide and companion on his ventures into the wilds. President Coolidge now makes his headquarters at the village named after the long dead mighty hunter and guide.

Let there be no mistake about the need of a guide in the Adirondacks. Perhaps hardy westerners of the Rocky mountains may sneer at the idea of any eastern mountains being wild or rugged enough to daunt the climber or hunter. But many a man has been lost in these wilds where one can get almost as far away from a human habitation as in the west.

One of the highest mountains is Whiteface which rises from Lake Placid. In altitude it does not compare with the great peaks of the Rockies, but it is high enough so that for most of the months in the year its sharp peak is capped with snow.

Resemble Scotland's Hills.

The mountains of this region are not softly tree-covered as those of the Applachian range further to the south but are gaunt and for the most part treeless, not distantly resembling the grey hills of Scotland.

Wild game is at home in these regions. Deer are so numerous that sometimes they come down and graze in the open fields and occasionally even a bear is driven by hunger into a farmyard. In the open season, during the Autumn, one sees automobiles on the roads with great bucks loaded into them and once in a while the huge bulk of a bear.

The valleys are fertile in most cases and there grows the greenest grass in the world. Even under dense trees, in deep shade, where grass usually does not thrive, it will be found growing luxuriantly. Many varieties of trees abound, but the most beautiful is the silver birch, the gleaming trunks and branches of which literally shine against the deep green of the foliage.

But in one sense it can scarcely be said that there are many valleys, for what ordinarily would be valleys, that is deep and wide and long ravines between the ranges of mountains, are lakes. The lakes are so numerous that a list of their names would be almost like a telephone directory. Lake Champlain and Lake George are well known but there are also Upper and Lower Saranac Lakes, Tupper Lake, Lake Clear, Raquette Lake, Loon Lake, Schroon Lake, Lake Placid, and, perhaps the most beautiful of them all, Mirror Lake.

Through some old geographical anomaly, the town of Lake Placid is not on Lake Placid at all but is on Mirror Lake. True, one end of Mirror Lake extends so close to Lake Placid that canoeists put their craft on a pair of wheels and push them about two hundred yards overland when they want to go from one lake to the other. A lane through the trees has been opened for this purpose. There it is called the Carryover as in the west it is called the Portage. The famous winter sports for which the town of Lake Placid is famous in reality take place on Mirror Lake.

Lake Placid is perhaps one of the most unusual towns in the country. With a population, normally, of only about two thousand, it boasts probably the heaviest automobile traffic of any town of its size. With but one main thoroughfare, fairly wide and well paved, it is alive with a constant whizzing of cars. Also the shops of this little town compare favorably with those of Fifth Avenue. A tiny building which to the casual observer would look from its exterior like a cross-roads general store will display the latest models from Paris.

Playground of the Wealthy.

All this is explained by the fact that in the hotels and the camps surrounding the two lakes live some of the richest people in the country. These camps are more than the name implies. Hidden in the woods one may stumble upon mansions of tremendous size and splendor. There are scores of them, each screened from the others by the dense forest. Winding trails lead to them. Their owners may spend a month or two in them in the summer season and perhaps a week or two during the winter sports. At other times all these great houses stand vacant.

In some respects much the same description may apply to Saranac Lake, although Saranac is more a health resort than a pleasure reesort.

The air of Saranac is supposed to be particularly salubrious for tubercular persons and there is established a great sanitarium for the treatment of the tubercular. It was founded by the eminent physician Trudeau and one of the most interesting memorials in the country is that erected to him by grateful patients whom he had benefited. On the very verge of a mountain is his carven figure, of heroic size, seated and gazing out across miles and miles of valley to the next range of mountains in the blue distance.

Of interest from the economic point of view is the fact that the region has no industries. Excepting for a few valleys, the land is so barren, stony, and precipitous that cultivation is impracticable. Lumbering would be a greater industry than it is were it not for the fact that the wealthy owners of the camps hold extensive tracts which they desire to preserve in their wild state. The native population lives largely on the tourist and summer camp trade.

That the country is a healthful one is evidenced by many items which appear in the newspapers of the Adirondack towns. In every issue will be some article announcing the death of so-and-so at the age of 90 or the fact that such-and-such a man gave a party on his hundredth birthday.

For the most part the roads of the Adirondacks are excellent and well maintained. In the winter when the thermometer drops to 20 and 30 degrees below zero they are not so passable on account of the drifted snow.

Hawkins describes his view of the phantom:

"An orange red glow, that did not throw any reflection, such as an automobile headlight might have thrown. To the watchers it was visible below a small catalpa tree at the graveyard entrance, so it must have been close to the ground.

"Len Bryant and one of the other reporters rushed to the cross roads. There was nothing to be seen—a light shower that had settled the dust had made it perfectly impossible to see any tracks that might have been made, but there were none."

So the spook of Old Ruby will continue to wander through the deserted streets, and caper in its playground at the graveyard until someone finds an explanation of its existence.

MEN WITH RIFLES HUNT FOR GHOST IN OKLAHOMA VILLAGE GRAVEYARD

TULSA, Okla.—They have stalked it with Winchester rifles, and have tracked it through the graveyard and streets of the deserted village of Old Ruby, but "they," which includes numerous newspapermen, and dozens of ghost detectors from this city have not solved the riddle of the red-orange ghost light that moves over the prairie of the most thinly settled section of Nowata county.

Mac A. Hawkins, skeptic writer of the Tulsa World, attempted to lay the uneasy light wraith, and came to the conclusion that the mystery was beyond his powers.

The Rev. W. J. Scantling, pastor of the Christian Union church has attempted to solve the light, and failed.

Probably the Autumn is the finest season in this domain. The trees of a northern climate always take on more brilliant colorings than those of the south. They march up the sides of the mountains to where the rocks begin, and to the snow line, garbed in flaiming reds and oranges and purples and yellows—every hue of the spectrum—and along the lakesides they are reflected in the still waters making a double mass of varigated color—as though the gods had tossed their palettes carelessly there. And in Spring when the first brilliant green leaves of the birches shoot forth from their silver stems another picture is produced.

This is the sort of country the president chose for his holiday. It will be interesting to note whether he thinks enough of it to return next year.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

FIXING THE BLAME AT ITS SOURCE.

This little story has one merit, at least. Of my own personal knowledge I can testify that it is true.

A tired business man in New York, coming home after a particularly enervating day, had occasion, or thought he had, to speak sharp words of reproof to his eight-year-old son. He wound up by sending the youngster to bed without any supper.

That night, stealing into the youngster's room to see whether he had fallen asleep, his mother found him wide awake and very scornful of her advances.

"Why, Jackie," she said, "you shouldn't be surly toward me just because your father scolded you. I'm not to blame."

"Yes," you are too!" stated Jackie. "You married the big stiff, and now I got to stand for him!"

COLLEGE LIFE IS REPRODUCED

Jack Conway Starred in "Brown of Harvard" Film.

Dozens of the most important colleges in the United States and one English university are represented in the production of "Brown of Harvard," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which opens a three-day engagement at the Ceramic theatre today.

First of all, of course, there is Harvard. Many of the scenes of the picture were taken in and about Cambridge, Mass., and shots of the 1925 football game between Harvard and Yale have been incorporated in the released version.

Then Yale comes in for a bow in the person of Donald Ogden Stewart, who worked with director Jack Conway on the comedy construction of "Brown." Stewart is a graduate of Yale. Seton I. Miller, who plays a small part in the picture is also a Yale man, having finished last year.

For the freshman crew race as depicted in the production, the University of California crew doubled for both Harvard and Yale. These scenes were photographed in San Francisco.

Then the University of Southern California football team, played for the closeup shots of the Yale-Harvard game, with William Haines, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Guinn Williams and other members of the cast appearing with the team.

"Brown of Harvard" was adapted to the screen by A. P. Younger from the stage success by Rida Johnson Young. The play enjoyed enormous popularity behind the footlights and is one of the truest and finests stories of college life filmed. The sport scenes are among the most exciting ever filmed and have been woven into an utterly captivating love story.

'SIBERIA' OPENS AT COLUMBIA

Bartley Campbell's Play Here for Two Days.

Fox Films officials, in selecting the cast for "Siberia," screen version of Bartley Campbell's memorable play which opens a two-day engagement at the Columbia theatre beginning today, carried out their determination to fill the respective parts with the best-known and most talented actors available. As a consequence, this Victor Schertzinger production boasts one of the most pretentious casts ever assembled on the West Coast.

Alma Rubens, seen in the leading feminine role, has long been one of America's foremost screen stars. She has starred in numerous successes, but no role in which she has appeared in recent months fits her more admirably than that of "Sonia," the hectored daughter of a Russian overlord.

Edmund Lowe, cast as a dashing officer of the Czar's Guard, plays opposite Miss Rubens with his usual enthusiasm. Although this role is wholly different from any he has yet essayed, Lowe found little difficulty in adapting himself to the Russian surroundings Shcertzinger is authority for the statement that Lowe gives one of the most sympathetic portrayals of his career.

Do You Believe You Can Be Thin And Healthy, Too?

Writer Says Folks Underweight Should Consider Question Seriously

MAKES STARTLING STATEMENTS

Excessive thinness should not be confused with attractive and perfectly healthy slenderness. One does not need to be "fat" in order to be healthy—slenderness is not skinniness—but men and women of subnormal weight, who do not look or feel at their best, should honestly try to correct their weakness at once!

Those who treat the matter lightly or try to "laugh it off" by blaming their "thinness" on family characteristics are doing themselves a grave injustice and are seemingly blind to well-known facts.

Thinness invariably means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means a weakened condition and resistance—poor resistance means an easy prey (a waiting victim) for practically every disease that may come along. One does not need to be a Doctor to understand these things. Common Sense, observation and the fact that Life Insurance Companies absolutely refuse to sell Insurance to those who are "too thin" furnish convincing daily proofs—that one cannot be very much underweight and healthy, too!

Every day of delay increases the difficulty of best results from proper treatment—so, if you or any of your friends are excessively thin, don't wait, but start doing something about it at once. In the opinion of the writer, one of the best and simplest means of proper treatment is a few weeks' use of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Tiny, tasteless tablets—containing the well known concentrated flesh-building value, the physical power and strength of Cod Livers—minus the offensive odor and terrible taste. A wonderful tonic and builder recommended and supplied by Mathews Medicine store and all good druggists—60 tablets 60c—on a money back if not satisfied plan. Nearly 20 million McCoy's tablets sold last month, and wonderful reports of "gains in weight" received almost every day. Ask your druggist.

FOUR MEN HELD FOR ATTACK ON CHARLES LOOP

ADMIT ATTACK

Two Confess, Police Say, Second County Job.

Attempted robbery of the Charles H. Loop filing station, Lisbon-Salem road near McCracken's corners, late Friday night, was cleared today, police believe with the arrest of four young men, who are said to have admitted they assaulted Loop.

Merle Young, 19, Salem; William Kirby, 24, Alliance; Phillip Longstreth, 20, Johnstown, Pa., and Francis Teloskey, 20, Altoona, Pa., are in the county jail at Lisbon awaiting grand jury action upon charges of highway robbery and assault with intent to kill, following their arrest in Salem late Saturday night.

According to police, Young and Kirby confessed they attempted to hold up and rob Myron Kelly, proprietor of a general store at Teegarden, this county, earlier Friday evening. They then drove to the Loot filling station, according to the confession, and tossed a coin as to which of the four should strike the attendant. Longstreth is alleged to have been selected and struck Loop with a tire iron as he was pouring a can of oil into the Ford car in which the four were riding.

Loot rushed into his home, nearby, obtained a shotgun and opened fire on the quartet. The four abandoned their car and escaped on foot but in their hurry to get away Teloskey lost his cap, containing the name of an Altoona store.

Longstreth and Young, it is claimed applied for medical attention at the Central clinic, Salem, Saturday, both of them suffering from buckshot wounds alleged to have been inflicted by Loop. The pair went to the Pennsylvania station, Saturday night, intending to make an eastbound train when they were arrested by Officer Jess Gray of the Salem police force and Mayor George Russell upon charges of suspicion. They were taken to the city hall, and grilled. In their confession, police say, they implicated Kirby and Teloskey, who were also arrested in Salem.

sician and a nurse. Miss Negri was taken immediately to the "gold room," where Valentino reposed in his casket.

Weeping hysterically, Miss Negri knelt beside the casket, near which stood a seven-foot wreath of roses, sent by her, and bearing the words in flowers:

"My love will be eternal."

At almost the same moment, Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife, arrived accompanied by her mother. Like Pola, she too, was dressed in mourning.

Miss Acker knelt beside the casket and, with bowed head, prayed.

It was a dramatic scene, these two women, two of the three women most directly concerned in Valentino's life, praying side by side at his bier as the organ nearby gave forth soft strains.

Second Wife Not Present.

The other woman in Valentino's life, his second wife, Natacha Rambova, was not present. She was in Europe when Valentino died and was unable to get here.

The motor procession of 12 automobiles, containing the mourners, pall bearers and close friends of Valentino, was headed by a police escort of mounted and motorcycle men as it moved down Broadway from Sixty-sixth street.

At the church, the active pall bearers, removed the casket from the hearse. Slowly, reverently, they carried it into the church as the choir sextette hang, "Miserere," by Spoth.

Miss Negri was led to her pew, still weeping. Her nerves seemed to have gone completely.

Opera Stars Sing Solos.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Edward F. Leonard, rector of the church, assisted by Father Congedo, a boyhood friend of Valentino's; the Rev. William Donahue, chaplain of the Catholic Actors' guild, as subdeacon, and the Rev. Joseph McKenna and the Rev. James O'Reilley as master of ceremony.

"May the Angels," said Father Leonard, "lead thee into paradise. May the martyrs receive thee at thy coming, and take thee to Jerusalem, the holy city. May the choirs of the angels receive thee, and mayest thou with the once poor Lazarus, have rest everlasting."

During the impressive service solos were sung by Guido Ciccolni of the Chicago opera company and Demitri Onotri of the San Carlo opera company.

Chopin's "funeral march" was played on the organ by Prof. Joseph Davis of St. Malachy's church as the body was being removed from the church.

The body was then returned to the Campbell parlors to be held until the arrival on the Homeric Wednesday of Valentino's brother, Alberto Guglielmi, who is expected to decide on Hollywood, Cal., as the place of burial.

the great war, and his proposed remedy for its evils. "Within fifty years, these babel governments (of Europe) will clash in a gigantic war, for the markets of the world." From that war he predicted a unification of Europe, which would more than pay the cost of such a war.

Angell, the intelligent Britisher, who before 1914, predicted what the big war would do, now publishes a book urging a federation of European nations, similar to the union of states here. Will Europe listen this time? Probably not.

PHILADELPHA, clergymen protest against the heavyweight prize fight to be "pulled off" in that respectable city. After the fight you will know who is the world's heavyweight champion, and how much influence the clergy have, as compared with $2,000,000 gate receipts.

IT WILL console the clergy in their disappointment, to reflect that if all the signers of the declaration could come back, Hancock, Franklin and Jefferson included, and publicly sign the declaration all over again, they could not "draw" ten per cent of prize fight receipts.

RECENTLY the former kaiser, motored to a high hill, from his castle in Holland, looked across the German frontier and gazed on the fatherland for the first time since he ran away from that fatherland, after the armistice. A crowd of German nationalists, (by arrrangement of course), rushed across the border to see and cheer him. Moses had the same experience looking at the promised land, but not allowed to enter, after all his hard work. The kaiser, however, may have other chances.

MOODY WINNER IN TEXAS RACE

"Ma" Ferguson Poor Second in Run-off Primary.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 30.—Reports Monday from 248 of the state's 252 counties, with 100 complete, gave Dan Moody 469,585 and Mrs. Ferguson 247,458, in the gubernatorial primary run-off of Saturday, the Texas election bureau announced.

During the entire campaign, an undercurrent of threats and warnings was heard on all sides, emanating from James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, and from Ferguson supporters.

The warnings were that if Moody won the runoff primary, steps would be taken before the courts of the state to bar Moody's name from the November general election ballot. Basis for such action was Ferguson's charge that Moody had violated the state election law by accepting contributions from other candidates for state offices.

Moody gained his large vote at the first primary, July 24, "by fraud at an unfair and dishonest election," Jim Ferguson warned in speeches for his wife.

Ferguson warned if Moody were nominated, the courts would rule his name off the ballot, leaving Texas "to the disgrace of having a Republican elected governor for the first time."

The contributions complained of were returned by Moody, who laughs at Jim's crepe hanging.

PENNSYLVANIA RAIDERS JAIL MAN, SEIZE STILL ON BIG MILL CREEK

Stealthily approaching him while he was allegedly manipulating a 40-gallon still in a gulch, situated in dense woodland on Big Mill creek between Georgetown and Hookstown, Pa., Charles Allison, 20, of that neighborhood, was captured by Pennsylvania officers Saturday.

Charged with manufacturing, possessing and selling liquor he was taken to Midland, Pa.

Led by Sergeant John Kellar, who was accompanied by three state policemen, and Justice Charles Kennedy, of Midland, Pa., and Constable James McDonald, of Mill Creek, Pa., the raid was adroitly effected.

Crawling under bushes Constable McDonald surprised Allison. Discovering the officer he refused to surrender and ran, but into the arms of raiders approaching from the opposite direction. He was thus easily taken.

The still, two barrels of mash and a gallon of liquor in bottles were confiscated.

County and state officers had for nearly two years sought the location and destruction of this still. Water from the creek alongside, it is said, was being utilized in the making of the liquor.

It was necessary to carry the utensils taken through the dense shrubbery to the roadway.

The project, it is claimed, may be completed at less cost if the fire station site or some other city-owned property is selected.

The project, according to Service-Safety Director John W. Moore, will require a 55 per cent vote for approval. Payment for the bonds, according to the tentative arrangement, will be distributed over a period of 25 years. Mrs. Corson Leaves Dover.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 30.—In an effort to escape the enthusiastic crowds which insisted upon mobbing her whenever she appeared on the streets, Mrs. Clemington Corson, the second woman to swim the English channel, slipped out of Dover and motored to Folkestone with her husband today. She will return tonight to Broadcast over 2LO, the powerful British station.

Mrs. Corson showed no traces of the channel ordeal when seen at the Dover station this morning where she bade farewell to Frank Perks, the plucky Englishman, who accompanied Mrs. Corson to within a mile of the Dover coast. Perks left for Birmingham, abandoning his attempt to swim the channel for the season.

Mrs. Corson declared that after thinking it over "it was not so bad after all," and said that she planned to return next year to swim the channel again, starting from the English side.

Mrs. Corson and her husband will go to Denmark to pay a visit to Mrs. Corson's mother. After a brief stay they will return to the United States.

Trudy Cables Congratulations.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30. — Gertrude Ederle today cabled Hans Vierkoetter, German swimmer who established a new channel record by swimming across the treacherous water in 12 hours and 35 minutes, expressing the hope that he would race her from Cape Gris Nez to Dover next summer.

"Congratulations on your great swim," Trudy said in her message. "I hope that we can race across the channel next summer, so that I may have an opportunity of bringing the record back to my sex and my country."

Discovery of Oil Stirs Illinois Town; Big Producer Hit

JACKSONVILLE, Ill.—Oil! This magic word is on the lips of every man in Morgan county, following the successful bringing in of a well north of this city. The well is located on the farm of O. F. Conklin. Paul C. Irwin, veteran oil man, is the prime mover back of the project and he stuck to his task of promoting and drilling the well despite the discouragement of business men of this county.

Recently natural gas in tremendous quantities was found near this city, the two forming links in what may prove a broad field for oil and gas operations.

The well, it is estimated, will produce 25 barrels of oil per day. Some estimate that the output will be double this figure.

BOOK ONE—VI.

The return to college after a three months' vacation is always an event. One is pleasantly excited, and not a little surprised to find things looking much the same as they used to look. It seems incredible that during a period when so much has happened to oneself, nothing apparent should have happened to the university. On the other hand, should anything apparent have happened—a new dormitory rising where once was a vacant lot, a remembered tree cut down — one is highly indignant and cries forth anathemas indicative of a secret feeling that one should at least have been consulted beforehand.

"Here's Prexy's house!"

"Why, he's put on a new porch, the old son-of-a-gun!"

"Look—look there, will you — the Gamma Gammas are building an addition—"

"The hell they are!"

"Law school house looks just the same—"

The roadster journeyed through Campus street, the four heads jerking from side to side attentively. Though it was by this time something after midnight, the dormotories and fratehnity houses that lined the thoroughfare were lively with light and moving figures. "Bed? Who thinks of bed on a night like this?" commented Pink.

Jock at the wheel said little. He was staring off over the tree-shaded green that centered this collegiate world, a green criss-crossed with pathways along which the entire student body trudged daily en route from room to class room and back again. "Think what it means!" he meditated, stirred. "Hundreds of years it's been there — thousands and thousands of forgotten footsteps—" A line he had read once came back him: "Where endlessly the dead go up and down—"

The voice of Dopey Lane seized upon him like a rude hand and wrenched him from these reveries. "Ladies and gentlemen," he chanted, "on your right we have the home of Jock Hamill's inamorata, a lady famed far and wide for her shapely legs and for the broadmindedness of her husband—"

"Soft pedal!" warned Jock, grinning "She'll hear you. They must be up—lights on in the living room—"

Throughout his sophomore year he had been heckled unmercifully about Eunice Hathaway. She was a provocative brunette from Tennesse who had come to a fraternity house party some years before, married Bradley Hathaway on a dare the second day, and treated him rather dreadfully ever since. Their modest bungalow was less than two blocks from Jock's fraternity house, and he had acquired a habit of dropping in there at odd hours. Actually, he went to see Bradley, whom he admired, and to find seclusion from the bedlam created by 37 "brothers" bent perpetually on merry-making. But he never attempted to explain this to anyone, realizing the futility of so doing, and it was therefore taken for granted that he was devoted to Eunice—and impression strengthened materially by the behavior of Eunice herself. She was one of those women who want it known that men find them charming. She flaunted Jock in people's faces. She looked at him languishingly in public; whispered close to his ear; discussed him when he was not present in an intimate "he-and-I" tone that said plainly, "There's something to this, and don't make any mistake about it." She had even talked herself into believing it, and she would have been as astounded as any one, if not more astounded, had she known that Jock cared nothing whatever for her—that she made him, in fact, not a little weary.

"Lights is right!" Bill Olmstead was saying. "All ablaze in there, to guide the traveler to port. Aren't you going in, Jock? Oh, better go in! Oh, do go in! Poor girl has probably spent the day with her nose pressed to the window-pane—"

Just at this moment the bungalow's door swung wide and Bradley Hathaway's figure was silhouetted, black against yellow. He bent to place a milk bottle on the porch, then straightened suddenly as Jock howled, "Hullo, Brad!"

"Hello yourself! Who is it, anyway?"

"Jock Hamill, and three of the better eggs."

"Jock—why, come in here this minute, you big bum! We've been wondering when you'd be along!"

"You see?" said Bill, sotto voice. "Nobody's invited in but Jock. I do admire a husband with some idea of the fitness of things!"

Jock stopped the car and got out. "Shut up, Bill," he said good-naturedly, "and drive along down to the house. I'll be there soon—have to see Brad a minute—"

They met on the porch and entered the bungalow arm in arm, both immensely glad of the reunion. Jock's regard for Bradley Hathaway was easily understandable when you looked well at him. He had force and strength. Strength of character, writ plain in his eyes and the line of his chin; strength of body. He was the type of man of whom no one in the world can make sport except just one woman. . . .

"Ooo—really?" A remote little cry of gladness. "Comin' in just a second, soon as I can throw a wrappah on." Eunice had clung persistently to her Tennessee accent through all these years in what she was pleased to call "the raucous No'th;" hence there were no concluding g's or r's in anything she said.

"How is Eunice?" asked Jock politely, as he and Brad sat down.

"Oh, she's fine. Tickled to death to see college reopening, of course—it's devilishly stupid for her here in the summer. She wanted to take a cottage at the shore during July and August, but I couldn't quite make the grade."

There was a silence. Brad was frowning at nothing, and Jock was feeling sorry for Brad. He could imagine precisely the scenes that must have taken place, Eunice pleading, nagging, threatening, Brad gently obdurate. . . . . Brad had graduated in 1917, fought in France, and come back to the university as assistant coach, a position accorded him in recognition of his sensational athletic prowess while a student. It's a great job," he had told Jock once, "and I'd be happy in it if it wasn't for Eunice. She wants more money. She can't bear not to have the things more money would buy, and she knows I'll never make much more—this way. She's right, too, of course," he had amended hastily. "I'll have to get more for her, some way." Everything Eunice thought and did was all right in Brad's eyes; love had given him an incurable astigmatism."

The pause became over-long, and to end it Jock said, "How's the football team look?"

English Exhibitors Unable to Agree on Plan by Which British Films Would be Used.

LONDON.—Efforts to produce an agreed scheme for the rehabilitation of the British film industry have almost completely failed, according to a report issued by the Joint Trade Committee for British Films appointed to consider ways and means of combatting the American film "menance."

Manufacturers, renters and exhibitors were represented on the committee, and it is stated that the failure to reach a solution was in the main due to the antagonistic viewpoints possessed by each section.

Only on one suggestion—a scheme whereby exhibitors must exhibit a proportionate number of British films in every program—did the committee reach agreement, but this was afterwards defeated on being submitted to a referendum of members of the Cinematograph Exhibitor's association, states the report.

Among other proposals considered but not approved by the committee was the Contingent Scheme, now worked in Germany, which rigidly limits imports. This was rejected because it was only suited to a country with much greater native production than British. Suggestions for a reciprocal arrangement for the exhibition of British films in the United States were criticized because of difficulties in enforcing agreement.

A tax on foreign films was also rejected because it would hit small exhibitors hard, and would not affect theatres making big money, while a proposal for the remission of Governmental Entertainment Tax if the program was all British was also negatived owing to the government's viewpoint being unobtainable. Other schemes for voluntary quotas and part-voluntary and part-compulsory quotas were also found impractible.

It is thought here that the whole question will now be held over until the next meeting of the Imperial Conference, when various schemes will be presented to the delegates from the British colonies.

The possibility is foreseen of the government introducing compulsory legislation to make the various interests come into line and to suggest measures for the industry's gest measures for betterment.

BARGE BUSINESS GROWS RAPIDLY

QUINCY, Ill.—Experiments in barge operations on the Mississippi river between Winono, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., have proved such a success that it has been decided to place other boats in commission next spring.

The down-river trip requires five days and the up river trip 10 days between the two terminals. Stops are made at intermediate points for freight.

At present only one barge, built of steel and driven by a 150 horse-power motor is in service, operated by the federal government in connection with the line between St. Louis and New Orleans, launched during the world war.

When traffic is opened in the spring a number of barges, the exact number to be determined by the volume of business will be placed in operation.

Cebula Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game to Trim Midland Club

Potters Draw First Blood In Series With Pennsylvania Rivals

Chester Slab Ace Fans 11 Batters and Crashes Out Two-bagger; Second Clash to be Staged Wednesday at Smith Field.

SMOKE of the first battle of the East Liverpool-Midland diamond series which got under way Saturday afternoon at Midland has blown away and leaves the Pottery City delegation of City Industrial league stars holding the advantage as a result of Mike Cebula's no-hit, no-run performance that gave the locals a 3 to 0 conquest in the opener.

Three errors permitted as many Midland runners to reach first base but there they perished as "Mike mowed 'em down at the plate.

Cebula, Chester's star heaver, breezed no less than 11 batters during the contest and clouted out a two-bagger himself.

The locals scored a run in the first frame. Evans, first man up, singled to center and went to second on L. McMath's grounder to third. McMath being retired at first. Eddie Bailey's two-base clout then chased Evans home.

Wilde singled to center, Bailey being held at third. On Herbert's rap to the pitcher, Bailey was nipped at the plate. McShane fanned, ending the inning.

In the second, Cebula crashed out a double to left and was caught at third, trying to stretch the blow.

Evans opened the third and reached first on an error at first base. He stole second but a few moments later was caught off the bag, Petrosky to Thompson. McMath doubled to right. Bailey reached first on a fielder's choice, Shortstop Thompson getting McMath at the hot corner.

Wilde lined out a screeching double and chased the fleet footed Bailey home, scoring a few minutes later on Herbert's single to center. McShane was thrown out, Petroskey to Schink, to end the inning.

The next game of the series will be staged Wednesday evening at 5:15 o'clock at Smith Field, Chester, instead of Patterson Field.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Smooth pitching, powerful batting and snappy fielding enabled the Yankees to down the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 1, before a crowd of 45,000. "Babe" Ruth socked a two bagger with the bases full in the first inning for the benefit of the anxious fans.

With a dismal record of 26 scoreless innings behind them, the Robins got back home to Ebbetts Field and remembered how to win again. They trounced the Giants, 6 to 2.

SALEM ELKS WIN FROM ALL STARS

The Salem Elks, aided by an aggregation of East Liverpool stars, including McConnell, Salnor, Pollock, Simcox, Finley, Ashe and Hunselman, defeated the Salem Industrial League All-Star outfit, 12 to 6, Saturday at Reilley Field.

The Stars were ahead, 6 to 0, until the eight inning when the Elks cut loose, scoring 10 runs in that one frame.

The Elks have challenged the "Peace Valley" club, near East Palestine for a series which probably will begin next Sunday.

PENNANT RACES

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Playing a ten-inning tie, the Pirates and Cardinals failed to alter their positions with respect to themselves yesterday but picked up a half game on the Reds, who lost to Chicago. As matters stood this morning, the Pirates continued at the pace, a trifle less than a full game in front of the Reds. The Cardinals, in third place, were a game and a fraction behind the leaders. They could take the lead today by winning both games from the Pirates.

In the American League, the pace-setting Yankees made their position more secure by defeating the Tigers and remaining seven games beyond the Indians, who nosed out the Browns. If the Yankees merely win fifteen of their remaining 28 games, the Indians would have to win 22 and lose only four games in order to land the pennant.

STEUBENVILLE GOLFERS WIN

Defeat East Liverpool Club by Score of 60½-20½.

Steubenville Country club golfers turned the tables on the East Liverpool team in the second match of the inter-club series Saturday at Steubenville winning by the decisive score of 60½ points to 20½.

J. M. Wells, in the first foursome of the afternoon, was defeated by Bob Wintringer and gave up 2 and 1-2 points to his Steubenville rival.

Nears Record for Double Clouts

George Burns, of the Cleveland Indians, is no respector of records. He tramped heavily on the National League record for double base clouts in one season and is now on the heels of the American League record (which is the world's record) of 59 established by his boss, Tris Speaker, back in 1923.

Mrs. Carson Proves Superiority of Sex In Channel Swim As Efforts of Five Men Fade

Miss Ederle's time was two hours and 2 minutes faster than the men's record, held by Tiraboschi.

Mrs. Carson's was 1 hours and 5 minutes faster than that of Tiraboschi.

Charles Toth, swimming the channel the same year Tiraboschi did, came within 21 minutes of the latter's time.

These men chose the season between Aug. 10 and Sept. 8 for their attempts, the period during which Miss Ederle and Mrs. Carson both planned their efforts. There is, then, no chance to argue more favorable conditions. I take it that it is part of the feat (purely a sporting one anyhow), to choose the propitious moment.

The feat of Mrs. Carson makes more absurd the rumblings in England that Miss Ederle's fast time was made possible through the sheltering presence of a boat as she fought the choppy sea. Mrs. Carson's victory stands out as interesting as Miss Ederle's in another way despite the fact that the New York girl was first to perform the feat. This is that Mrs. Carson's triumph comes not only after years of long distance swimming but under conditions which find most athletic women out of the sport. She is the mother of two children.

The English channel belongs now to the fair sex, the league of nations may well agree to that right now.

In one way the victory of Mrs. Clemington Carson in swimming the English channel equals the first successful effort of her sex, the achievement of Gertrude Ederle, in importance.

Miss Ederle proved that the channel can be conquered by a woman—and that Gertrude at least was master of the men in conquering the choppy water.

Mrs. Carson's victory, following on the heels of Miss Ederle's feat, looms large in importance in that it proves that the feminine swimming world, not alone Miss Ederle, may claim superiority in the matter of endurance swimming.

Scores of men have attempted the swim from the French coast to Dover, or vice versa. Of this large number but five had navigated the stretch successfully when Mrs. Carson succeeded.

Here are the names of the five men, the time they took and the date of the attempt.

Name	Time	Date
Capt. Webb	21h., 45m.	Aug. 24, '75
Thos. Burgess	22h., 35m.	Sept. 5, '11
H. Sullivan	27h., 25m.	Aug. 5, '23
S. Tiraboschi	16h., 32m.	Aug. 12, '23
Chas. Toth	16h., 54m.	Sept. 8, '23

Miss Ederle, on Aug. 6, swam the channel in 14 hours and 31 minutes.

Mrs. Carson's time (Aug. 28.) was 15 hours and 28 minutes.

Photo of Mrs. Clemington Carson (formerly Amelia Gade) also shows her two children, Marjory and Sonny, as they bask in the glow of their mother's "victory smile."

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Having feted one lady channel swimmer until she took to her bed exhausted, New York "came to" this morning feeling not unlike the gent who attempted to tell a Siamese twin she was the most beautiful woman in the world. He was trying to make a choice between a carbon copy and the original, and if a man can't do it, neither can he reach an honest decision on two lady channel swimmers. New York has two lady channel swimmers today and is feeling just a little bit fatuous about that extravagant celebration it staged under the erroneous impression that Gertrude Ederle, the only lady channel swimmer at that moment, would continue to be the only lady channel swimmer until the end of time.

Twenty-four hours later, Mrs. Clemington Corson, of New York, swam the turbulent stretch of sea between France and England in a maner that indicated she could give Trudy an excellent debate, a la auqua-marine, had they attempted the swim together.

The same question is asked in barber shops and swimming circles today: Who's next?

Takes Punch Out of Fete.

Beyond any argument, a lot of the punch departed with due haste from the Ederle home-coming fete when announcement of Mrs. Corson's successful effort became public property. One simply can't continue shouting oneself voiceless over two Mt. Blancs. The second might not altogether spoil the effect of the first but it would do it practically no good.

On Friday, Trudy was a woman apart, the only one of her kind in the world. On Saturday, she had company.

Will a rival cut into the vast earnings that are being claimed for her? Trudy captured the popular fancy because she is young and feminine. But Mrs. Corson is feminine too, and the mother of two small children. That looks like an excellent human interest angle to me.

Another is the fact that this woman made the attempt almost alone and unaided—no tugs, no jazz music, no famous trainers and conditioners. She was followed by a motor boat merely as a bearer of nourishment and a precaution against drowning. And, at the finish, she was caught in the turn of the tide and swam the last quarter mile into what probably was a mill-race.

It seems to me that such a woman must have great public appeal. Will she go big in vaudeville? Trudy is supposed to have an offer of $125,000 for twenty weeks. Will Mrs. Corson get a similar offer? And, if so, is there room at that price for two lady channel swimmers? It would seem that one simple must cut down the earnings of the other in the various avenues of revenue that the being opened.

Trudy Holds Record, However.

Of course, Trudy must remain the bigger public figure, being the original lady channel swimmer and the world's record holder, at that. But how can we say we won't have a third before we know it? Clarabella Barrett, an known New York girl, was in the channel over twenty hours and experts declare she would have conquered it if the pilot hadn't become lost in the fog. Doesn't it seem possible that Clarabelle might yet succeed?

In that case, New York would refuse to become excited about a lady channel swimmer. Its greeting to Trudy was so enthusiastic and prolonged that today, on the advice of her physician, she is enjoying comparative privacy for the first time since she landed.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

A ball that is slightly hooked is a fine ball. It is big off the tee because it takes forty or fifty yards of roll after it hits, and is a good approacher because it will go on up onto the green after it hits the ground. Many good golfers deliberately use a ball throughout that has a slight hook energy in it. Any golfer can develop this kind of a ball without much altering in his game. A slight shift of the place from which the ball is hit will accomplish it. For instance, instead of taking the ball off the left instep or the left heel, stand to the ball so that it is at a point midway with the body. Now at the same time draw the left arm slightly back toward the right side of the body, letting the wrist break back. This gives you about the same position of the wrist you would have if you put the ball out by the left heel and started the club back with a drag back. From this position, swing in the regular way.

"Sock Them In, Boys, See If I Can Take It" Jack's Daily Program

Champ Permits Smaller Partners to Wallop His Whiskers, But Warns the "Big Boys" to Watch for Counter Punch in Return.

By George Barry.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 30.—Jack Dempsey's program for this afternoon will be the same as it has been for the past several days:

"Sock, boys, and see if I can take it."

The champion is testing out the punches of his smaller associates by deliberately leaving his jaw open. They are popping and banging the regal whiskers, fretting Dempsey by their ease in plowing through the slight guard that he effects—but they are not doing any damage.

The larger men also have the smaller boys' privilege to "drive 'em," but that privilege has a little joker involved. They must be ready, when they let fly, to catch a counter wallop themselves. And that's not exactly to their fancy. They have caught too many counters in the past to take too many liberties.

Dempsey, up to this time, has been sparring about six rounds daily and putting in three more at the pulleys, the punching bag and in shadow boxing. One of the things he is practicing with much enthusiasm is spinning around while shadow boxing. He is constantly turning and twisting.

"Why?" asked someone.

Won't Get Dizzy.

"Well, in a fight it usually happens that the other fellow may spin me around or I may have to keep turning and twisting to catch up with him," explained the champion. "If a man isn't drilled and perfected in that turning and twisting, it's likely to make him dizzy. So I'm practicing it, so that if I have to spin around a lot to find out where Tunney has vamoosed to, why I'll not be running any chances of getting dizzy.

"Another thing I am practicing and that is to get under a right hand drive for the jaw. I'm letting the boys shoot at my chin all they want. But instead of ducking or sidestepping from these punches, I shove my head down under the swing of that punch. When I get that perfected, I'd like to do a little betting that Tunney isn't going to lay that right on my chin as often as he thinks.

"I'm not making any prediction now as to what kind of a battle I'll fight against Tunney, but for this mix-up I'm going to introduce a few tricks that I never have used before. And they'll help me win."

Tigers Down Scouts, 5-1 in Third Game Of Diamond Series

The Tigers defeated the Catholic Scouts Saturday at Patterson field, 5 to 1, in the third game of their series. The Scouts scored their lone talley in the first when Garvey reached first of Pardell's error. He stole second and when caught off the bag, scored on Hanlon's overthrow.

The Tigers tied it up in the third when Altman walked and scored on Greenwood's triple. Although the Scouts threatened several times no more scoring was done until the eighth.

With the count at 1-1, Greenwood doubled, after Banks had flied out. Salnor singled, scoring Greenwood. A flurry of hits followed and before the third man was retired the Tigers had tallied four times.

Greenwood was the hitting star with a double and triple in four attempts. Hanlon contributed the fielding sensation, a running catch of Dyer's fly.

SPECULATOR CHEERS TUNNEY

By Frank O'Neil.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Gene Tunney, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, had his last week-end workout in Speculator yesterday. It was a sizzling work-out, too, and the crowd cheered throughout. After the gloves had been untied, the fans followed Tunney over to his cottage and cheered some more. There were demands for a speech. Gene is a pretty nifty talker, so he up and said, said he:

"I want to thank the good people of Speculator and the summer colony for their loyal support. I know I will go into the ring carrying your wishes and hopes for success. I feel that I have a mission to fulfill and that I must win from Dempsey."

More cheers were in order, and then "Pants" Lawrence stepped to the cottage steps. "Let's give three more cheers for Gene, the great champion," said "Pants." The tumult rumbled down the valley and echoed over the lake to where the green-carpeted Mt. Speculator rears its silent heights.

Tunney does not like the idea of leaving Speculator, but it is one of those things that has to be done. Rickard wants him in Pennsylvania, the mayor of Stroudsburgh wants him there, and that's that.

Royal Mountain Ash Welsh Choir at Ceramic Theatre

World's Greatest Male Chorus Will Headline Bill Today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Royal Mountain Ash Welsh choir—15 glorious voices, winners of eight international competitions, and recognized as the world's greatest male chorus, will headline the vaudeville-motion picture bill at the Ceramic theatre during the first three days of the week.

This colorful spectacle was presented this afternoon and will be repeated tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday in the uniform of the Royal Welsh Guards of the sixteenth century.

The famous choir, eight times champion of Wales, arrived here yesterday en route to the St. Louis exposition. East Liverpool was placed on the American itinerary by the Arthur Spizzi agency, through which the Ceramic books its metropolitan features. The choir recently completed engagements in the large Keith theatres after a series of European triumphs.

Eight years has this choir carried off Eisteddfod honors in Wales. Their offerings extend from the martial "March of the Men of Harlech," to the rollicking "Jolly Roger" song of a gypsy number.

The choir will appear in connection with the presentation of the screen success, "Brown of Harvard," starring Jack Pickford, Mary Brian, Mary Alden, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and William Haines. Other picture features on the program are a Tuxedo comedy, "Honest Injun," with Johnny Arthur, and the first pictures of Gertrude Ederle conquering the English channel.

COAL WILL NOT GIVE UP TO OIL IS LABOR VIEW

Mine Federation Head Says Coal Will Come Back.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY

Steam Power Can be Produced Cheapest by Coal.

LONDON.—King Coal has many years of life before him and there is not the slightest chance of him abdicating in favor of King Oil, according to Frank Hodges, Secretary of the International Miners Federation, and one of England's most prominent labor leaders.

Pointing out that the world's reserves of coal are known to exceed those of oil, Hodges asserts that coal has only had a temporary set-back in its industrial development and will shortly regain its ascendancy over oil.

In this country and in most industrial countries," said Hodges in an interview, "coal-firing will always provide the bulk of energy developed until such times as the coal reserves are economically exhausted.

To Maintain Supremacy.

"The increasing use of the pulverized system of coal-firing limits the expansion of the use of oil for steam-raising, and coal will thus maintain its supremacy. The great advantage of the system is that low grade fuels become easily available for the production of power.

"Huge kuantities of these fuels, which are inseparably produced with better grade coals, and which represent a substantial item of the cost of production, will soon find a profitable market. Its increasing use will be an enormous economic help to the coal industry. I am not surprised, therefore, that it is being reported from the United States that oil-firing for steam-raising is being scrapped and pulverized coal-firing is being installed in its place.

"It is also well known that coal need not fear oil even on its own special territory, namely, for use in internal combustion engines and as a lubricant. There is no doubt whatever that what is known as the low temperature processes of carbonization of pre-treatment of coal for the recovery of its volatile constituents are now established as a commercial possibility. We now know that by these processes coal yields a large quantity of fuel-oil and motor spirit, as well as a smokeless semi-coke for power production and domestic fuel.

Pulverized Fuel.

"For power production, particularly in the capital stations fore-shadowed in the Government's scheme of reorganization there is no greater economic possibility than a combination of low-temperature carbonization and pulverized fuel-firing. Such a combination is now long past the experimental stage, and indeed a commercial plant having a capacity of 200 tons of coal per day is in operation in the United States at the Lakeside Station of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company as an adjunct of pulverized fuel-firing."

Woman Excavator Unearths Basket 12,000 Years Old

LONDON.—Basket work at least 12,000 years old, the first bread-wheat of prehistoric days ever found, and the earliest known sickle are among the treasures unearthed by Miss Caton-Thompson, a well-known archaeologist, while digging on the Fayum prehistoric settlements sixty miles south of Cairo, Egypt.

These relics are now at the University College building here, where experts are attempting to unravel their history and if possible add to the world's knowledge of those far off days.

The basket work is chiefly remnants of granaries, revealed while removing sand, which took the form of pits lined with coiled straw or a species of reed, in some of which were wheat and barley grains stored there by prehistoric farmers.

Examination has proved the grains to be two kinds of cultivated wheat—enmer and bread. The former was known to be used in prehistoric times, but this appears to be the first record of bread-wheat in such early days.

FARMERS WAR ON POISON WEED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—War has been opened by Dr. F. A. Laird, state veterinarian, and the state department of agriculture on snakeroot weed, which this year is claiming its usual number of cattle as victims.

Death of eight cattle on one farm near here brought a warning to farmers from the state to destroy this weed whenever found.

A survey is being made in an attempt to stamp out the menace to the cattle.

Stockings must be hereditary. They seem to run in many families.—Zanesville Signal.

CORINNE SCORES AT AMERICAN

It may justifiably be said that the beautiful star really enters her own kingdom in the impersonation of the late Grand Duchess Tatiana of Imperial Russia and in describing her exceptionally brilliant dramatic work the reviewer finds himself more at loss for words that are broad enough to do her justice, than for words enough to fill this column. One might write pages about "Into Her Kingdom" were not some mechanical restriction a necessity. It's that kind of a picture and Miss Griffith was never more beautiful, never better cast and never better supported.

M'DONALD CLAN HOLD REUNION

Second Annual Event is Held Saturday at Mill Creek.

Second annual reunion of the McDonald family was held Saturday at the Mill Creek Presbyterian church, near Hookstown, Pa. More than 100 persons attended the event.

The program consisted of athletic events, addresses and an elaborate basket dinner served on the lawn.

James Anderson, of East Liverpool, presided at the business session. The minutes of the gathering held at Georgetown last year were read by the secretary-treasurer of the organization, W. N. McDonald, of Youngstown, O.

Special music and interpretations were given by James Richie, piper major of the Kilties band of Youngstown, and Hugh Murray, also of Youngstown. Both were attired in kiltie costume.

Allen McDonald, of Chester, 83, eldest survivor of the direct descendants of the family emigrating to America, read an interesting paper which consisted of data of the events during the Scottish persecution which caused his ancestors to leave for the United States.

"Because my grandfather and your great-grandfather worshipped on this spot in the initial log church that antedated the succeeding two brick and subsequent frame structures now utilized it is particularly fitting that we assemble in reunion here," he said.

President Anderson in his remarks pointed out that no member of the family had died during the past year, but that three additions had taken place. Mrs. Joseph Gooley, 76, of Clinton, Pa., gave an exceedingly interesting talk in which she compared the customs of her early days with those of the present especially in the matter of women's dress.

Remarks were also made by Mrs. Frank Reed, of Mill Creek, Pa.; Mrs. Emma J. McDonald, of Chester; James A. McDonald, of Aspinwall, Pa.; James McDonald, of Mill Creek, Pa.; James McDonald, of East Liverpool, and T. T. Jones, of East Liverpool.

Letter of regret at her inability to be present from Mrs. Clara McDonald Swearingen, of Oscealo, Oregon, was read by Secretary McDonald. Mill Creek was chosen for the third annual reunion next year at a date to be later agreed upon.

James Anderson, of East Liverpool, and W. N. McDonald, of Youngstown, were elected to succeed themselves as president and secretary-treasurer.

Among those in attendance were: Allen McDonald, Miss Emma J. McDonald, Mrs. Daly Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. McDonald and daughters, Gaigle and Arline, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Walton, of Chester; Mr. and Mrs. W. N. McDonald and daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Sitler and grandson, Donald, James Richie and Hugh Murray of Youngstown; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cooley, of Clinton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cooley, of Franklin Springs, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Kennedy and son, Donald, of Coraopolis, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reed of Mill Creek, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Pollett and children, David, Peggy and Clewell, of Crafton, Pa.; Mary Henlin, of Florence, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Swearengen, of Mill Creek, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. O. EDNA HOPPER GROWS YOUNGER

Famous Actress Scientifically is 16 Years Old.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Edna Walace Hopper is ten years younger than she was last year. The American actress, known as the "Eternal Flapper" has just been examined at Vichy in France by Dr. Jaworski, discoverer of the "blood marriage" process of rejuvenation for old age, and pronounced scientifically sixteen years old. The French savants in 1925 declared Miss Hopper then had the appearance and physical functions of twenty-six.

"I am sixteen at sixty," Miss Hopper writes in a letter to Otis E. Glidden of Chicago. "I have lost ten years. What has become of them? Has anybody found ten years anywhere recently? Jaworski made his analysis in collaboration with the official physicians at Vichy where I am taking the waters. These men of science were amazed at my synthetic youth. I had proved for them, they declared, that youth is no longer a matter of years but of conservation of vital powers. They were convinced, they said, that science will yet discover the secret of eternal youth.

"Jaworski's 'blood-marriage' that has given him world fame consists of transfusing the microscopically pure blood of the young into the veins of old age. In many authentic cases, he has restored youth as by a miracle. But I have submitted to no treatments and when he asked me for my own formula that has kept me young young, I answered in two words, 'Correct living.' That means a correct balance of diet, exercise, work, recreation and sleep.

"Modern girls with their cocktails and cigarets and midnight indulgences will pay a heavy price for their pleasures by growing old at twenty-five. I am singularly fortunate to be old-fashioned. By correct living I am today youthful in spirit as well as body. I am as gay and light-hearted as in the happy days when I was only sixteen by the count of the years."

SIR JAMES COLQUHOUN IRVINE, one of Britain's greatest chemists, says future wars will be settled in a few days, by poisonous gases, dropped from airplanes. Nothing simpler than to beat a nation, by asphyxiating hundreds of thousands of millions, conveniently crowded into cities.

VICTORY will be with the nation that first sets in airplanes to work. This nation, with plenty of gold, and little intelligence in government, lacks airplanes, and is sentimentalizing about forbidding experiments with poisonous gases, and their manufacture. If the next war should hit the United States and turn out an disastrously as it probably would turn out, some respectable Americans might be less fortunate than the former kaiser.

Do You Clean House Systematically?

Housecleaning need not be the bugbear it has long been regarded in many households.

If the work is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there will be no need for the upheavals that result in discomfort to the entire household.

How to make this task simpler and easier is discussed in a booklet which this bureau has for distribution. Any reader can secure a copy of this Government publication by filling out and mailing the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

EDERLE RECORD IS BROKEN AS VIERKOETTER REACHES DOVER

TIDES AID HIM

Accompanied by Tug, His Time is 12 Hours, 35 Minutes.

DOVER, England, Aug. 30—Ernest Vierkoetter, German swimmer, today was added to the small group of those who have been able to swim the English channel.

Vierkoetter landed at Dover at 2:10 this afternoon and thereby set a new record for speed in swimming the channel, breaking the record set by Gertrude Ederle.

Lands at Langdon Stairs.

Vierkoetter started from Cape Gris Nez at 1:34 this morning and accomplished the swim in 12 hours and 35 minutes, which is the fastest ever made in a channel swim, Gertrude Ederle having held the previous record of 14 hours and 32 minutes.

Vierkoetter was accompanied on the swim by a tug.

Heavy mists off the English coast during the morning made it questionable whether Vierkoetter would be able to make the shore and his landing at Langdon Stairs was something of a surprise.

The German swimmer had the advantage of the flood tides, which Mrs. Corson barely missed when she made her swim on Saturday and this aided him materially in setting up a new record for time.

COUNCIL MAY SUBMIT $225,000 CITY HALL BOND ISSUE TO VOTERS

Resolution, Approved at Caucus Session Saturday Night, Probably Will be Adopted Thursday.

Legislation calling for the submission of a $225,000 bond issue to the voters of East Liverpool at the November 2 election, for the purpose of erecting a new municipal building, will be considered by the city solons at their regular meeting Thursday evening.

At a caucus Saturday evening, unanimous approval was given the proposed resolution. Solicitor Hoover was instructed to prepare the necessary legislation.

The resolution must be filed with the county auditor not later than Friday—60 days prior to the election.

Move for a new municipal building was started early this year, when a [illegible] committee of council was named to obtain prices on suitable sites for a structure which would house, fire department, police station, municipal court and office quarters for all city officials.

The planning commission, at a meeting last week, endorsed the proposal.

First Annual Picnic Will be Held Thursday Afternoon North of Lisbon.

More than 180 persons, tenants, their families and attaches of the Little building in the Diamond, East Liverpool's largest office structure, will picnic at Eagleton's Glen, four miles north of Lisbon on Thursday afternoon and evening. The event, initial in character, will become an annual departure in the future.

Sponsored by the various representatives of the business and professional world who utilize its numerous rooms, the movement was furthered in every way by Manager Frank Little and his brother and sister, John and Miss Mae Little.

Because physicians and attorneys have half holidays on Thursday during the summer, this day was selected for the affair. The trip to and from the picnic spot will be made by motor cars.

Baseball, swimming, boating, swinging, horse shoe pitching and dancing will feature the program.

At 5:30 o'clock dinner will be served, following which addresses will be made.

A fitting culmination to the feast of oratory and song will be a yellow bantam corn roast and a weiner sizzle.

Two outstanding athletic features will be a baseball game between the married and single men, with a horse shoe pitching combat between Drs. H. A. Turk and K. D. Dotson, both of whom have records at the pastime.

NEW YORK THAT GAVE HIM FAME PAYS TRIBUTE TO VALENTINO

Impressive Funeral Services for Famous Screen Sheik.

BUSINESS STOPS

Gotham's White Way Thronged for Last Rites.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The funeral of Rudolph Valentino, an impressive, dignified ceremony touched with deepest pathos, was held in New York today, in St. Malachy's Roman Catholic church, just off Broadway—the Broadway that gave the world-famous screen star his start to fame, that loved and admired him in life and assembled in great numbers today to pay him a reverent tribute in death.

No funeral in the history of New York city was witnessed by a larger crowd than that which silently watched the procession move slowly from Campbell's funeral parlors to the church.

That mile of Broadway, between the undertakers' parlors and the church, was black with people. As far as the eye could see Broadway was packed.

Business is Halted.

Traffic came to a dead standstill. It was even impossible to traverse the sidewalks, so dense was the throng, block after block all the way to the church.

Mounted police, motorcycle men and patrolmen were kept busy holding the people back of roped-off spaces. Crowds thronged elevated stations and other vantage points. Hundreds viewed the procession from office buildings. Business came to a complete halt.

Although they had been warned repeatedly that they would not be permitted near St. Malachy's, thousands gathered in the vicinity while solemn requiem high mass was sung.

Police reserves were on duty and roped off Forty-ninth street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. Only six hundred persons were permitted to pass these barriers. They were the only ones who carried printed invitations.

Pola and Jean Mourners.

Pola Negri, reported engaged to Valentino, was near collapse as the procession moved down Broadway. She arrived at the church at 10:30 o'clock with S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager; Mrs. Ullman, a phy-

CANTON GRAND JURY EXPECTED TO RETURN FROM THREE TO FIVE INDICTMENTS IN MURDER OF DON R. MELLETT, CRUSADING PUBLISHER

BY PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—A man whom officials declared is known to have driven the "death car," that carried the assassins of Don R. Mellett, will perhaps be called to testify before the grand jury following the testimony of Charles E. Morris, publisher of the Canton Daily News, it was definitely learned today.

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—The murder of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, will be reenacted and solved today before the Stark county grand jury picked to investigate the crime.

Officials conducting the grand jury action that is expected to result in from three to five murder indictments before the end of this week, so declared.

All of the special and regular investigating agencies today were of the emphatic opinion that drastic attempts to intimidate vital witnesses had failed.

Optimism for hurried "clean-up" of the murder that startled a nation today was at its highest ebb in investigating ranks.

The first witness expected to appear before the jurors today will be H. J. Burton, private detective who gathered evidence in Mellett's anti-vice crusade and who has assisted in investigating the publisher's murder.

Burton will be followed, it has been announced, by Charles E. Morris, successor of Mellett as publisher of the Canton Daily News, who is also editorial chief of the James M. Cox chain of newspapers.

Morris, who has been exceptionally active in carrying on a determined investigation into the assassination of his former friend and colleague, is expected to be before the jurors for several hours, and it has been predicted that he will make startling disclosures in the form of corroborated evidence.

Today or tomorrow, according to when Morris' testimony is concluded, a "key witness" will be taken before the investigating body. This witness, whose name is being withheld by authorities, is a Canton business man and the president of an association of persons claiming the same nationality here.

After admitting to authorities shortly following the murder of Mellett that he was an eye witness to certain situations immediately before and after the assassination, the man, evidently threatened, recently refused to relate his previous statements, officials said today.

Authorities expected, however, that he would tell his original story which is claimed to involve one member of the Canton police department as a plotter in the crime when called before the jury.

Two other men, looked upon as important witnesses by investigators, who will also be asked to testify this week, are Captain Ben Clarke, Bertillon chief of the Canton police department, and Detective Floyd Streitenberger, also of the local detective force.

Clarke is said to have made an investigation surrounding the Mellett home immediately after the murder.

Streitenberger is expected to be quizzed concerning the statement of Louis Mazer, accused of the Mellett murder, that he was at Streitenberger's home "treating a sick dog" during the time of the assassination.

The steam engine was idea—quickly made Europe richer than she had ever been. Taxation, which some Europeans will not tolerate, and development of electric power could do for Europe in this century what steam did at the beginning of the last century.

Do You Clean House Systematically?

Housecleaning need not be the bugbear it has long been regarded in many households.

If the work is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there will be no need for the upheavals that result in discomfort to the entire household.

How to make this task simpler and easier is discussed in a booklet which this bureau has for distribution. Any reader can secure a copy of this Government publication by filling out and mailing the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

EDERLE RECORD IS BROKEN AS VIERKOETTER REACHES DOVER

TIDES AID HIM

Accompanied by Tug, His Time is 12 Hours, 35 Minutes.

DOVER, England, Aug. 30—Ernest Vierkoetter, German swimmer, today was added to the small group of those who have been able to swim the English channel.

Vierkoetter landed at Dover at 2:10 this afternoon and thereby set a new record for speed in swimming the channel, breaking the record set by Gertrude Ederle.

Lands at Langdon Stairs.

Vierkoetter started from Cape Gris Nez at 1:34 this morning and accomplished the swim in 12 hours and 35 minutes, which is the fastest ever made in a channel swim, Gertrude Ederle having held the previous record of 14 hours and 32 minutes.

Vierkoetter was accompanied on the swim by a tug.

Heavy mists off the English coast during the morning made it questionable whether Vierkoetter would be able to make the shore and his landing at Langdon Stairs was something of a surprise.

The German swimmer had the advantage of the flood tides, which Mrs. Corson barely missed when she made her swim on Saturday and this aided him materially in setting up a new record for time.

Until Vierkoetter made his remarkable swim today the fastest time ever made by a male swimmer across the

NEW YORK THAT GAVE HIM FAME PAYS TRIBUTE TO VALENTINO

Impressive Funeral Services for Famous Screen Sheik.

BUSINESS STOPS

Gotham's White Way Thronged for Last Rites.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The funeral of Rudolph Valentino, an impressive, dignified ceremony touched with deepest pathos, was held in New York today, in St. Malachy's Roman Catholic church, just off Broadway—the Broadway that gave the world-famous screen star his start to fame, that loved and admired him in life and assembled in great numbers today to pay him a reverent tribute in death.

No funeral in the history of New York city was witnessed by a larger crowd than that which silently watched the procession move slowly from Campbell's funeral parlors to the church.

That mile of Broadway, between the undertakers' parlors and the church, was black with people. As far as the eye could see Broadway was packed.

Business is Halted.

Traffic came to a dead standstill. It was even impossible to traverse the sidewalks, so dense was the throng, block after block all the way to the church.

Mounted police, motorcycle men and patrolmen were kept busy holding the people back of roped-off spaces. Crowds thronged elevated stations and other vantage points. Hundreds viewed the procession from office buildings. Business came to a complete halt.

Although they had been warned repeatedly that they would not be permitted near St. Malachy's, thousands gathered in the vicinity while solemn requiem high mass was sung.

Police reserves were on duty and roped off Forty-ninth street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. Only six hundred persons were permitted to pass these barriers. They were the only ones who carried printed invitations.

Pola and Jean Mourners.

Pola Negri, reported engaged to Valentino, was near collapse as the procession moved down Broadway. She arrived at the church at 10:30 o'clock with S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager; Mrs. Ullman, a phy-

CANTON GRAND JURY EXPECTED TO RETURN FROM THREE TO FIVE INDICTMENTS IN MURDER OF DON R. MELLETT, CRUSADING PUBLISHER

BY PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—A man whom officials declared is known to have driven the "death car," that carried the assassins of Don R. Mellett, will perhaps be called to testify before the grand jury following the testimony of Charles E. Morris, publisher of the Canton Daily News, it was definitely learned today.

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—The murder of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, will be reenacted and solved today before the Stark county grand jury picked to investigate the crime.

Officials conducting the grand jury action that is expected to result in from three to five murder indictments before the end of this week, so declared.

All of the special and regular investigating agencies today were of the emphatic opinion that drastic attempts to intimidate vital witnesses had failed.

Optimism for hurried "clean-up" of the murder that startled a nation today was at its highest ebb in investigating ranks.

The first witness expected to appear before the jurors today will be H. J. Burton, private detective who gathered evidence in Mellett's anti-vice crusade and who has assisted in investigating the publisher's murder.

Burton will be followed, it has been announced, by Charles E. Morris, successor of Mellett as publisher of the Canton Daily News, who is also editorial chief of the James M. Cox chain of newspapers.

Morris, who has been exceptionally active in carrying on a determined investigation into the assassination of his former friend and colleague, is expected to be before the jurors for several hours, and it has been predicted that he will make startling disclosures in the form of corroborated evidence.

Today or tomorrow, according to when Morris' testimony is concluded, a "key witness" will be taken before the investigating body. This witness, whose name is being withheld by authorities, is a Canton business man and the president of an association of persons claiming the same nationality here.

After admitting to authorities shortly following the murder of Mellett that he was an eye witness to certain situations immediately before and after the assassination, the man, evidently threatened, recently refused to relate his previous statements, officials said today.

Authorities expected, however, that he would tell his original story which is claimed to involve one member of the Canton police department as a plotter in the crime when called before the jury.

Two other men, looked upon as important witnesses by investigators, who will also be asked to testify this week, are Captain Ben Clarke, Bertillon chief of the Canton police department, and Detective Floyd Streitenberger, also of the local detective force.

Clarke is said to have made an investigation surrounding the Mellett home immediately after the murder.

Streitenberger is expected to be quizzed concerning the statement of Louis Mazer, accused of the Mellett murder, that he was at Streitenberger's home "treating a sick dog" during the time of the assassination.

HARVEST HOME OUTING HELD

L. J. Taber, Master of National Grange Give Address.

Approximately 1,000 people attended the annual harvest home or grange outing at Eagleton Glen Saturday for the purpose of hearing L. J. Taber, master of the national grange speak. He came to Salem direct from Williamsport, Pa., where he addressed a gathering of farmers Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Taber was introuced by W. A. Morris, lecturer of Pomona grange of Columbiana county.

Previous to the address of Mr. Taber, the Stoffer Sisters sang several selections.

Hays Sitler of Salem township was elected chairman of the picnic committee for the next two years, with G. C. Greenisen as vice chairman and Mrs. LeRoy Frederick of near Leetonia as secretary.

"History tells us," Mr. Taber said, "the social educational and economical condition of the people has improved in proportion as mechanical power has increased efficiency and lightened drudgery. Agriculture has kept pace with the manufacturing world in the use of labor saving conveniences. Its further progress, however, is in no small measure dependent on its small measure ability to harness modern agencies to assist the farmer in his daily toil. Electricity promises more to the arm and rural home than any other recent modern improvement. This afternoon, however, the three horse team that we shall discuss will not be purely of a mechanical nature but rather we shall discuss three great forces that will mould the future of rural life.

"Our team will be composed of organization, the church and the school. Or we might say, organization, religion and education are the great triumverate to pull agriculture upon a higher plane. The evener, or in farmer English the "three horse hitch needed is simply understanding and good will.

"It is well for us to remember that in one-hundred years the American farmer has increased his productive efficiency twelve hundred per cent. In the last decade his efficiency measured by the amount of food produced per man has increased eighteen per cent. But in spite of productive efficiency agriculture in a national way has not enjoyed a fair measure of prosperity. For proof, the mortgage indebtedness of the nation's farm indebtedness increased more than three billion in the decade. Tenantry has also increased indicating that there are problems that need considering.

"There has been much loose thinking and much propaganda spread broadcast relative to the farmers' condition and the remedies needed. It is a privilege to remind this group of Ohioans that they have a responsibility and an opportunity to see that their membership thinks soundly on this and kindred problems. There are three schools of thought dealing with the farm problem. The first I will call the hardshells who think that there is nothing that can be done, that the farmer must blindly work and toil and let fate bring what it may. Then there is the constructive school of thought, or those who believe that organization and co-operation will do for agriculture what they have done for industry, finance and labor.

"Lastly we have the "free ride" school, who think that the government must do for the farmer what he has failed to do for himself. We must discard the last school for in the end it will lead to the government regulations and socialistic control deadening rural life. The grange has been a mighty, constructive force and we must today keep agriculture on a sound footing and hold a sane, constructive program for the farmer.

"Having recently spent some weeks in Europe attending the European Institute of Agriculture at Rome and studying agriculture conditions in much of Europe, we come back convinced that southern Europe has but one lesson and that is what not to do. The low standards, the hard toil, the grinding economy of the French, Italian, Belgian and other south European peasants have no lesson for us. In Denmark, however, we find evidences of what organization, education and co-operation has done for this country. The standards of living have raised, the prosperity of the farmer has increased and the whole nation has improved because of a well balanced rural life.

"What a constructive program has done for Denmark the rightw type of program can do for America. Marketing production guided by intelligence and information, economy in government, proper enforcement of law and a host of religious problems can be made to add tremendously to rural prosperity within the next quarter of a century. But this program is impossible without the strengthening of our farm organization and the broadcasting of their field of work.

"Knowledge is power. Education can work wonders for th efuture of agriculture. Our schools, our agriculture colleges, our extension services, our boy's and girl's club work hold unlimited possibilities for good. More emphasis will need be placed on the farmers ecomomic problem in the coming years.

"I now come to the third in the team, the church, or rather we should say religion and morality, because without the finer virtues there can be no civilization worthy of the name. We Americans are prone to boast of our many blessings and forget our national failures. It is always a more pleasant achievement but this afternoon I must call attention to our apparent weakness. We are becoming a nation without proper respect for law. We have more murders per thousand than any other civilized nation. But more serious than this is the age of the present day criminal. A great western newspaper stated in 1925 that the majority of murders and hold-up crimes were committed by young men with an average age of little more than twenty-one years. There are many causes for this but the primary cause is our failure to properly respet law. We must awaken to our danger and think clearly on the problem. I have been stating that we could bring respect for law by first deporting every un-naturalized bootlegger, second, jail all naturalized ones, and lastly, trest the patron of the bootlegger like we do the bootlegger. We must realize that there would be no bootlegger problem were it not for the men who make it profitable. Every bootlegger is a potential murderer; he carries a gun; he operates under cover and those that patronize him are responsible for his crimes. When we recognize that the church and the Sunday school can become mighty agencies in bringing about respect for law and that they are the one force that can keep us in the right attitude toward life, we realize again that we dare not neglect this agency so essential for rural betterment and our national life.

"Let there radiate from the grange halls of Ohio, a determination to rekindle once again those fine qualities that enabled the pioneers from this territory to influence for good that life of the nation. We dare not allow this stronghold of patriotism and virtue to lower its standards or stop in its leadership.

"This has been a great year for the grange. Organizations have increased, our membership has strengthened and our work improved. At the beginning of the year our goal was set for each subordinate grange in the nation as follows; 1. An outstanding piece of community service. 2. Net gain in membership.

"We can not stress the request for community service too strongly. The grange that does something of a worth while and lasting character for the community in which it is located will grow and prosper. Grange suppers, grange entertainments and similar activities have their place and are a part of a worth while program. But do not forget that when your grange benefits the community life and stimuates its moral atmosphere you have rendered a contribution that will live after suppers and entertainments are forgotten."

In concluding Mr. Taber said, "take back to your membership not only renewed faith in the grange but in Ohio. Your agriculture is staging a comeback, You have advantages you farmers do not appreciate, lower freight rates, proximinty to markets, fine improvement and reasonable land values. Here is a challenge! To be worthy of Ohio.

HARVEST HOME OUTING HELD

L. J. Taber, Master of National Grange Give Address.

Approximately 1,000 people attended the annual harvest home or grange outing at Eagleton Glen Saturday for the purpose of hearing L. J. Taber, master of the national grange speak. He came to Salem direct from Williamsport, Pa., where he addressed a gathering of farmers Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Taber was introuced by W. A. Morris, lecturer of Pomona grange of Columbiana county.

Previous to the address of Mr. Taber, the Stoffer Sisters sang several selections.

Hays Sitler of Salem township was elected chairman of the picnic committee for the next two years, with G. C. Greenisen as vice chairman and Mrs. LeRoy Frederick of near Leetonia as secretary.

"History tells us," Mr. Taber said, "the social educational and economical condition of the people has improved in proportion as mechanical power has increased efficiency and lightened drudgery. Agriculture has kept pace with the manufacturing world in the use of labor saving conveniences. Its further progress, however, is in no small measure dependent on its small measure ability to harness modern agencies to assist the farmer in his daily toil. Electricity promises more to the arm and rural home than any other recent modern improvement. This afternoon, however, the three horse team that we shall discuss will not be purely of a mechanical nature but rather we shall discuss three great forces that will mould the future of rural life.

"Our team will be composed of organization, the church and the school. Or we might say, organization, religion and education are the great triumverate to pull agriculture upon a higher plane. The evener, or in farmer English the "three horse hitch needed is simply understanding and good will.

"It is well for us to remember that in one-hundred years the American farmer has increased his productive efficiency twelve hundred per cent. In the last decade his efficiency measured by the amount of food produced per man has increased eighteen per cent. But in spite of productive efficiency agriculture in a national way has not enjoyed a fair measure of prosperity. For proof, the mortgage indebtedness of the nation's farm indebtedness increased more than three billion in the decade. Tenantry has also increased indicating that there are problems that need considering.

"There has been much loose thinking and much propaganda spread broadcast relative to the farmers' condition and the remedies needed. It is a privilege to remind this group of Ohioans that they have a responsibility and an opportunity to see that their membership thinks soundly on this and kindred problems. There are three schools of thought dealing with the farm problem. The first I will call the hardshells who think that there is nothing that can be done, that the farmer must blindly work and toil and let fate bring what it may. Then there is the constructive school of thought, or those who believe that organization and co-operation will do for agriculture what they have done for industry, finance and labor.

"Lastly we have the "free ride" school, who think that the government must do for the farmer what he has failed to do for himself. We must discard the last school for in the end it will lead to the government regulations and socialistic control deadening rural life. The grange has been a mighty, constructive force and we must today keep agriculture on a sound footing and hold a sane, constructive program for the farmer.

"Having recently spent some weeks in Europe attending the European Institute of Agriculture at Rome and studying agriculture conditions in much of Europe, we come back convinced that southern Europe has but one lesson and that is what not to do. The low standards, the hard toil, the grinding economy of the French, Italian, Belgian and other south European peasants have no lesson for us. In Denmark, however, we find evidences of what organization, education and co-operation has done for this country. The standards of living have raised, the prosperity of the farmer has increased and the whole nation has improved because of a well balanced rural life.

"What a constructive program has done for Denmark the rightw type of program can do for America. Marketing production guided by intelligence and information, economy in government, proper enforcement of law and a host of religious problems can be made to add tremendously to rural prosperity within the next quarter of a century. But this program is impossible without the strengthening of our farm organization and the broad casting of their field of work.

"Knowledge is power. Education can work wonders for th efuture of agriculture. Our schools, our agriculture colleges, our extension services, our boy's and girl's club work hold unlimited possibilities for good. More emphasis will need be placed on the farmers ecomomic problem in the coming years.

"I now come to the third in the team, the church, or rather we should say religion and morality, because without the finer virtues there can be no civilization worthy of the name. We Americans are prone to boast of our many blessings and forget our national failures. It is always a more pleasant achievement but this afternoon I must call attention to our apparent weakness. We are becoming a nation without proper respect for law. We have more murders per thousand than any other civilized nation. But more serious than this is the age of the present day criminal. A great western newspaper stated in 1925 that the majority of murders and hold-up crimes were committed by young men with an average age of little more than twenty-one years. There are many causes for this but the primary cause is our failure to properly respet law. We must awaken to our danger and think clearly on the problem. I have been stating that we could bring respect for law by first deporting every un-naturalized bootlegger, second, jail all naturalized ones, and lastly, treat the patron of the bootlegger like we do the bootlegger. We must realize that there would be no bootlegger problem were it not for the men who make it profitable. Every bootlegger is a potential murderer; he carries a gun; he operates under cover and those that patronize him are responsible for his crimes. When we recognize that the church and the Sunday school can become mighty agencies in bringing about respect for law and that they are the one force that can keep us in the right attitude toward life, we realize again that we dare not neglect this agency so essential for rural betterment and our national life.

"Let there radiate from the grange halls of Ohio, a determination to rekindle once again those fine qualities that enabled the pioneers from this territory to influence for good that life of the nation. We dare not allow this stronghold of patriotism and virtue to lower its standards or stop in its leadership.

"This has been a great year for the grange. Organizations have increased, our membership has strengthened and our work improved. At the beginning of the year our goal was set for each subordinate grange in the nation as follows; 1. An outstanding piece of community service. 2. Net gain in membership.

"We can not stress the request for community service too strongly. The grange that does something of a worth while and lasting character for the community in which it is located will grow and prosper. Grange suppers, grange entertainments and similar activities have their place and are a part of a worth while program. But do not forget that when your grange benefits the community life and stimuates its moral atmosphere you have rendered a contribution that will live after suppers and entertainments are forgotten."

In concluding Mr. Taber said, "take back to your membership not only renewed faith in the grange but in Ohio. Your agriculture is staging a comeback. You have advantages you farmers do not appreciate, lower freight rates, proximinty to markets, fine improvement and reasonable land values. Here is a challenge! To be worthy of Ohio.

LIQUOR RAIDS NET CITY $800

Guy Sapanaro Fined $500; Ralph Martin Pays $300.

Two Saturday night liquor raids by local police will net the city $800.

Guy Sapanaro, charged with possessing intoxicating liquor, arrested at his place in Main street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, was assessed a fine of $500 and costs by Mayor W. L. Fogo at a hearing today, and Sapanaro made arrangements to pay it.

Ralph Martino, arrested on a similar charge, was fined $300 and costs. It was Martino's first offense.

Martino paid and was released, police announced.

The raiding party, headed by Acting Chief A. L. Newton, included Patrolmen Ed. Pugh and John Cole. Several quarts of liquor, in all, were confiscated at the two places.

SOLONS PLAN BOND ISSUE

Will be Submitted to Voters at General Election.

At a special session tonight in city hall, council will take preliminary action toward putting a bond issue of approximately $35,000 up to voters at the November general election.

The bond issue will be designed to include the cost of the proposed sewer improvement work in the west end of the city and the cost of a new "pumper" fire truck.

In view of recent occurrences, including the fire that wiped out the hotel building and threatened for a time the entire block, and the recent rain that practically inundated portions of the west end of the city, the solons are agreed that immediate action should be taken looking toward raising a fund for both the truck and the sewers.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN MACHINE

An automobile stolen from Riverside avenue Saturday night was recovered Sunday morning by local police and returned to its owner.

The car, belonging to Louis Little, who resides near Highlandtown, had been parked in Riverside avenue and when Little looked for it after making a call, it was gone.

Police traced the car out the Cemetery road and yesterday morning Mayor W. L. Fogo and Acting Chief A. L. Newton located it, abandoned, on the Bergholz hill, a short distance out of Salineville.

With the exception of the fact that the battery was dead, the automobile was not damaged.

ATTEND FUNERAL AT PAINESVILLE

Several local residents attended funeral services for the late Charles vzSnowden, formerly of this city, who died Thursday in a Cleveland hospital.

He was buried Saturday afternoon from the late residence in Painesville.

BIBLE NEVER WITH LIQUOR

Two Don't go Together Kansas Sheriff Says.

TOPEKO, Kan.—"You will not find booze and the Bible in the same house, in Kansas."

That was the message Sheriff Arthur Hamm of Jefferson county, brought to the congregation of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church in Topeka.

Sheriff Hamm said that he had learned that wherever he found a family Bible on the center table, that showed usage and its lids were not covered with dust, there was no "hootch" cache on such premises. It is in communities where the church is placed in the background that the sheriff's force has to work, he said.

Sheriff Hamm told of one community where everybody goes to church and did not have a disturbance serious enough to require a sheriff during his tenure of office.

British Soldiers are To Study Astronomy; Stars as Guides

LONDON.—British soldiers are all to become astronomers so they can find their way by the stars.

Duncan MacEwan, a Scot, has invented a little device that makes astronomy easy.

It is the ready reckoner of astronomy and Tommy Atkins could carry it in his waistcoat pocket, except that waistcoats are as scare in the army as white spats in a mining village.

It took MacEwan six years to induce the War office bureaucrats to take up his little scheme, but as it took Maxim seven years to get them to try his machine gun, MacEwan persisted.

"The object,' MacEwan said, "is to train the ordinary soldier to find his way by the stars by being able to read the heavens at a glance.

"The invention comprises two miniature domes of the heavens made of metal and are about the side of a watch.

"In these the constellations are perforated accurately and the soldier, by holding it to the sky, can locate the stars corresponding to the perforations and can thus make direct for a given spot."

G. A. R. MAY BE DISBANDED AT NEXT MEETING

CHARTERS RETURN

Youngest Vet is Now in His Seventies.

DES MOINES, Ia.—The Grand Army of the Republic is making its last stand.

Like good soldiers, their ranks thinned by age and disease, the old veterans know when to retreat. In the face of the last enemy, Death, which each year demands an appalling toll, their leaders feel it is time to set their camps in order and wait quietly for "Taps."

A committee consisting of former Governor Samuel R. Van Sant of Minnesota, Lewis Pilcher of New York and James Hanner of Washington, D. C., each having served as past national commander, will present a report to the forthcoming national encampment here Sept. 19-24, covering plans for disbandment and disposition of the funds and records of the organization.

The youngest civil war survivor is in the late seventies, records reveal. Each year, Grand Army officials and leaders say, it is becoming more difficult to keep the organization work moving. The ranks of the veterans are thinning in a larger ration year by year.

In many cities and villages of the country, where posts have flourished is has been necessary to abandon their charters.

The veterans hope that the patriotic program of their auxiliary, the Women's Relief Corps, may go on forever, but as for themselves, they falteringly admit, the time will come when they are through.

A vote will be taken at the meeting here in September whether they are to disband this year or postpone it a little longer, but at best it is agreed the time is short.

Bathing Costumes Banned for Street Wear In Paris

PARIS.—No more bathing-costumes on the street, in cafes and hotels. The Mayor of Parame on the Finistere coast, the center of many smart bathing resorts, has just made a proclamation to the effect that a bathing costume is not the same as a street one. It reads:

"It is henceforth strictly forbidden for holiday-makers and all others to station themselves on the dykes, in public streets, hotels and cafes while dressed in bathing suits.

"It is equally forbidden to circulate in the public streets. Whenever the bathing-suit is worn is must be completely covered by a closed dressing-gown reaching to the calf of the leg at least."

Egypt to Reduce Diplomatic Service As Economy Move

The commission proposes the abolition of the Egyptian legations and consulates in Brazil, Sweden, Switzeriand, Belgium, Spain, Czecho-slovakia, Holland Roumania.

All consulates in cities where legations exist will be suppressed, including those in New York, Liverpool, Lyons, Budapest, Hamburg, Naples and piraeus. In addition all charge d'affaires will be replaced by first secretaries, while all second secretaries, attached lawyers, and interpreters will be dismissed.

Spain plans to nationalize its automotive industry.

Russian Scientists Test Workability of New Television Machine

LENINGRAD.—A group of the most prominent Russian scientists has attested the workability of an apparatus just invented here in the Physical Roentgenological Institute for the projection of scenes by radio in the same manner as the familiar radio transmission of sound.

The machine, which may be called Television, does not merely transmit pictures, but, as in a mirror, reproduces on a screen what transpires at a distance. It is the realization, declares the Russians, of the long awaited dream of a machine which would do for the eyes what the telephone does for the ear.

The Academician Joffe, known abroad for his preeminent work in physics, declared the invention was of world importance.

LIQUOR RAIDS NET CITY $800

Guy Sapanaro Fined $500; Ralph Martin Pays $300.

Two Saturday night liquor raids by local police will net the city $800.

Guy Sapanaro, charged with possessing intoxicating liquor, arrested at his place in Main street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, was assessed a fine of $500 and costs by Mayor W. L. Fogo at a hearing today, and Sapanaro made arrangements to pay it.

Ralph Martino, arrested on a similar charge, was fined $300 and costs. It was Martino's first offense.

Martino paid and was released, police announced.

The raiding party, headed by Acting Chief A. L. Newton, included Patrolmen Ed. Pugh and John Cole. Several quarts of liquor, in all, were confiscated at the two places.

SOLONS PLAN BOND ISSUE

Will be Submitted to Voters at General Election.

At a special session tonight in city hall, council will take preliminary action toward putting a bond issue of approximately $35,000 up to voters at the November general election.

The bond issue will be designed to include the cost of the proposed sewer improvement work in the west end of the city and the cost of a new "pumper" fire truck.

In view of recent occurrences, including the fire that wiped out the hotel building and threatened for a time the entire block, and the recent rain that practically inundated portions of the west end of the city, the solons are agreed that immediate action should be taken looking toward raising a fund for both the truck and the sewers.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN MACHINE

An automobile stolen from Riverside avenue Saturday night was recovered Sunday morning by local police and returned to its owner.

The car, belonging to Louis Little, who resides near Highlandtown, had been parked in Riverside avenue and when Little looked for it after making a call, it was gone.

Police traced the car out the Cemetery road and yesterday morning Mayor W. L. Fogo and Acting Chief A. L. Newton located it, abandoned, on the Bergholz hill, a short distance out of Salineville.

With the exception of the fact that the battery was dead, the automobile was not damaged.

BIBLE NEVER WITH LIQUOR

Two Don't go Together Kansas Sheriff Says.

TOPEKO, Kan.—"You will not find booze and the Bible in the same house, in Kansas."

That was the message Sheriff Arthur Hamm of Jefferson county, brought to the congregation of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church in Topeka.

Sheriff Hamm said that he had learned that wherever he found a family Bible on the center table, that showed usage and its lids were not covered with dust, there was no "hootch" cache on such premises. It is in communities where the church is placed in the background that the sheriff's force has to work, he said.

Sheriff Hamm told of one community where everybody goes to church and did not have a disturbance serious enough to require a sheriff during his tenure of office.

British Soldiers are To Study Astronomy; Stars as Guides

LONDON.—British soldiers are all to become astronomers so they can find their way by the stars.

Duncan MacEwan, a Scot, has invented a little device that makes astronomy easy.

It is the ready reckoner of astronomy and Tommy Atkins could carry it in his waistcoat pocket, except that waistcoats are as scare in the army as white spats in a mining village.

It took MacEwan six years to induce the War office bureaucrats to take up his little scheme, but as it took Maxim seven years to get them to try his machine gun, MacEwan persisted.

"The object,' MacEwan said, "is to train the ordinary soldier to find his way by the stars by being able to read the heavens at a glance.

"The invention comprises two miniature domes of the heavens made of metal and are about the side of a watch.

"In these the constellations are perforated accurately and the soldier, by holding it to the sky, can locate the stars corresponding to the perforations and can thus make direct for a given spot."

G. A. R. MAY BE DISBANDED AT NEXT MEETING

CHARTERS RETURN

Youngest Vet is Now in His Seventies.

DES MOINES, Ia.—The Grand Army of the Republic is making its last stand.

Like good soldiers, their ranks thinned by age and disease, the old veterans know when to retreat. In the face of the last enemy, Death, which each year demands an appalling toll, their leaders feel it is time to set their camps in order and wait quietly for "Taps."

A committee consisting of former Governor Samuel R. Van Sant of Minnesota, Lewis Pilcher of New York and James Hanner of Washington, D. C., each having served as past national commander, will present a report to the forthcoming national encampment here Sept. 19-24, covering plans for disbandment and disposition of the funds and records of the organization.

The youngest civil war survivor is in the late seventies, records reveal. Each year, Grand Army officials and leaders say, it is becoming more difficult to keep the organization work moving. The ranks of the veterans are thinning in a larger ration year by year.

In many cities and villages of the country, where posts have flourished is has been necessary to abandon their charters.

The veterans hope that the patriotic program of their auxiliary, the Women's Relief Corps, may go on forever, but as for themselves, they falteringly admit, the time will come when they are through.

A vote will be taken at the meeting here in September whether they are to disband this year or postpone it a little longer, but at best it is agreed the time is short.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

A Queen Comes

Queen Marie of Roumania is coming to visit the United States in October. This is good news to our democratic people. It is seldom that a real queen comes here. We are lucky to get a princess.

Better still, this good and deservedly popular queen intends to travel about the country mostly by automobile, in order to see our land at closer quarters and get a more intimate view of American life. Ordinarily, visiting notables see very little of America—only a few high spots of scenery and society.

As for society, the queen cleverly dodges that. She will stay at hotels, not visiting at private homes, it is explained, because she will travel not incognito, but in her own right as queen, and so couldn't be a private guest. Which is as good an explanation as any for avoiding the social pitfalls of the New World. But there will be wailing in the home of many an ambitious social leader.

The Auto Pound

The horse and cattle pound is an almost forgotten institution. The dog pound, as a refuge and prison for strays, is still extant. Now comes the automobile pound, which serves a purpose different from any of its predecessors.

It is used to corral the cars of motorists from afar, who disregard the local traffic rules, in a city that has suffered much from such violations. The local offender can usually be dealt with satisfactorily in the usual way. He is given a summons to appear at police court, and he obeys. The "foreign" motorist blithely disregards such a summons, and is in the next county or state before anything can be done about him. So there is no longer any dallying about it.

When a car bearing a license plate of another state is found encumbering traffic by being parked where it has no business to be, a police towing truck appears, hoists its rear wheels off the ground and tows it ignominiously backward to the city pound, where it remains until the owner, coming in to complain about his car being "stolen," reclaims it by paying the towing charge and a small fine.

It is rather severe treatment for stranger-guests, but probably deserved in most cases. If it is more widely applied, instead of acting as if they were above the law, as they often do, visiting motorists will soon start treating local traffic regulations everywhere with more respect.

The Next Dance

Ned Weyburn, stage dancing instructor, defending the Charleston, says that while this lively dance is the outcome of post-war restlessness, it has basic merit in it and so will continue to live.

Furthermore, he insists, it is "a moral dance," since it keeps the dancers apart—they have to stand "from four to six inches from each other." That at least is something, as any observer of recent dancing styles must admit.

Some of the dancing masters, however, insist that the Charleston already faces its successors. The "Spanish fox trot" is hailed as a conqueror. A feminine dancing teacher characterizes it as "without the vulgarity of the Charleston, and destined to satisfy the modern desire for new steps."

We shall see next winter. But generally speaking, "new steps" have the call. And in that very fact is hope for moralists and reformers.

If a dance or a style is bad, be sure that it will soon be followed by something also. The good likewise may be superseded. But optimists, at least, are inclined to believe that, as a general rule, in any field of human experience, the good lasts longer than the bad.

Rain

Christians in South Carolina prayed for rain recently after a long period of drought, and the rain promptly came in such volume as to wash away some of the crops that otherwise would have been burned up.

Therefore the Hopi Indians, at their annual snake dance in Arizona, prayed for rain to their heathen gods, and within two hours the dry desert stream-beds were filled with torrents of muddy, ushing water.

It was said of old, "It raineth upon the just and upon the unjust." Also that "the prayer of a righteous man availeth much." Even a heathen "snake-dancer" may be righteous according to his light. But let us not carry this hesitent comment too far, lest we get into trouble with some Christian or Hopi fundamentalist.

General Motors

Good morning! Have you a little General Motors in your home? Nice day, isn't it?

If you haven't any—or perhaps even if you have—the chances are that at this moment you are contemplating the purchase of another motor car or a little iceless refrigeration, or any one of a number of things which will make a future day still brighter for the General Motors family.

That $600,000,000 melon sounds like rather a cheerful thing, all in all. Fine for those who got a slice. And fine for those who didn't, because they can sell something or collect something from those who did.

The Little Scorpion's Club— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Diary of a modern Pepys. Up and sat awhile with Dan McKetrick, who abandoned journalism to manage prize fighters, and he asserted the most honorable fighter he ever encountered was Joe Jeanette, a colored man. Yet praised others.

I cast an opinion the cleanest minded fellow fighting today is Gene Tunney, and so to walk through town and met up with George Rector and told him how greatly I enjoyed his recent memoirs of other cafe days on Broadway, and he seemed pleased.

Home and found Roy Howard who dropped in a moment to say farewell against joining his family in Europe and then to my trifling labours until far into the night and to bed.

Passing the Lamb's theatrical club the other evening, I counted three distinguished actors among a group idling at the entrance. Not one has had an engagement for months. The public as well as the players themselves little realize that outside of New York a theatrical famine has hit the land. It is a bleak outlook for the legitimate player.

First class theatrical ventures no longer go trouping. A year's run on Broadway does not mean a thing in the out country. The only possible reward for a successful season on Broadway today is a brief engagement in London or Paris. Or a chance in the movies.

There are—outside of Chicago—few one night or one week stands. A theatrical paper records that not a single "original cast" of a successful play will be sent on tour the coming season. The answer is simple. All theatres catering to such attractions in other cities have become movie houses.

I sometimes wonder if vaudeville is losing its grip although I hope not. A recent visit to a large vaudeville house on Saturday night—revealed a handful of people. It was sultry and that may have contributed to slim attendance but there was a lethargy I never noticed before. I have thought vaudeville the finest of light entertainment and it would be calamitous for it to suffer the fate of the so-called legitimate drama.

Even the Ziegfeld Follies is passing to the limbo of forgotten things, for with dissolving of that corporation the usual summer pleasantry is known as Ziegfeld's Revue.

I recently crossed the ocean on the same vesel with Lee Shubert and could not help but observe the change that has come to showmen. Shubert is the neatly dressed type of aggressive business man found everywhere. Showmen were once spotted by their silk hat, embroidered vest or gold knobbed cane.

Andy Spears was the only residental showman of my town. He "wintered" there and spelled romance to youth, for in the Spring he started on tour with "The Andy Spears' Greater Canine Carnival"—consisting of Andy, Mrs. Spears, nine dogs and a tent accommodating an audience of about 50. Mrs. Spears wore a spangled dress in the arena and Prof. Spears a white high hat and gold embroiderey coat. They certainly looked elegant.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Adirondack Country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—More Americans have visited the Adirondacks this season than in any other season in the history of that great playground of the East because of the presence there of President Coolidge. Camps, hotels and boarding houses have been filled to overflowing by tourists who have flocked to this picteresque section, curiosity having prompted them to see what manner of region the president has sought for his holiday.

What they see must satisfy more than their curiosity for the Adirondacks contain a wealth of splendid scenery worth seeing by others than presidents. Mr. Coolidge is the second president who has been attracted to this domain, Grover Cleveland having regarded it as a favorite camping, hunting, and fishing ground. One diference in the relaxations of the two chief executives, however, is that while Mr. Coolidge is so much an amateur at outdoor sport that his catch of a single fish was broadcast far and wide through the press, Mr. Cleveland had made a name for himself as an ardent hunter and fisher before ever, he came to the White House.

Singularly enough an interesting connection exists between the visits of the two presidents to Paul Smith's. The story in the Adirondacks is that President Cleveland employed Paul Smith as his guide and companion on his ventures into the wilds. President Coolidge now makes his headquarters at the village named after the long dead mighty hunter and guide.

Let there be no mistake about the need of a guide in the Adirondacks. Perhaps hardy westerners of the Rocky mountains may sneer at the idea of say eastern mountains being wild or rugged enough to daunt the climber or hunter. But many a man has been lost in these wilds where one can get almost as far away from a human habitation as in the west.

One of the highest mountains is Whiteface which rises from Lake Placid. In altitude it does not compare with the great peaks of the Rockies, but it is high enough so that for most of the months in the year its sharp peak is capped with snow.

Resemble Scotland's Hills.

The mountains of this region are not softly tree-covered as those of the Applachian range further to the south but are gaunt and for the most part treeless, not distantly resembling the grey hills of Scotland.

Wild game is at home in these regions. Deer are so numerous that sometimes they come down and graze in the open fields and occasionally even a bear is driven by hunger into a farmyard. In the open season, during the Autumn, one sees automobiles on the roads with great bucks loaded into them and once in a while the huge bulk of a bear.

The valleys are fertile in most cases and there grows the greenest grass in the world. Even under dense trees, in deep shade, where grass usually does not thrive, it will be found growing luxuriantly. Many varieties of trees abound, but the most beautiful is the silver birch, the gleaming trunks and branches of which literally shine against the deep green of the foliage.

But in one sense it can scarcely be said that there are many valleys, for what ordinarily would be valleys, that is deep and wide and long ravines between the ranges of mountains, are lakes. The lakes are so numerous that a list of their names would be almost like a telephone directory. Lake Champlain and Lake George are well known but there are also Upper and Lower Saranac Lakes, Tupper Lake, Lake Clear, Raquette Lake, Loon Lake, Schroon Lake, Lake Placid, and, perhaps the most beautiful of them all, Mirror Lake.

Through some old geographical anomaly, the town of Lake Placid is not on Lake Placid at all but is on Mirror Lake. True, one end of Mirror Lake extends so close to Lake Placid that canoeists put their craft on a pair of wheels and push them about two hundred yards overland when they want to go from one lake to the other. A lane through the trees has been opened for this purpose. There it is called the Carry-over as in the west it is called the Portage. The famous winter sports for which the town of Lake Placid is famous in reality take place on Mirror Lake.

Lake Placid is perhaps one of the most unusual towns in the country. With a population, normally, of only about two thousand, it boasts probably the heaviest automobile traffic of any town of its size. With but one main thoroughfare, fairly wide and well paved, it is alive with a constant whizzing of cars. Also the shops of this little town compare favorably with those of Fifth Avenue. A tiny building which to the casual observer would look from its exterior like a cross-roads general store will display the latest models from Paris.

Playground of the Wealthy.

All this is explained by the fact that in the hotels and the camps surrounding the two lakes live some of the richest people in the country. These camps are more than the name implies. Hidden in the woods one may stumble upon mansions of tremendous size and splendor. There are scores of them, each screened from the others by the dense forest. Winding trails lead to them. Their owners may spend a month or two in them in the summer season and perhaps a week or two during the winter sports. At other times all these great houses stand vacant.

In some respects much the same description may apply to Saranac Lake, although Saranac is more a health resort than a pleasure reesort.

The air of Saranac is supposed to be particularly salubrious for tubercular persons and there is established a great sanitarium for the treatment of the tubercular. It was founded by the eminent physician Trudeau and one of the most interesting memorials in the country is that erected to him by grateful patients whom he had benefited. On the very verge of a mountain is his carven figure, of heroic size, seated and gazing out across miles and miles of valley to the next range of mountains in the blue distance.

Of interest from the economic point of view is the fact that the region has no industries. Excepting for a few valleys, the land is so barren, stony, and precipitous that cultivation is impracticable. Lumbering would be a greater industry than it is were it not for the fact that the wealthy owners of the camps hold extensive tracts which they desire to preserve in their wild state. The native population lives largely on the tourist and summer camp trade.

That the country is a healthful one is evidenced by many items which appear in the newspapers of the Adirondack towns. In every issue will be some article announcing the death of so-and-so at the age of 90 or the fact that such-and-such a man gave a party on his hundredth birthday.

For the most part the roads of the Adirondacks are excellent and well maintained. In the winter when the thermometer drops to 20 and 30 degrees below zero they are not so passable on account of the drifted snow.

Hawkins describes his view of the phantom:

"An orange red glow, that did not throw any reflection, such as an automobile headlight might have thrown. To the watchers it was visible below a small catalpa tree at the graveyard entrance, so it must have been close to the ground.

"Lon Bryant and one of the other reporters rushed to the cross roads. There was nothing to be seen—a light shower that had settled the dust had made it perfectly impossible to see any tracks that might have been made, but there were none."

So the spook of Old Ruby will continue to wander through the deserted streets, and caper in its playground at the graveyard until someone finds an explanation of its existence.

Probably the Autumn is the finest season in this domain. The trees of a northern climate always take on more brilliant colorings than those of the south. They march up the sides of the mountains to where the rocks begin, and to the snow line, garbed in flaming reds and oranges and purples and yellows—every hue of the spectrum—and along the lakesides they are reflected in the still waters making a double mass of varigated color—as though the gods had tossed their palettes carelessly there. And in Spring when the first brilliant green leaves of the birches shoot forth from their silver stems another picture is produced.

This is the sort of country the president chose for his holiday. It will be interesting to note whether he thinks enough of it to return next year.

This little story has one merit, at least. Of my own personal knowledge I can testify that it is true.

A tired business man in New York, coming home after a particularly enervating day, had occasion, or thought he had, to speak sharp words of reproof to his eight-year-old son. He wound up by sending the youngster to bed without any supper.

That night, stealing into the youngster's room to see whether he had fallen asleep, his mother found him wide awake and very scornful of her advances.

"Why, Jackie," she said, "you shouldn't be surly toward me just because your father scolded you. I'm not to blame."

"Yes," you are too!" stated Jackie. "You married the big stiff, and now I got to stand for him!"

A Queen Comes

Queen Marie of Roumania is coming to visit the United States in October. This is good news to our democratic people. It is seldom that a real queen comes here. We are lucky to get a princess.

Better still, this good and deservedly popular queen intends to travel about the country mostly by automobile, in order to see our land at closer quarters and get a more intimate view of American life. Ordinarily, visiting notables see very little of America—only a few high spots of scenery and society.

As for society, the queen cleverly dodges that. She will stay at hotels, not visiting at private homes, it is explained, because she will travel not incognito, but in her own right as queen, and so couldn't be a private guest. Which is as good an explanation as any for avoiding the social pitfalls of the New World. But there will be wailing in the home of many an ambitious social leader.

The Auto Pound

The horse and cattle pound is an almost forgotten institution. The dog pound, as a refuge and prison for strays, is still extant. Now comes the automobile pound, which serves a purpose different from any of its predecessors.

It is used to corral the cars of motorists from afar, who disregard the local traffic rules, in a city that has suffered much from such violations. The local offender can usually be dealt with satisfactorily in the usual way. He is given a summons to appear at police court, and he obeys. The "foreign" motorist blithely disregards such a summons, and is in the next county or state before anything can be done about him. So there is no longer any dallying about it.

When a car bearing a license plate of another state is found encumbering traffic by being parked where it has no business to be, a police towing truck appears, hoists its rear wheels off the ground and tows it ignominiously backward to the city pound, where it remains until the owner, coming in to complain about his car being "stolen," reclaims it by paying the towing charge and a small fine.

It is rather severe treatment for stranger-guests, but probably deserved in most cases. If it is more widely applied, instead of acting as if they were above the law, as they often do, visiting motorists will soon start treating local traffic regulations everywhere with more respect.

The Next Dance

Ned Weyburn, stage dancing instructor, defending the Charleston, says that while this lively dance is the outcome of post-war restlessness, it has basic merit in it and so will continue to live.

Furthermore, he insists, it is "a moral dance," since it keeps the dancers apart—they have to stand "from four to six inches from each other." That at least is something, as any observer of recent dancing styles must admit.

Some of the dancing masters, however, insist that the Charleston already faces its successors. The "Spanish fox trot" is hailed as a conqueror. A feminine dancing teacher characterizes it as "without the vulgarity of the Charleston, and destined to satisfy the modern desire for new steps."

We shall see next winter. But generally speaking, "new steps" have the call. And in that very fact is hope for moralists and reformers.

If a dance or a style is bad, be sure that it will soon be followed by something also. The good likewise may be superseded. But optimists, at least, are inclined to believe that, as a general rule, in any field of human experience, the good lasts longer than the bad.

Rain

Christians in South Carolina prayed for rain recently after a long period of drought, and the rain promptly came in such volume as to wash away some of the crops that otherwise would have been burned up.

Therefore the Hopi Indians, at their annual snake dance in Arizona, prayed for rain to their heathen gods, and within two hours the dry desert stream-beds were filled with torrents of muddy, ushing water.

It was said of old, "It raineth upon the just and upon the unjust." Also that "the prayer of a righteous man evaileth much." Even a heathen "snake-dancer" may be righteous according to his light. But let us not carry this hesitent comment too far, lest we get into trouble with some Christian or Hopi fundamentalist.

General Motors

Good morning! Have you a little General Motors in your home? Nice day, isn't it?

If you haven't any—or perhaps even if you have—the chances are that at this moment you are contemplating the purchase of another motor car or a little iceless refrigeration, or any one of a number of things which will make a future day still brighter for the General Motors family.

That $600,000,000 melon sounds like rather a cheerful thing, all in all. Fine for those who got a slice. And fine for those who didn't, because they can sell something or collect something from those who did.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Diary of a modern Pepys. Up and sat awhile with Dan McKetrick, who abandoned journalism to manage prize fighters, and he asserted the most honorable fighter he ever encountered was Joe Jeanette, a colored man. Yet praised others.

I cast an opinion the cleanest minded fellow fighting today is Gene Tunney, and so to walk through town and met up with George Rector and told him how greatly I enjoyed his recent memoirs of other cafe days on Broadway, and he seemed pleased.

Home and found Roy Howard who dropped in a moment to say farewell against joining his family in Europe and then to my trifling labours until far into the night and to bed.

Passing the Lamb's theatrical club the other evening, I counted three distinguished actors among a group idling at the entrance. Not one has had an engagement for months. The public as well as the players themselves little realize that outside of New York a theatrical famine has hit the land. It is a bleak outlook for the legitimate player.

First class theatrical ventures no longer go trouping. A year's run on Broadway does not mean a thing in the out country. The only possible reward for a successful season on Broadway today is a brief engagement in London or Paris. Or a chance in the movies.

There are—outside of Chicago—few one night or one week stands. A theatrical paper records that not a single "original cast" of a successful play will be sent on tour the coming season. The answer is simple. All theatres catering to such attractions in other cities have become movie houses.

I sometimes wonder if vaudeville is losing its grip although I hope not. A recent visit to a large vaudeville house on Saturday night—revealed a handful of people. It was sultry and that may have contributed to slim attendance but there was a lethargy I never noticed before. I have thought vaudeville the finest of light entertainment and it would be calamitous for it to suffer the fate of the so-called legitimate drama.

Even the Ziegfeld Follies is passing to the limbo of forgotten things, for with dissolving of that corporation the usual summer pleasantry is known as Ziegfeld's Revue.

I recently crossed the ocean on the same vesel with Lee Shubert and could not help but observe the change that has come to showmen. Shubert is the neatly dressed type of aggressive business man found everywhere. Showmen were once spotted by their silk hat, embroidered vest or gold knobbed cane.

Andy Spears was the only residental showman of my town. He "wintered" there and spelled romance to youth, for in the Spring he started on tour with "The Andy Spears' Greater Canine Carnival"—consisting of Andy, Mrs. Spears, nine dogs and a tent accommodating an audience of about 50. Mrs. Spears wore a spangled dress in the arena and Prof. Spears a white high hat and gold embroiderey coat. They certainly looked elegant.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Adirondack Country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—More Americans have visited the Adirondacks this season than in any other season in the history of that great playground of the East because of the presence there of President Coolidge. Camps, hotels and boarding houses have been filled to overflowing by tourists who have flocked to this picteresque section, curiosity having prompted them to see what manner of region the president has sought for his holiday.

What they see must satisfy more than their curiosity for the Adirondacks contain a wealth of splendid scenery worth seeing by others than presidents. Mr. Coolidge is the second president who has been attracted to this domain, Grover Cleveland having regarded it as a favorite camping, hunting, and fishing ground. One diference in the relaxations of the two chief executives, however, is that while Mr. Coolidge is so much an amateur at outdoor sport that his catch of a single fish was broadcast far and wide through the press, Mr. Cleveland had made a name for himself as an ardent hunter and fisher before ever, he came to the White House.

Singularly enough an interesting connection exists between the visits of the two presidents to Paul Smith's. The story in the Adirondacks is that President Cleveland employed Paul Smith as his guide and companion on his ventures into the wilds. President Coolidge now makes his headquarters at the village named after the long dead mighty hunter and guide.

Let there be no mistake about the need of a guide in the Adirondacks. Perhaps hardy westerners of the Rocky mountains may sneer at the idea of any eastern mountains being wild or rugged enough to daunt the climber or hunter. But many a man has been lost in these wilds where one can get almost as far away from a human habitation as in the west.

One of the highest mountains is Whiteface which rises from Lake Placid. In altitude it does not compare with the great peaks of the Rockies, but it is high enough so that for most of the months in the year its sharp peak is capped with snow.

Resemble Scotland's Hills.

The mountains of this region are not softly tree-covered as those of the Applachian range further to the south but are gaunt and for the most part treeless, not distantly resembling the grey hills of Scotland.

Wild game is at home in these regions. Deer are so numerous that sometimes they come down and graze in the open fields and occasionally even a bear is driven by hunger into a farmyard. In the open season, during the Autumn, one sees automobiles on the roads with great bucks loaded into them and once in a while the huge bulk of a bear.

The valleys are fertile in most cases and there grows the greenest grass in the world. Even under dense trees, in deep shade, where grass usually does not thrive, it will be found growing luxuriantly. Many varieties of trees abound, but the most beautiful is the silver birch, the gleaming trunks and branches of which literally shine against the deep green of the foliage.

But in one sense it can scarcely be said that there are many valleys, for what ordinarily would be valleys, that is deep and wide and long ravines between the ranges of mountains, are lakes. The lakes are so numerous that a list of their names would be almost like a telephone directory. Lake Champlain and Lake George are well known but there are also Upper and Lower Saranac Lakes, Tupper Lake, Lake Clear, Raquette Lake, Loon Lake, Schroon Lake, Lake Placid, and, perhaps the most beautiful of them all, Mirror Lake.

Through some old geographical anomaly, the town of Lake Placid is not on Lake Placid at all but is on Mirror Lake. True, one end of Mirror Lake extends so close to Lake Placid that canoeists put their craft on a pair of wheels and push them about two hundred yards overland when they want to go from one lake to the other. A lane through the trees has been opened for this purpose. There it is called the Carry-over as in the west it is called the Portage. The famous winter sports for which the town of Lake Placid is famous in reality take place on Mirror Lake.

Lake Placid is perhaps one of the most unusual towns in the country. With a population, normally, of only about two thousand, it boasts probably the heaviest automobile traffic of any town of its size. With but one main thoroughfare, fairly wide and well paved, it is alive with a constant whizzing of cars. Also the shops of this little town compare favorably with those of Fifth Avenue. A tiny building which to the casual observer would look from its exterior like a cross-roads general store will display the latest models from Paris.

All this is explained by the fact that in the hotels and the camps surrounding the two lakes live some of the richest people in the country. These camps are more than the name implies. Hidden in the woods one may stumble upon mansions of tremendous size and splendor. There are scores of them, each screened from the others by the dense forest. Winding trails lead to them. Their owners may spend a month or two in them in the summer season and perhaps a week or two during the winter sports. At other times all these great houses stand vacant.

In some respects much the same description may apply to Saranac Lake, although Saranac is more a health resort than a pleasure reesort. The air of Saranac is supposed to be particularly salubrious for tubercular persons and there is established a great sanitarium for the treatment of the tubercular. It was founded by the eminent physician Trudeau and one of the most interesting memorials in the country is that erected to him by grateful patients whom he had benefited. On the very verge of a mountain is his carven figure, of heroic size, seated and gazing out across miles and miles of valley to the next range of mountains in the blue distance.

Of interest from the economic point of view is the fact that the region has no industries. Excepting for a few valleys, the land is so barren, stony, and precipitous that cultivation is impracticable. Lumbering would be a greater industry than it is were it not for the fact that the wealthy owners of the camps hold extensive tracts which they desire to preserve in their wild state. The native population lives largely on the tourist and summer camp trade.

That the country is a healthful one is evidenced by many items which appear in the newspapers of the Adirondack towns. In every issue will be some article announcing the death of so-and-so at the age of 90 or the fact that such-and-such a man gave a party on his hundredth birthday.

COLLEGE LIFE IS REPRODUCED

Jack Conway Starred in "Brown of Harvard" Film.

Dozens of the most important colleges in the United States and one English university are represented in the production of "Brown of Harvard," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which opens a three-day engagement at the Ceramic theatre today.

First of all, of course, there is Harvard. Many of the scenes of the picture were taken in and about Cambridge, Mass., and shots of the 1925 football game between Harvard and Yale have been incorporated in the released version.

Then Yale comes in for a bow in the person of Donald Ogden Stewart, who worked with director Jack Conway on the comedy construction of "Brown." Stewart is a graduate of Yale. Seton I. Miller, who plays a small part in the picture is also a Yale man, having finished last year.

For the freshman crew race as depicted in the production, the University of California crew doubled for both Harvard and Yale. These scenes were photographed in San Francisco.

Then the University of Southern California football team, played for the closeup shots of the Yale-Harvard game, with William Haines, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Guinn Williams and other members of the cast appearing with the team.

"Brown of Harvard" was adapted to the screen by A. P. Younger from the stage success by Rida Johnson Young. The play enjoyed enormous popularity behind the footlights and is one of the truest and finests stories of college life filmed. The sport scenes are among the most exciting ever filmed and have been woven into an utterly captivating love story.

'SIBERIA' OPENS AT COLUMBIA

Bartley Campbell's Play Here for Two Days.

Fox Films officials, in selecting the cast for "Siberia," screen version of Bartley Campbell's memorable play which opens a two-day engagement at the Columbia theatre beginning today, carried out their determination to fill the respective parts with the best-known and most talented actors available. As a consequence, this Victor Schertzinger production boasts one of the most pretentious casts ever assembled on the West Coast.

Alma Rubens, seen in the leading feminine role, has long been one of America's foremost screen stars. She has starred in numerous successes, but no role in which she has appeared in recent months fits her more admirably than that of "Sonia," the hectored daughter of a Russian overlord.

Edmund Lowe, cast as a dashing officer of the Czar's Guard, plays opposite Miss Rubens with his usual enthusiasm. Although this role is wholly different from any he has yet essayed, Lowe found little difficulty in adapting himself to the Russian surroundings Shcertzinger is authority for the statement that Lowe gives one of the most sympathetic portrayals of his career.

Do You Believe You Can Be Thin And Healthy, Too?

MAKES STARTLING STATEMENTS

Excessive thinness should not be confused with attractive and perfectly healthy slenderness. One does not need to be "fat" in order to be healthy—slenderness is not skinniness—but men and women of subnormal weight, who do not look or feel at their best, should honestly try to correct their weakness at once!

Those who treat the matter lightly or try to "laugh it off" by blaming their "thinness" on family characteristics are doing themselves a grave injustice and are seemingly blind to well-known facts.

Thinness invariably means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means a weakened condition and resistance—poor resistance means an easy prey (a waiting victim) for practically every disease that may come along. One does not need to be a Doctor to understand these things. Common Sense, observation and the fact that Life Insurance Companies absolutely refuse to sell Insurance to those who are "too thin" furnish convincing daily proofs—that one cannot be very much underweight and healthy, too!

Every day of delay increases the difficulty of best results from proper treatment—so, if you or any of your friends are excessively thin, don't wait, but start doing something about it at once. In the opinion of the writer, one of the best and simplest means of proper treatment is a few weeks' use of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Tiny, tasteless tablets—containing the well known concentrated flesh-building value, the physical power and strength of Cod Livers—minus the offensive odor and terrible taste. A wonderful tonic and builder recommended and supplied by Mathews Medicine store and all good druggists—60 tablets 60c—on a money back if not satisfied plan. Nearly 20 million McCoy's tablets sold last month, and wonderful reports of "gains in weight" received almost every day. Ask your druggist.

COLLEGE LIFE IS REPRODUCED

Jack Conway Starred in "Brown of Harvard" Film.

Dozens of the most important colleges in the United States and one English university are represented in the production of "Brown of Harvard," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which opens a three-day engagement at the Ceramic theatre today.

First of all, of course, there is Harvard. Many of the scenes of the picture were taken in and about Cambridge, Mass., and shots of the 1925 football game between Harvard and Yale have been incorporated in the released version.

Then Yale comes in for a bow in the person of Donald Ogden Stewart, who worked with director Jack Conway on the comedy construction of "Brown." Stewart is a graduate of Yale. Seton I. Miller, who plays a small part in the picture is also a Yale man, having finished last year.

For the freshman crew race as depicted in the production, the University of California crew doubled for both Harvard and Yale. These scenes were photographed in San Francisco.

Then the University of Southern California football team, played for the closeup shots of the Yale-Harvard game, with William Haines, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Guinn Williams and other members of the cast appearing with the team.

"Brown of Harvard" was adapted to the screen by A. P. Younger from the stage success by Rida Johnson Young. The play enjoyed enormous popularity behind the footlights and is one of the truest and finests stories of college life filmed. The sport scenes are among the most exciting ever filmed and have been woven into an utterly captivating love story.

'SIBERIA' OPENS AT COLUMBIA

Bartley Campbell's Play Here for Two Days.

Fox Films officials, in selecting the cast for "Siberia," screen version of Bartley Campbell's memorable play which opens a two-day engagement at the Columbia theatre beginning today, carried out their determination to fill the respective parts with the best-known and most talented actors available. As a consequence, this Victor Schertzinger production boasts one of the most pretentious casts ever assembled on the West Coast.

Alma Rubens, seen in the leading feminine role, has long been one of America's foremost screen stars. She has starred in numerous successes, but no role in which she has appeared in recent months fits her more admirably than that of "Sonia," the hectored daughter of a Russian overlord.

Edmund Lowe, cast as a dashing officer of the Czar's Guard, plays opposite Miss Rubens with his usual enthusiasm. Although this role is wholly different from any he has yet essayed, Lowe found little difficulty in adapting himself to the Russian surroundings Shcertzinger is authority for the statement that Lowe gives one of the most sympathetic portrayals of his career.

Do You Believe You Can Be Thin And Healthy, Too?

MAKES STARTLING STATEMENTS

Excessive thinness should not be confused with attractive and perfectly healthy slenderness. One does not need to be "fat" in order to be healthy—slenderness is not skinniness—but men and women of subnormal weight, who do not look or feel at their best, should honestly try to correct their weakness at once!

Those who treat the matter lightly or try to "laugh it off" by blaming their "thinness" on family characteristics are doing themselves a grave injustice and are seemingly blind to well-known facts.

Thinness invariably means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means a weakened condition and resistance—poor resistance means an easy prey (a waiting victim) for practically every disease that may come along. One does not need to be a Doctor to understand these things. Common Sense, observation and the fact that Life Insurance Companies absolutely refuse to sell Insurance to those who are "too thin" furnish convincing daily proofs—that one cannot be very much underweight and healthy, too!

Every day of delay increases the difficulty of best results from proper treatment—so, if you or any of your friends are excessively thin, don't wait, but start doing something about it at once. In the opinion of the writer, one of the best and simplest means of proper treatment is a few weeks' use of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Railroad stocks and specialties advanced to slightly higher price levels in the early trading today, in a market which displayed the usual irregularities for the opening session of a week.

ADMIT ATTACK

Two Confess, Police Say, Second County Job.

Attempted robbery of the Charles H. Loop filing station, Lisbon-Salem road near McCracken's corners, late Friday night, was cleared today, police believe with the arrest of four young men, who are said to have admitted they assaulted Loop.

Merle Young, 19, Salem; William Kirby, 24, Alliance; Phillip Longstreth, 20, Johnstown, Pa., and Francis Teloskey, 20, Altoona, Pa., are in the county jail at Lisbon awaiting grand jury action upon charges of highway robbery and assault with intent to kill, following their arrest in Salem late Saturday night.

According to police, Young and Kirby confessed they attempted to hold up and rob Myron Kelly, proprietor of a general store at Teegarden, this county, earlier Friday evening. They then drove to the Loot filling station, according to the confession, and tossed a coin as to which of the four should strike the attendant. Longstreth is alleged to have been selected and struck Loop with a tire iron as he was pouring a can of oil into the Ford car in which the four were riding.

Loot rushed into his home, nearby, obtained a shotgun and opened fire on the quartet. The four abandoned their car and escaped on foot but in their hurry to get away Teloskey lost his cap, containing the name of an Altoona store.

Longstreth and Young, it is claimed, applied for medical attention at the Central clinic, Salem, Saturday, both of them suffering from buckshot wounds alleged to have been inflicted by Loop. The pair went to the Pennsylvania station, Saturday night, intending to make an eastbound train when they were arrested by Officer Jess Gray of the Salem police force and Mayor George Russell upon charges of suspicion. They were taken to the city hall, and grilled. In their confession, police say, they implicated Kirby and Teloskey, who were also arrested in Salem.

Tribute Paid Rudy

sician and a nurse. Miss Negri was taken immediately to the "gold room," where Valentino reposed in his casket.

Weeping hysterically, Miss Negri knelt beside the casket, near which stood a seven-foot wreath of roses, sent by her, and bearing the words in flowers:

"My love will be eternal."

At almost the same moment, Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife, arrived accompanied by her mother. Like Pola, she too, was dressed in mourning.

Miss Acker knelt beside the casket and, with bowed head, prayed.

It was a dramatic scene, these two women, two of the three women most directly concerned in Valentino's life, praying side by side at his bier as the organ nearby gave forth soft strains.

Second Wife Not Present.

The other woman in Valentino's life, his second wife, Natacha Rambova, was not present. She was in Europe when Valentino died and was unable to get here.

The motor procession of 12 automobiles, containing the mourners, pall bearers and close friends of Valentino, was headed by a police escort of mounted and motorcycle men as it moved down Broadway from Sixty-sixth street.

At the church, the active pall bearers, removed the casket from the hearse. Slowly, reverently, they carried it into the church as the choir sextette hang, "Miserere," by Spoth.

Miss Negri was led to her pew, still weeping. Her nerves seemed to have gone completely.

Opera Stars Sing Solos.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Edward F. Leonard, rector of the church, assisted by Father Coggedo, a boyhood friend of Valentino's; the Rev. William Donahue, chaplain of the Catholic Actors' guild, as subdeacon, and the Rev. Joseph McKenna and the Rev. James O'Reilley as master of ceremony.

"May the Angels," said Father Leonard, "lead thee into paradise. May the martyrs receive thee at thy coming, and take thee to Jerusalem, the holy city. May the choirs of the angels receive thee, and mayest thou with the once poor Lazarus, have rest everlasting."

During the impressive service solos were sung by Guido Ciccolni of the Chicago opera company and Demitri Onotri of the San Carlo opera company.

Chopin's "funeral march" was played on the organ by Prof. Joseph Davis of St. Malachy's church as the body was being removed from the church.

The body was then returned to the Campbell parlors to be held until the arrival on the Homeric Wednesday of Valentino's brother, Alberto Guglielmi, who is expected to decide on Hollywood, Cal., as the place of burial.

the great war, and his proposed remedy for its evils. "Within fifty years, these babel governments (of Europe) will clash in a gigantic war, for the markets of the world." From that war he predicted a unification of Europe, which would more than pay the cost of such a war.

Angell, the intelligent Britisher, who before 1914, predicted what the big war would do, now publishes a book urging a federation of European nations, similar to the union of states here. Will Europe listen this time? Probably not.

PHILADELPHIA, clergymen protest against the heavyweight prize fight to be "pulled off" in that respectable city. After the fight you will know who is the world's heavyweight champion, and how much influence the clergy have, as compared with $2,000,000 gate receipts.

IT WILL console the clergy in their disappointment, to reflect that if all the signers of the declaration could come back, Hancock, Franklin and Jefferson included, and publicly sign the declaration all over again, they could not "draw" ten per cent of prize fight receipts.

RECENTLY the former kaiser, motored to a high hill, from his castle in Holland, looked across the German frontier and gazed on the fatherland for the first time since he ran away from that fatherland, after the armistice. A crowd of German nationalists, (by arrrangement of course), rushed across the border to see and cheer him. Moses had the same experience looking at the promised land, but not allowed to enter, after all his hard work. The kaiser, however, may have other chances.

MOODY WINNER IN TEXAS RACE

"Ma" Ferguson Poor Second in Run-off Primary.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 30.—Reports Monday from 248 of the state's 252 counties, with 100 complete, gave Dan Moody 469,585 and Mrs. Ferguson 247,458, in the gubernatorial primary run-off of Saturday, the Texas election bureau announced.

During the entire campaign, an undercurrent of threats and warnings was heard on all sides, emanating from James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, and from Ferguson supporters.

The warnings were that if Moody won the runoff primary, steps would be taken before the courts of the state to bar Moody's name from the November general election ballot. Basis for such action was Ferguson's charge that Moody had violated the state election law by accepting contributions from other candidates for state offices.

Moody gained his large vote at the first primary, July 24, "by fraud at an unfair and dishonest election," Jim Ferguson warned in speeches for his wife.

Ferguson warned if Moody were nominated, the courts would rule his name off the ballot, leaving Texas "to the disgrace of having a Republican elected governor for the first time."

The contributions complained of were returned by Moody, who laughs at Jim's crepe hanging.

PENNSYLVANIA RAIDERS JAIL MAN, SEIZE STILL ON BIG MILL CREEK

Stealthily approaching him while he was allegedly manipulating a 40-gallon still in a gulch, situated in dense woodland on Big Mill creek between Georgetown and Hookstown, Pa., Charles Allison, 20, of that neighborhood, was captured by Pennsylvania officers Saturday.

Charged with manufacturing, possessing and selling liquor he was taken to Midland, Pa.

Led by Sergeant John Kellar, who was accompanied by three state policemen, and Justice Charles Kennedy, of Midland, Pa., and Constable James McDonald, of Mill Creek, Pa., the raid was adroitly effected.

Crawling under bushes Constable McDonald surprised Allison. Discovering the officer he refused to surrender and ran, but into the arms of raiders approaching from the opposite direction. He was thus easily taken.

The still, two barrels of mash and a gallon of liquor in bottles were confiscated.

County and state officers had for nearly two years sought the location and destruction of this still. Water from the creek alongside, it is said, was being utilized in the making of the liquor.

Mrs. Corson Leaves Dover.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 30.—In an effort to escape the enthusiastic crowds which insisted upon mobbing her whenever she appeared on the streets, Mrs. Clemington Corson, the second woman to swim the English channel, slipped out of Dover and motored to Folkestone with her husband today. She will return tonight to Broadcast over 2LO, the powerful British station.

Mrs. Corson showed no traces of the channel ordeal when seen at the Dover station this morning where she bade farewell to Frank Perks, the plucky Englishman, who accompanied Mrs. Corson to within a mile of the Dover coast. Perks left for Birmingham, abandoning his attempt to swim the channel for the season.

Mrs. Corson declared that after thinking it over "it was not so bad after all," and said that she planned to return next year to swim the channel again, starting from the English side.

Mrs. Corson and her husband will go to Denmark to pay a visit to Mrs. Corson's mother. After a brief stay they will return to the United States.

ADMIT ATTACK

Two Confess, Police Say, Second County Job.

Attempted robbery of the Charles H. Loop filing station, Lisbon-Salem road near McCracken's corners, late Friday night, was cleared today, police believe with the arrest of four young men, who are said to have admitted they assaulted Loop.

Merle Young, 19, Salem; William Kirby, 24, Alliance; Phillip Longstreth, 20, Johnstown, Pa., and Francis Teloskey, 20, Altoona, Pa., are in the county jail at Lisbon awaiting grand jury action upon charges of highway robbery and assault with intent to kill, following their arrest in Salem late Saturday night.

According to police, Young and Kirby confessed they attempted to hold up and rob Myron Kelly, proprietor of a general store at Teegarden, this county, earlier Friday evening. They then drove to the Loot filling station, according to the confession, and tossed a coin as to which of the four should strike the attendant. Longstreth is alleged to have been selected and struck Loop with a tire iron as he was pouring a can of oil into the Ford car in which the four were riding.

Loot rushed into his home, nearby, obtained a shotgun and opened fire on the quartet. The four abandoned their car and escaped on foot but in their hurry to get away Teloskey lost his cap, containing the name of an Altoona store.

Longstreth and Young, it is claimed, applied for medical attention at the Central clinic, Salem, Saturday, both of them suffering from buckshot wounds alleged to have been inflicted by Loop. The pair went to the Pennsylvania station, Saturday night, intending to make an eastbound train when they were arrested by Officer Jess Gray of the Salem police force and Mayor George Russell upon charges of suspicion. They were taken to the city hall, and grilled. In their confession, police say, they implicated Kirby and Teloskey, who were also arrested in Salem.

Tribute Paid Rudy

sician and a nurse. Miss Negri was taken immediately to the "gold room," where Valentino reposed in his casket.

Weeping hysterically, Miss Negri knelt beside the casket, near which stood a seven-foot wreath of roses, sent by her, and bearing the words in flowers:

"My love will be eternal."

At almost the same moment, Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife, arrived accompanied by her mother. Like Pola, she too, was dressed in mourning.

Miss Acker knelt beside the casket and, with bowed head, prayed.

It was a dramatic scene, these two women, two of the three women most directly concerned in Valentino's life, praying side by side at his bier as the organ nearby gave forth soft strains.

Second Wife Not Present.

The other woman in Valentino's life, his second wife, Natacha Rambova, was not present. She was in Europe when Valentino died and was unable to get here.

The motor procession of 12 automobiles, containing the mourners, pall bearers and close friends of Valentino, was headed by a police escort of mounted and motorcycle men as it moved down Broadway from Sixty-sixth street.

At the church, the active pall bearers, removed the casket from the hearse. Slowly, reverently, they carried it into the church as the choir sextette hang, "Miserere," by Spoth.

Miss Negri was led to her pew, still weeping. Her nerves seemed to have gone completely.

Opera Stars Sing Solos.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Edward F. Leonard, rector of the church, assisted by Father Congedo, a boyhood friend of Valentino's; the Rev. William Donahue, chaplain of the Catholic Actors' guild, as subdeacon, and the Rev. Joseph McKenna and the Rev. James O'Reilley as master of ceremony.

"May the Angels," said Father Leonard, "lead thee into paradise. May the martyrs receive thee at thy coming, and take thee to Jerusalem, the holy city. May the choirs of the angels receive thee, and mayest thou with the once poor Lazarus, have rest everlasting."

During the impressive service solos were sung by Guido Ciecolni of the Chicago opera company and Demitri Onotri of the San Carlo opera company.

Chopin's "funeral march" was played on the organ by Prof. Joseph Davis of St. Malachy's church as the body was being removed from the church.

The body was then returned to the Campbell parlors to be held until the arrival on the Homeric Wednesday of Valentino's brother, Alberto Guglielmi, who is expected to decide on Hollywood, Cal., as the place of burial.

MOODY WINNER IN TEXAS RACE

"Ma" Ferguson Poor Second in Run-off Primary.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 30.—Reports Monday from 248 of the state's 252 counties, with 100 complete, gave Dan Moody 469,585 and Mrs. Ferguson 247,458, in the gubernatorial primary run-off of Saturday, the Texas election bureau announced.

During the entire campaign, an undercurrent of threats and warnings was heard on all sides, emanating from James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, and from Ferguson supporters.

The warnings were that if Moody won the runoff primary, steps would be taken before the courts of the state to bar Moody's name from the November general election ballot. Basis for such action was Ferguson's charge that Moody had violated the state election law by accepting contributions from other candidates for state offices.

Ferguson warned if Moody were nominated, the courts would rule his name off the ballot, leaving Texas "to the disgrace of having a Republican elected governor for the first time."

The contributions complained of were returned by Moody, who laughs at Jim's crepe hanging.

the great war, and his proposed remedy for its evils. "Within fifty years, these babel governments (of Europe) will clash in a gigantic war, for the markets of the world." From that war he predicted a unification of Europe, which would more than pay the cost of such a war.

Angell, the intelligent Britisher, who before 1914, predicted what the big war would do, now publishes a book urging a federation of European nations, similar to the union of states here. Will Europe listen this time? Probably not.

PHILADELPHA, clergymen protest against the heavyweight prize fight to be "pulled off" in that respectable city. After the fight you will know who is the world's heavyweight champion, and how much influence the clergy have, as compared with $2,000,000 gate receipts.

IT WILL console the clergy in their disappointment, to reflect that if all the signers of the declaration could come back, Hancock, Franklin and Jefferson included, and publicly sign the declaration all over again, they could not "draw" ten per cent of prize fight receipts.

RECENTLY the former kaiser, motored to a high hill, from his castle in Holland, looked across the German frontier and gazed on the fatherland for the first time since he ran away from that fatherland, after the armistice. A crowd of German nationalists, 'by arrrangement of course), rushed across the border to see and cheer him. Moses had the same experience looking at the promised land, but not allowed to enter, after all his hard work. The kaiser, however, may have other chances.

Stealthily approaching him while he was allegedly manipulating a 40-gallon still in a gulch, situated in dense woodland on Big Mill creek between Georgetown and Hookstown, Pa., Charles Allison, 20, of that neighborhood, was captured by Pennsylvania officers Saturday.

Led by Sergeant John Kellar, who was accompanied by three state policemen, and Justice Charles Kennedy, of Midland, Pa., and Constable James McDonald, of Mill Creek, Pa., the raid was adroitly effected.

Crawling under bushes Constable McDonald surprised Allison. Discovering the officer he refused to surrender and ran, but into the arms of raiders approaching from the opposite direction. He was thus easily taken.

The still, two barrels of mash and a gallon of liquor in bottles were confiscated.

County and state officers had for nearly two years sought the location and destruction of this still. Water from the creek alongside, it is said, was being utilized in the making of the liquor.

Mrs. Corson Leaves Dover.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 30.—In an effort to escape the enthusiastic crowds which insisted upon mobbing her whenever she appeared on the streets, Mrs. Clemington Corson, the second woman to swim the English channel, slipped out of Dover and motored to Folkestone with her husband today. She will return tonight to Broadcast over 2LO, the powerful British station.

Mrs. Corson showed no traces of the channel ordeal when seen at the Dover station this morning where she bade farewell to Frank Perks, the plucky Englishman, who accompanied Mrs. Corson to within a mile of the Dover coast. Perks left for Birmingham, abandoning his attempt to swim the channel for the season.

Mrs. Corson declared that after thinking it over "it was not so bad after all," and said that she planned to return next year to swim the channel again, starting from the English side.

Mrs. Corson and her husband will go to Denmark to pay a visit to Mrs. Corson's mother. After a brief stay they will return to the United States.

Discovery of Oil Stirs Illinois Town; Big Producer Hit

JACKSONVILLE, Ill.—Oil! This magic word is on the lips of every man in Morgan county, following the successful bringing in of a well north of this city. The well is located on the farm of O. F. Conklin. Paul C. Irwin, veteran oil man, is the prime mover back of the project and he stuck to his task of promoting and drilling the well despite the discouragement of business men of this county.

Recently natural gas in tremendous quantities was found near this city, the two forming links in what may prove a broad field for oil and gas operations.

The well, it is estimated, will produce 25 barrels of oil per day. Some estimate that the output will be double this figure.

Discovery of Oil Stirs Illinois Town; Big Producer Hit

JACKSONVILLE, Ill.—Oil! This magic word is on the lips of every man in Morgan county, following the successful bringing in of a well north of this city. The well is located on the farm of O. F. Conklin. Paul C. Irwin, veteran oil man, is the prime mover back of the project and he stuck to his task of promoting and drilling the well despite the discouragement of business men of this county.

Recently natural gas in tremendous quantities was found near this city, the two forming links in what may prove a broad field for oil and gas operations.

The well, it is estimated, will produce 25 barrels of oil per day. Some estimate that the output will be double this figure.

STATE AGENTS STAGING RAIDS

Increased activity on the part of the dry forces is indicated in the reports being made by the state prohibition commission here.

Home-brew raids are growing in numbers in the northern panhandle section, where, the latest report says, 1,000 pints were confiscated in a half-dozen official incursions.

At a place, near Romney, Hampshire county, a pair of horses and a wagon, which is alleged to have contained 10 quarts of moonshine, were confiscated. The Wheeling and Benwood sections, are said to have been most fruitful in yields of home brew and dry law violators.

Three stills have been seized near Mannington; a still was captured at Mill Creek, Randolph county, another at Nesco, Haleigh county and large quantities of mash, some of it Prune mash, have been confiscated.

A total of 40 arrests have been made recently by state agents, and they paid fines totaling $1,400 and received jail sentences, aggregating 480 days. Seventeen defendants are awaiting federal grand jury action; nine have plead guilty, four have been convicted and seven are being held for county grand juries.

SCHOOL TEACHERS AT INSTITUTE

Grant district school teachers are attending the Hancock county Institute which opened today at New Cumberland. Sessions will continue until Friday. Number of prominent educators are booked to deliver addresses.

Feature of the session will be a series of talks to be given by members of the state and county health bureaus.

LAUGHLIN FACES TWO HARD GAMES

Homer Laughlin China team is scheduled to meet Turk-Nash twice this week in Industrial league contests.

Soi McCoy's squad is scheduled to clash with Pottery City aggregation tomorrow evening at Patterson field, while the return contest is booked to be staged on the local diamond on Friday night.

Improvements Completed.

Work is about completed on the improvements being made to the Glendale school and it will be ready for the opening of school on Tuesday, September 8. Number of repairs have been made including installation of a new furnace.

Many Attend Services.

Number of local residents attended the final services under the auspices of the Free Methodist churches of the Rochester district yesterday in the tabernacle on the Anderson boulevard, East End, East Liverpool.

To develop the farming section of Sumatra now served by paddle steamers, the government plans to build railways to those parts of the country.

BOOK ONE—VI.

The return to college after a three months' vacation is always an event. One is pleasantly excited, and not a little surprised to find things looking much the same as they used to look. It seems incredible that during a period when so much has happened to oneself, nothing apparent should have happened to the university. On the other hand, should anything apparent have happened—a new dormitory rising where once was a vacant lot, a remembered tree cut down — one is highly indignant and cries forth anathemas indicative of a secret feeling that one should at least have been consulted beforehand.

"Here's Prexy's house!"

"Why, he's put on a new porch, the old son-of-a-gun!"

"Look—look there, will you — the Gamma Gammas are building an addition—"

"The hell they are!"

"Law school house looks just the same—"

The roadster journeyed through Campus street, the four heads jerking from side to side attentively. Though it was by this time something after midnight, the dormotories and fratehnity houses that lined the thoroughfare were lively with light and moving figures. "Bed? Who thinks of bed on a night like this?" commented Pink.

Jock at the wheel said little. He was staring off over the tree-shaded green that centered this collegiate world, a green criss-crossed with pathways along which the entire student body trudged daily en route from room to class room and back again. "Think what it means!" he meditated, stirred. "Hundreds of years it's been there — thousands and thousands of forgotten footsteps—" A line he had read once came back him: "Where endlessly the dead go up and down—"

The voice of Dopey Lane seized upon him like a rude hand and wrenched him from these reveries. "Ladies and gentlemen," he chanted, "on your right we have the home of Jock Hamill's inamorata, a lady famed far and wide for her shapely legs and for the broadmindedness of her husband—"

"Soft pedal!" warned Jock, grinning. "She'll hear you. They must be up—lights on in the living room—"

Throughout his sophomore year he had been heckled unmercifully about Eunice Hathaway. She was a provocative brunette from Tennesse who had come to a fraternity house party some years before, married Bradley Hathaway on a dare the second day, and treated him rather dreadfully ever since. Their modest bungalow was less than two blocks from Jock's fraternity house, and he had acquired a habit of dropping in there at odd hours. Actually, he went to see Bradley, whom he admired, and to find seclusion from the bedlam created by 37 "brothers" bent perpetually on merry-making. But he never attempted to explain this to anyone, realizing the futility of so doing, and it was therefore taken for granted that he was devoted to Eunice—and impression strengthened materially by the behavior of Eunice herself. She was one of those women who want it known that men find them charming. She flaunted Jock in people's faces. She looked at him languishingly in public; whispered close to his ear; discussed him when he was not present in an intimate "he-and-I" tone that said plainly, "There's something to this, and don't make any mistake about it." She had even talked herself into believing it, and she would have been as astounded as any one, if not more astounded, had she known that Jock cared nothing whatever for her—that she made him, in fact, not a little weary.

"Lights is right!" Bill Olmstead was saying. "All ablaze in there, to guide the traveler to port. Aren't you going in, Jock? Oh, better go in! Oh, do go in! Poor girl has probably spent the day with her nose pressed to the window-pane—"

Just at this moment the bungalow's door swung wide and Bradley Hathaway's figure was silhouetted, black against yellow. He bent to place a milk bottle on the porch, then straightened suddenly as Jock howled, "Hullo, Brad!"

"Hello yourself! Who is it, anyway?"

"Jock Hamill, and three of the better eggs."

"Jock—why, come in here this minute, you big bum! We've been wondering when you'd be along!"

"You see?" said Bill, sotto voice. "Nobody's invited in but Jock. I do admire a husband with some idea of the fitness of things!"

Jock stopped the car and got out. "Shut up, Bill," he said good-naturedly, "and drive along down to the house. I'll be there soon—have to see Brad a minute—"

They met on the porch and entered the bungalow arm in arm, both immensely glad of the reunion. Jock's regard for Bradley Hathaway was easily understandable when you looked well at him. He had force and strength. Strength of character, writ plain in his eyes and the line of his chin; strength of body. He was the type of man of whom no one in the world can make sport except just one woman. . . .

"Ooo—really?" A remote little cry of gladness. "Comin' in just a second, soon as I can throw a wrappah on." Eunice had clung persistently to her Tennessee accent through all these years in what she was pleased to call "the raucous No'th;" hence there were no concluding g's or r's in anything she said.

"How is Eunice?" asked Jock politely, as he and Brad sat down.

"Oh, she's fine. Tickled to death to see college reopening, of course—it's devilishly stupid for her here in the summer. She wanted to take a cottage at the shore during July and August, but I couldn't quite make the grade."

There was a silence. Brad was frowning at nothing, and Jock was feeling sorry for Brad. He could imagine precisely the scenes that must have taken place, Eunice pleading, nagging, threatening, Brad gently obdurate. . . . . Brad had graduated in 1917, fought in France, and come back to the university as assistant coach, a position accorded him in recognition of his sensational athletic prowess while a student. It's a great job," he had told Jock once, "and I'd be happy in it if it wasn't for Eunice. She wants more money. She can't bear not to have the things more money would buy, and she knows I'll never make much more—this way. She's right, too, of course," he had amended hastily. "I'll have to get more for her, some way." Everything Eunice thought and did was all right in Brad's eyes; love had given him an incurable astigmatism.

The pause became over-long, and to end it Jock said, "How's the football team look?"

English Exhibitors Unable to Agree on Plan by Which British Films Would be Used.

LONDON.—Efforts to produce an agreed scheme for the rehabilitation of the British film industry have almost completely failed, according to a report issued by the Joint Trade Committee for British Films appointed to consider ways and means of combatting the American film "menance."

Manufacturers, renters and exhibitors were represented on the committee, and it is stated that the failure to reach a solution was in the main due to the antagonistic viewpoints possessed by each section.

Only on one suggestion—a scheme whereby exhibitors must exhibit a proportionate number of British films in every program—did the committee reach agreement, but this was afterwards defeated on being submitted to a referendum of members of the Cinematograph Exhibitor's association, states the report.

Among other proposals considered but not approved by the committee was the Contingent Scheme, now worked in Germany, which rigidly limits imports. This was rejected because it was only suited to a country with much greater native production than British. Suggestions for a reciprocal arrangement for the exhibition of British films in the United States were criticized because of difficulties in enforcing agreement.

A tax on foreign films was also rejected because it would hit small exhibitors hard, and would not affect theatres making big money, while a proposal for the remission of Governmental Entertainment Tax if the program was all British was also negatived owing to the government's viewpoint being unobtainable. Other schemes for voluntary quotas and part-voluntary and part-compulsory quotas were also found impractible.

It is thought here that the whole question will now be held over until the next meeting of the Imperial Conference, when various schemes will be presented to the delegates from the British colonies.

The possibility is foreseen of the government introducing compulsory legislation to make the various interests come into line and to suggest measures for the industry's gest measures for betterment.

BARGE BUSINESS GROWS RAPIDLY

QUINCY, Ill.—Experiments in barge operations on the Mississippi river between Winono, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., have proved such a success that it has been decided to place other boats in commission next spring.

The down-river trip requires five days and the up-river trip 10 days between the two terminals. Stops are made at intermediate points for freight.

At present only one barge, built of steel and driven by a 150 horse-power motor is in service, operated by the federal government in connection with the line between St. Louis and New Orleans, launched during the world war.

When traffic is opened in the spring a number of barges, the exact number to be determined by the volume of business will be placed in operation.

GLITTER

By Katharine Brush

BOOK ONE—VI.

The return to college after a three months' vacation is always an event. One is pleasantly excited, and not a little surprised to find things looking much the same as they used to look. It seems incredible that during a period when so much has happened to oneself, nothing apparent should have happened to the university. On the other hand, should anything apparent have happened—a new dormitory rising where once was a vacant lot, a remembered tree cut down — one is highly indignant and cries forth anathemas indicative of a secret feeling that one should at least have been consulted beforehand.

"Here's Prexy's house!"

"Why, he's put on a new porch, the old son-of-a-gun!"

"Look—look there, will you — the Gamma Gammas are building an addition—"

"The hell they are!"

"Law school house looks just the same—"

The roadster journeyed through Campus street, the four heads jerking from side to side attentively. Though it was by this time something after midnight, the dormotories and fratehnity houses that lined the thoroughfare were lively with light and moving figures. "Bed? Who thinks of bed on a night like this?" commented Pink.

Jock at the wheel said little. He was staring off over the tree-shaded green that centered this collegiate world, a green criss-crossed with pathways along which the entire student body trudged daily en route from room to class room and back again. "Think what it means!" he meditated, stirred. "Hundreds of years it's been there — thousands and thousands of forgotten footsteps—" A line he had read once came back him: "Where endlessly the dead go up and down—"

The voice of Dopey Lane seized upon him like a rude hand and wrenched him from these reveries. "Ladies and gentlemen," he chanted, "on your right we have the home of Jock Hamill's inamorata, a lady famed far and wide for her shapely legs and for the broadmindedness of her husband—"

"Soft pedal!" warned Jock, grinning. "She'll hear you. They must be up—lights on in the living room—"

Throughout his sophomore year he had been heckled unmercifully about Eunice Hathaway. She was a provocative brunette from Tennesse who had come to a fraternity house party some years before, married Bradley Hathaway on a dare the second day, and treated him rather dreadfully ever since. Their modest bungalow was less than two blocks from Jock's fraternity house, and he had acquired a habit of dropping in there at odd hours. Actually, he went to see Bradley, whom he admired, and to find seclusion from the bedlam created by 37 "brothers" bent perpetually on merry-making. But he never attempted to explain this to anyone, realizing the futility of so doing, and it was therefore taken for granted that he was devoted to Eunice—and impression strengthened materially by the behavior of Eunice herself. She was one of those women who want it known that men find them charming. She flaunted Jock in people's faces. She looked at him languishingly in public; whispered close to his ear; discussed him when he was not present in an intimate "he-and-I" tone that said plainly, "There's something to this, and don't make any mistake about it." She had even talked herself into believing it, and she would have been as astounded as any one, if not more astounded, had she known that Jock cared nothing whatever for her—that she made him, in fact, not a little weary.

"Lights is right!" Bill Olmstead was saying. "All ablaze in there, to guide the traveler to port. Aren't you going in, Jock? Oh, better go in! Oh, do go in! Poor girl has probably spent the day with her nose pressed to the window-pane—"

Just at this moment the bungalow's door swung wide and Bradley Hathaway's figure was silhouetted, black against yellow. He bent to place a milk bottle on the porch, then straightened suddenly as Jock howled, "Hullo, Brad!"

"Hello yourself! Who is it, anyway?"

"Jock Hamill, and three of the better eggs."

"Jock—why, come in here this minute, you big bum! We've been wondering when you'd be along!"

"You see?" said Bill, sotto voice. "Nobody's invited in but Jock. I do admire a husband with some idea of the fitness of things!"

Jock stopped the car and got out. "Shut up, Bill," he said good-naturedly, "and drive along down to the house. I'll be there soon—have to see Brad a minute—"

They met on the porch and entered the bungalow arm in arm, both immensely glad of the reunion. Jock's regard for Bradley Hathaway was easily understandable when you looked well at him. He had force and strength. Strength of character, writ plain in his eyes and the line of his chin; strength of body. He was the type of man of whom no one in the world can make sport except just one woman. . . .

"Ooo—really?" A remote little cry of gladness. "Comin' in just a second, soon as I can throw a wrappah on." Eunice had clung persistently to her Tennessee accent through all these years in what she was pleased to call "the raucous No'th;" hence there were no concluding g's or r's in anything she said.

"How is Eunice?" asked Jock politely, as he and Brad sat down.

"Oh, she's fine. Tickled to death to see college reopening, of course—it's devilishly stupid for her here in the summer. She wanted to take a cottage at the shore during July and August, but I couldn't quite make the grade."

There was a silence. Brad was frowning at nothing, and Jock was feeling sorry for Brad. He could imagine precisely the scenes that must have taken place, Eunice pleading, nagging, threatening, Brad gently obdurate. . . . . Brad had graduated in 1917, fought in France, and come back to the university as assistant coach, a position accorded him in recognition of his sensational athletic prowess while a student. It's a great job," he had told Jock once, "and I'd be happy in it if it wasn't for Eunice. She wants more money. She can't bear not to have the things more money would buy, and she knows I'll never make much more—this way. She's right, too, of course," he had amended hastily. "I'll have to get more for her, some way." Everything Eunice thought and did was all right in Brad's eyes; love had given him an incurable astigmatism."

The pause became over-long, and to end it Jock said, "How's the football team look?"

English Exhibitors Unable to Agree on Plan by Which British Films Would be Used.

LONDON.—Efforts to produce an agreed scheme for the rehabilitation of the British film industry have almost completely failed, according to a report issued by the Joint Trade Committee for British Films appointed to consider ways and means of combatting the American film "menance."

Manufacturers, renters and exhibitors were represented on the committee, and it is stated that the failure to reach a solution was in the main due to the antagonistic viewpoints possessed by each section.

Only on one suggestion—a scheme whereby exhibitors must exhibit a proportionate number of British films in every program—did the committee reach agreement, but this was afterwards defeated on being submitted to a referendum of members of the Cinematograph Exhibitor's association, states the report.

Among other proposals considered but not approved by the committee was the Contingent Scheme, now worked in Germany, which rigidly limits imports. This was rejected because it was only suited to a country with much greater native production than British. Suggestions for a reciprocal arrangement for the exhibition of British films in the United States were criticized because of difficulties in enforcing agreement.

A tax on foreign films was also rejected because it would hit small exhibitors hard, and would not affect theatres making big money, while a proposal for the remission of Governmental Entertainment Tax if the program was all British was also negatived owing to the government's viewpoint being unobtainable. Other schemes for voluntary quotas and part-voluntary and part-compulsory quotas were also found impractible.

It is thought here that the whole question will now be held over until the next meeting of the Imperial Conference, when various schemes will be presented to the delegates from the British colonies.

The possibility is foreseen of the government introducing compulsory legislation to make the various interests come into line and to suggest measures for the industry's gest measures for betterment.

BARGE BUSINESS GROWS RAPIDLY

QUINCY, Ill.—Experiments in barge operations on the Mississippi river between Winono, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., have proved such a success that it has been decided to place other boats in commission next spring.

The down-river trip requires five days and the up river trip 10 days between the two terminals. Stops are made at intermediate points for freight.

At present only one barge, built of steel and driven by a 150 horse-power motor is in service, operated by the federal government in connection with the line between St. Louis and New Orleans, launched during the world war.

When traffic is opened in the spring a number of barges, the exact number to be determined by the volume of business will be placed in operation.

Cebula Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game to Trim Midland Club

Potters Draw First Blood In Series With Pennsylvania Rivals

Chester Slab Ace Fans 11 Batters and Crashes Out Two-bagger; Second Clash to be Staged Wednesday at Smith Field.

SMOKE of the first battle of the East Liverpool-Midland diamond series which got under way Saturday afternoon at Midland has blown away and leaves the Pottery City delegation of City Industrial league stars holding the advantage as a result of Mike Cebula's no-hit, no-run performance that gave the locals a 3 to 0 conquest in the opener.

Three errors permitted as many Midland runners to reach first base but there they perished as "Mike mowed 'em down at the plate.

The locals scored a run in the first frame. Evans, first man up, singled to center and went to second on L. McMath's grounder to third. McMath being retired at first. Eddie Bailey's two-base clout then chased Evans home.

Wilde singled to center, Bailey being held at third. On Herbert's rap to the pitcher, Bailey was nipped at the plate. McShane fanned, ending the inning.

In the second, Cebula crashed out a double to left and was caught at third, trying to stretch the blow.

Evans opened the third and reached first on an error at first base. He stole second but a few moments later was caught off the bag, Petrosky to Thompson. McMath doubled to right. Bailey reached first on a fielder's choice, Shortstop Thompson getting McMath at the hot corner.

Wilde lined out a screeching double and chased the fleet footed Bailey home, scoring a few minutes later on Herbert's single to center. McShane was thrown out, Petroskey to Schink, to end the inning.

The next game of the series will be staged Wednesday evening at 5:15 o'clock at Smith Field, Chester, instead of Patterson Field.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Smooth pitching, powerful batting and snappy fielding enabled the Yankees to down the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 1, before a crowd of 45,000. "Babe" Ruth socked a two bagger with the bases full in the first inning for the benefit of the anxious fans.

With a dismal record of 26 scoreless innings behind them, the Robins got back home to Ebbetts Field and remembered how to win again. They trounced the Giants, 6 to 2.

SALEM ELKS WIN FROM ALL STARS

The Salem Elks, aided by an aggregation of East Liverpool stars, including McConnell, Sainor, Pollock, Simcox, Finley, Ashe and Hunselman, defeated the Salem Industrial League All-Star outfit, 12 to 6, Saturday at Reilley Field.

The Stars were ahead, 6 to 0, until the eight inning when the Elks cut loose, scoring 10 runs in that one frame.

The Elks have challenged the "Peace Valley" club, near East Palestine for a series which probably will begin next Sunday.

PENNANT RACES

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Playing a ten-inning tie, the Pirates and Cardinals failed to alter their positions with respect to themselves yesterday but picked up a half game on the Reds, who lost to Chicago. As matters stood this morning, the Pirates continued at the pace, a trifle less than a full game in front of the Reds. The Cardinals, in third place, were a game and a fraction behind the leaders. They could take the lead today by winning both games from the Pirates.

In the American League, the pace-setting Yankees made their position more secure by defeating the Tigers and remaining seven games beyond the Indians, who nosed out the Browns. If the Yankees merely win fifteen of their remaining 28 games, the Indians would have to win 22 and lose only four games in order to land the pennant.

STEUBENVILLE GOLFERS WIN

Defeat East Liverpool Club by Score of 60½-20½.

Steubenville Country club golfers turned the tables on the East Liverpool team in the second match of the inter-club series Saturday at Steubenville winning by the decisive score of 60½ points to 20½.

J. M. Wells, in the first foursome of the afternoon, was defeated by Bob Wintringer and gave up 2 and 1-2 points to his Steubenville rival.

Nears Record for Double Clouts

George Burns, of the Cleveland Indians, is no respector of records. He tramped heavily on the National League record for double base clouts in one season and is now on the heels of the American League record (which is the world's record) of 59 established by his boss, Tris Speaker, back in 1923.

Mrs. Carson Proves Superiority of Sex In Channel Swim As Efforts of Five Men Fade

Miss Ederle's time was two hours and 2 minutes faster than the men's record, held by Tiraboschi.

Mrs. Carson's was 1 hours and 5 minutes faster than that of Tiraboschi.

Charles Toth, swimming the channel the same year Tiraboschi did, came within 21 minutes of the latter's time.

These men chose the season between Aug. 10 and Sept. 8 for their attempts, the period during which Miss Ederle and Mrs. Carson both planned their efforts. There is, then, no chance to argue more favorable conditions. I take it that it is part of the feat (purely a sporting one anyhow), to choose the propitious moment.

The feat of Mrs. Carson makes more absurd the rumblings in England that Miss Ederle's fast time was made possible through the sheltering presence of a boat as she fought the choppy sea. Mrs. Carson's victory stands out as interesting as Miss Ederle's in another way despite the fact that the New York girl was first to perform the feat. This is that Mrs. Carson's triumph comes not only after years of long distance swimming but under conditions which find most athletic women out of the sport. She is the mother of two children.

The English channel belongs now to the fair sex, the league of nations may well agree to that right now.

In one way the victory of Mrs. Clemington Carson in swimming the English channel equals the first successful effort of her sex, the achievement of Gertrude Ederle, in importance.

Miss Ederle proved that the channel can be conquered by a woman—and that Gertrude at least was master of the men in conquering the choppy water.

Mrs. Carson's victory, following on the heels of Miss Ederle's feat, looms large in importance in that it proves that the feminine swimming world, not alone Miss Ederle, may claim superiority in the matter of endurance swimming.

Scores of men have attempted the swim from the French coast to Dover, or vice versa. Of this large number but five had navigated the stretch successfully when Mrs. Carson succeeded.

Here are the names of the five men, the time they took and the date of the attempt.

Name	Time	Date
Capt. Webb	21h., 45m.	Aug. 24, '75
Thos. Burgess	22h., 35m.	Sept. 5, '11
H. Sullivan	27h., 25m.	Aug. 5, '23

Who's Next? Question In Barber Shops and Swimming Circles Now

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Having feted one lady channel swimmer until she took to her bed exhausted, New York "came to" this morning feeling not unlike the gent who attempted to tell a Siamese twin she was the most beautiful woman in the world. He was trying to make a choice between a carbon copy and the original, and if a man can't do it, neither can he reach an honest decision on two lady channel swimmers. New York has two lady channel swimmers today and is feeling just a little bit fatuous about that extravagant celebration it staged under the erroneous impression that Gertrude Ederle, the only lady channel swimmer at that moment, would continue to be the only lady channel swimmer until the end of time.

Twenty-four hours later, Mrs. Clemington Corson, of New York, swam the turbulent stretch of sea between France and England in a maner that indicated she could give Trudy an excellent debate, a la auqua-marine, had they attempted the swim together.

The same question is asked in barber shops and swimming circles today: Who's next?

Takes Punch Out of Fete.

Beyond any argument, a lot of the punch departed with due haste from the Ederle home-coming fete when announcement of Mrs. Corson's successful effort became public property. One simply can't continue shouting oneself voiceless over two Mt. Blancs. The second might not altogether spoil the effect of the first but it would do it practically no good.

On Friday, Trudy was a woman apart, the only one of her kind in the world. On Saturday, she had company.

Will a rival cut into the vast earnings that are being claimed for her? Trudy captured the popular fancy because she is young and feminine. But Mrs. Corson is feminine too, and the mother of two small children. That looks like an excellent human interest angle to me.

Another is the fact that this woman made the attempt almost alone and unaided—no tugs, no jazz music, no famous trainers and conditioners. She was followed by a motor boat merely as a bearer of nourishment and a precaution against drowning. And, at the finish, she was caught in the turn of the tide and swam the last quarter mile into what probably was a mill-race.

It seems to me that such a woman must have great public appeal. Will she go big in vaudeville? Trudy is supposed to have an offer of $125,000 for twenty weeks. Will Mrs. Corson get a similar offer? And, if so, is there room at that price for two lady channel swimmers? It would seem that one simple must cut down the earnings of the other in the various avenues of revenue that the being opened.

Trudy Holds Record, However.

Of course, Trudy must remain the bigger public figure, being the original lady channel swimmer and the world's record holder, at that. But how can we say we won't have a third before we know it? Clarabella Barrett, an known New York girl, was in the channel over twenty hours and experts declare she would have conquered it if the pilot hadn't become lost in the fog. Doesn't it seem possible that Clarabelle might yet succeed?

In that case, New York would refuse to become excited about a lady channel swimmer. Its greeting to Trudy was so enthusiastic and prolonged that today, on the advice of her physician, she is enjoying comparative privacy for the first time since she landed.

Many good golfers deliberately use a ball throughout that has a slight hook energy in it. Any golfer can develop this kind of a ball without much altering in his game. A slight shift of the place from which the ball is hit will accomplish it. For instance, instead of taking the ball off the left instep or the left heel, stand to the ball so that it is at a point midway with the body. Now at the same time draw the left arm slightly back toward the right side of the body, letting the wrist break back. This gives you about the same position of the wrist you would have if you put the ball out by the left heel and started the club back with a drag back. From this position, swing in the regular way.

"Sock Them In, Boys, See If I Can Take It" Jack's Daily Program

By George Barry.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 30.—Jack Dempsey's program for this afternoon will be the same as it has been for the past several days:

"Sock, boys, and see if I can take it."

The champion is testing out the punches of his smaller associates by deliberately leaving his jaw open. They are popping and banging the regal whiskers, fretting Dempsey by their ease in plowing through the slight guard that he effects—but they are not doing any damage.

The larger men also have the smaller boys' privilege to "drive 'em," but that privilege has a little joker involved. They must be ready, when they let fly, to catch a counter wallop themselves. And that's not exactly to their fancy. They have caught too many counters in the past to take too many liberties.

Dempsey, up to this time, has been sparring about six rounds daily and putting in three more at the pulleys, the punching bag and in shadow boxing. One of the things he is practicing with much enthusiasm is spinning around while shadow boxing. He is constantly turning and twisting.

"Why?" asked someone.

Won't Get Dizzy.

"Well, in a fight it usually happens that the other fellow may spin me around or I may have to keep turning and twisting to catch up with him," explained the champion. "If a man isn't drilled and perfected in that turning and twisting, it's likely to make him dizzy. So I'm practicing it, so that if I have to spin around a lot to find out where Tunney has vamoosed to, why I'll not be running any chances of getting dizzy.

"Another thing I am practicing and that is to get under a right hand drive for the jaw. I'm letting the boys shoot at my chin all they want. But instead of ducking or sidestepping from these punches, I shove my head down under the swing of that punch. When I get that perfected, I'd like to do a little betting that Tunney isn't going to lay that right on my chin as often as he thinks.

"I'm not making any prediction now as to what kind of a battle I'll fight against Tunney, but for this mix-up I'm going to introduce a few tricks that I never have used before. And they'll help me win."

Tigers Down Scouts, 5-1 in Third Game Of Diamond Series

The Tigers defeated the Catholic Scouts Saturday at Patterson field, 5 to 1, in the third game of their series. The Scouts scored their lone talley in the first when Garvey reached first of Pardell's error. He stole second and when caught off the bag, scored on Hanlon's overthrow.

The Tigers tied it up in the third when Altman walked and scored on Greenwood's triple. Although the Scouts threatened several times no more scoring was done until the eighth.

With the count at 1-1, Greenwood doubled, after Banks had flied out. Sainor singled, scoring Greenwood. A flurry of hits followed and before the third man was retired the Tigers had tallied four times.

Greenwood was the hitting star with a double and triple in four attempts. Hanlon contributed the fielding sensation, a running catch of Dyer's fly.

SPECULATOR CHEERS TUNNEY

By Frank O'Neil.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Gene Tunney, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, had his last week-end workout in Speculator yesterday. It was a sizzling work-out, too, and the crowd cheered throughout. After the gloves had been untied, the fans followed Tunney over to his cottage and cheered some more. There were demands for a speech. Gene is a pretty nifty talker, so he up and said, said he:

"I want to thank the good people of Speculator and the summer colony for their loyal support. I know I will go into the ring carrying your wishes and hopes for success. I feel that I have a mission to fulfill and that I must win from Dempsey."

More cheers were in order, and then "Pants" Lawrence stepped to the cottage steps. "Let's give three more cheers for Gene, the great champion," said "Pants." The tumult rumbled down the valley and echoed over the lake to where the green-carpeted Mt. Speculator rears its silent heights.

Tunney does not like the idea of leaving Speculator, but it is one of those things that has to be done. Rickard wants him in Pennsylvania, the mayor of Stroudsburgh wants him there, and that's that.

Cebula Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game to Trim Midland Club

Potters Draw First Blood In Series With Pennsylvania Rivals

Chester Slab Ace Fans 11 Batters and Crashes Out Two-bagger; Second Clash to be Staged Wednesday at Smith Field.

SMOKE of the first battle of the East Liverpool-Midland diamond series which got under way Saturday afternoon at Midland has blown away and leaves the Pottery City delegation of City Industrial league stars holding the advantage as a result of Mike Cebula's no-hit, no-run performance that gave the locals a 3 to 0 conquest in the opener.

Three errors permitted as many Midland runners to reach first base but there they perished as "Mike mowed 'em down at the plate.

The locals scored a run in the first frame. Evans, first man up, singled to center and went to second on L. McMath's grounder to third. McMath being retired at first. Eddie Bailey's two-base clout then chased Evans home.

Wilde singled to center, Bailey being held at third. On Herbert's rap to the pitcher, Bailey was nipped at the plate. McShane fanned, ending the inning.

In the second, Cebula crashed out a double to left and was caught at third, trying to stretch the blow.

Evans opened the third and reached first on an error at first base. He stole second but a few moments later was caught off the bag, Petrosky to Thompson. McMath doubled to right. Bailey reached first on a fielder's choice, Shortstop Thompson getting McMath at the hot corner.

Wilde lined out a screeching double and chased the fleet footed Bailey home, scoring a few minutes later on Herbert's single to center. McShane was thrown out, Petroskey to Schink, to end the inning.

The next game of the series will be staged Wednesday evening at 5:15 o'clock at Smith Field, Chester, instead of Patterson Field.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Smooth pitching, powerful batting and snappy fielding enabled the Yankees to down the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 1, before a crowd of 45,000. "Babe" Ruth socked a two bagger with the bases full in the first inning for the benefit of the anxious fans.

With a dismal record of 26 scoreless innings behind them, the Robins got back home to Ebbetts Field and remembered how to win again. They trounced the Giants, 6 to 2.

SALEM ELKS WIN FROM ALL STARS

The Salem Elks, aided by an aggregation of East Liverpool stars, including McConnell, Sainor, Pollock, Simcox, Finley, Ashe and Hunselman, defeated the Salem Industrial League All-Star outfit, 12 to 6, Saturday at Reilley Field.

The Stars were ahead, 6 to 0, until the eight inning when the Elks cut loose, scoring 10 runs in that one frame.

The Elks have challenged the "Peace Valley" club, near East Palestine for a series which probably will begin next Sunday.

PENNANT RACES

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Playing a ten-inning tie, the Pirates and Cardinals failed to alter their positions with respect to themselves yesterday but picked up a half game on the Reds, who lost to Chicago. As matters stood this morning, the Pirates continued at the pace, a trifle less than a full game in front of the Reds. The Cardinals, in third place, were a game and a fraction behind the leaders. They could take the lead today by winning both games from the Pirates.

In the American League, the pace-setting Yankees made their position more secure by defeating the Tigers and remaining seven games beyond the Indians, who nosed out the Browns. If the Yankees merely win fifteen of their remaining 28 games, the Indians would have to win 22 and lose only four games in order to land the pennant.

STEUBENVILLE GOLFERS WIN

Defeat East Liverpool Club by Score of 60½-20½.

Steubenville Country club golfers turned the tables on the East Liverpool team in the second match of the inter-club series Saturday at Steubenville winning by the decisive score of 60½ points to 20½.

J. M. Wells, in the first foursome of the afternoon, was defeated by Bob Wintringer and gave up 2 and 1-2 points to his Steubenville rival.

Nears Record for Double Clouts

George Burns, of the Cleveland Indians, is no respector of records. He tramped heavily on the National League record for double base clouts in one season and is now on the heels of the American League record (which is the world's record) of 59 established by his boss, Tris Speaker, back in 1923.

Mrs. Carson Proves Superiority of Sex In Channel Swim As Efforts of Five Men Fade

Miss Ederle's time was two hours and 2 minutes faster than the men's record, held by Tiraboschi.

Mrs. Carson's was 1 hours and 5 minutes faster than that of Tiraboschi.

Charles Toth, swimming the channel the same year Tiraboschi did, came within 21 minutes of the latter's time.

These men chose the season between Aug. 10 and Sept. 8 for their attempts, the period during which Miss Ederle and Mrs. Carson both planned their efforts. There is, then, no chance to argue more favorable conditions. I take it that it is part of the feat (purely a sporting one anyhow), to choose the propitious moment.

The feat of Mrs. Carson makes more absurd the rumblings in England that Miss Ederle's fast time was made possible through the sheltering presence of a boat as she fought the choppy sea. Mrs. Carson's victory stands out as interesting as Miss Ederle's in another way despite the fact that the New York girl was first to perform the feat. This is that Mrs. Carson's triumph comes not only after years of long distance swimming but under conditions which find most athletic women out of the sport. She is the mother of two children.

The English channel belongs now to the fair sex, the league of nations may well agree to that right now.

In one way the victory of Mrs. Clemington Carson in swimming the English channel equals the first successful effort of her sex, the achievement of Gertrude Ederle, in importance.

Miss Ederle proved that the channel can be conquered by a woman—and that Gertrude at least was master of the men in conquering the choppy water.

Mrs. Carson's victory, following on the heels of Miss Ederle's feat, looms large in importance in that it proves that the feminine swimming world, not alone Miss Ederle, may claim superiority in the matter of endurance swimming.

Scores of men have attempted the swim from the French coast to Dover, or vice versa. Of this large number but five had navigated the stretch successfully when Mrs. Carson succeeded.

Here are the names of the five men, the time they took and the date of the attempt.

"Sock Them In, Boys, See If I Can Take It" Jack's Daily Program

By George Barry.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 30.—Jack Dempsey's program for this afternoon will be the same as it has been for the past several days:

"Sock, boys, and see if I can take it."

The champion is testing out the punches of his smaller associates by deliberately leaving his jaw open. They are popping and banging the regal whiskers, fretting Dempsey by their ease in plowing through the slight guard that he effects—but they are not doing any damage.

The larger men also have the smaller boys' privilege to "drive 'em," but that privilege has a little joker involved. They must be ready, when they let fly, to catch a counter wallop themselves. And that's not exactly to their fancy. They have caught too many counters in the past to take too many liberties.

Dempsey, up to this time, has been sparring about six rounds daily and putting in three more at the pulleys, the punching bag and in shadow boxing. One of the things he is practicing with much enthusiasm is spinning around while shadow boxing. He is constantly turning and twisting.

"Why?" asked someone.

Won't Get Dizzy.

"Well, in a fight it usually happens that the other fellow may spin me around or I may have to keep turning and twisting to catch up with him," explained the champion. "If a man isn't drilled and perfected in that turning and twisting, it's likely to make him dizzy. So I'm practicing it, so that if I have to spin around a lot to find out where Tunney has vamoosed to, why I'll not be running any chances of getting dizzy.

"Another thing I am practicing and that is to get under a right hand drive for the jaw. I'm letting the boys shoot at my chin all they want. But instead of ducking or sidestepping from these punches, I shove my head down under the swing of that punch. When I get that perfected, I'd like to do a little betting that Tunney isn't going to lay that right on my chin as often as he thinks.

"I'm not making any prediction now as to what kind of a battle I'll fight against Tunney, but for this mix-up I'm going to introduce a few tricks that I never have used before. And they'll help me win."

Tigers Down Scouts, 5-1 in Third Game Of Diamond Series

The Tigers defeated the Catholic Scouts Saturday at Patterson field, 5 to 1, in the third game of their series. The Scouts scored their lone talley in the first when Garvey reached first of Pardell's error. He stole second and when caught off the bag, scored on Hanlon's overthrow.

The Tigers tied it up in the third when Altman walked and scored on Greenwood's triple. Although the Scouts threatened several times no more scoring was done until the eighth.

With the count at 1-1, Greenwood doubled, after Banks had flied out. Sainor singled, scoring Greenwood. A flurry of hits followed and before the third man was retired the Tigers had tallied four times.

Greenwood was the hitting star with a double and triple in four attempts. Hanlon contributed the fielding sensation, a running catch of Dyer's fly.

SPECULATOR CHEERS TUNNEY

By Frank O'Neil.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Gene Tunney, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, had his last week-end workout in Speculator yesterday. It was a sizzling work-out, too, and the crowd cheered throughout. After the gloves had been untied, the fans followed Tunney over to his cottage and cheered some more. There were demands for a speech. Gene is a pretty nifty talker, so he up and said, said he:

"I want to thank the good people of Speculator and the summer colony for their loyal support. I know I will go into the ring carrying your wishes and hopes for success. I feel that I have a mission to fulfill and that I must win from Dempsey."

More cheers were in order, and then "Pants" Lawrence stepped to the cottage steps. "Let's give three more cheers for Gene, the great champion," said "Pants." The tumult rumbled down the valley and echoed over the lake to where the green-carpeted Mt. Speculator rears its silent heights.

Tunney does not like the idea of leaving Speculator, but it is one of those things that has to be done. Rickard wants him in Pennsylvania, the mayor of Stroudsburgh wants him there, and that's that.

Royal Mountain Ash Welsh Choir at Ceramic Theatre

World's Greatest Male Chorus Will Headline Bill Today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Royal Mountain Ash Welsh choir—15 glorious voices, winners of eight international competitions, and recognized as the world's greatest male chorus, will headline the vaudeville-motion picture bill at the Ceramic theatre during the first three days of the week.

This colorful spectacle was presented this afternoon and will be repeated tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday in the uniform of the Royal Welsh Guards of the sixteenth century.

The famous choir, eight times champion of Wales, arrived here yesterday en route to the St. Louis exposition. East Liverpool was placed on the American itinerary by the Arthur Spizzi agency, through which the Ceramic books its metropolitan features. The choir recently completed engagements in the large Keith theatres after a series of European triumphs.

Eight years has this choir carried off Eisteddfod honors in Wales. Their offerings extend from the martial "March of the Men of Harlech," to the rollicking "Jolly Roger" song of a gypsy number.

The choir will appear in connection with the presentation of the screen success, "Brown of Harvard," starring Jack Pickford, Mary Brian, Mary Alden, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and William Haines. Other picture features on the program are a Tuxedo comedy, "Honest Injun," with Johnny Arthur, and the first pictures of Gertrude Ederle conquering the English channel.

COAL WILL NOT GIVE UP TO OIL IS LABOR VIEW

Mine Federation Head Says Coal Will Come Back.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY

LONDON.—King Coal has many years of life before him and there is not the slightest chance of him abdicating in favor of King Oil, according to Frank Hodges, Secretary of the International Miners Federation, and one of England's most prominent labor leaders.

Pointing out that the world's reserves of coal are known to exceed those of oil, Hodges asserts that coal has only had a temporary set-back in its industrial development and will shortly regain its ascendancy over oil.

In this country and in most industrial countries," said Hodges in an interview, "coal-firing will always provide the bulk of energy developed until such times as the coal reserves are economically exhausted.

To Maintain Supremacy.

"The increasing use of the pulverized system of coal-firing limits the expansion of the use of oil for steam-raising, and coal will thus maintain its supremacy. The great advantage of the system is that low grade fuels become easily available for the production of power.

"Huge kuantities of these fuels, which are inseparably produced with better grade coals, and which represent a substantial item of the cost of production, will soon find a profitable market. Its increasing use will be an enormous economic help to the coal industry. I am not surprised, therefore, that it is being reported from the United States that oil-firing for steam-raising is being scrapped and pulverized coal-firing is being installed in its place.

"It is also well known that coal need not fear oil even on its own special territory, namely, for use in internal combustion engines and as a lubricant. There is no doubt whatever that what is known as the low temperature processes of carbonization of pre-treatment of coal for the recovery of its volatile constituents are now established as a commercial possibility. We now know that by these processes coal yields a large quantity of fuel-oil and motor spirit, as well as a smokeless semi-coke for power production and domestic fuel.

Pulverized Fuel.

"For power production, particularly in the capital stations fore-shadowed in the Government's scheme of reorganization there is no greater economic possibility than a combination of low-temperature carbonization and pulverized fuel-firing. Such a combination is now long past the experimental stage, and indeed a commercial plant having a capacity of 200 tons of coal per day is in operation in the United States at the Lakeside Station of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company as an adjunct of pulverized fuel-firing."

Woman Excavator Unearths Basket 12,000 Years Old

LONDON.—Basket work at least 12,000 years old, the first bread-wheat of prehistoric days ever found, and the earliest known sickle are among the treasures unearthed by Miss Caton-Thompson, a well-known archaeologist, while digging on the Fayum prehistoric settlements sixty miles south of Cairo, Egypt.

These relics are now at the University College building here, where experts are attempting to unravel their history and if possible add to the world's knowledge of those far off days.

The basket work is chiefly remnants of granaries, revealed while removing sand, which took the form of pits lined with coiled straw or a species of reed, in some of which were wheat and barley grains stored there by prehistoric farmers.

Examination has proved the grains to be two kinds of cultivated wheat—enmer and bread. The former was known to be used in prehistoric times, but this appears to be the first record of bread-wheat in such early days.

FARMERS WAR ON POISON WEED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—War has been opened by Dr. F. A. Laird, state veterinarian, and the state department of agriculture on snakeroot weed, which this year is claiming its usual number of cattle as victims.

Death of eight cattle on one farm near here brought a warning to farmers from the state to destroy this weed whenever found.

A survey is being made in an attempt to stamp out the menace to the cattle.

Stockings must be hereditary. They seem to run in many families.—Zanesville Signal.

It may justifiably be said that the beautiful star really enters her own kingdom in the impersonation of the late Grand Duchess Tatiana of Imperial Russia and in describing her exceptionally brilliant dramatic work the reviewer finds himself more at loss for words that are broad enough to do her justice, than for words enough to fill this column. One might write pages about "Into Her Kingdom" were not some mechanical restriction a necessity. It's that kind of a picture and Miss Griffith was never more beautiful, never better cast and never better supported.

World's Greatest Male Chorus Will Headline Bill Today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Royal Mountain Ash Welsh choir—15 glorious voices, winners of eight international competitions, and recognized as the world's greatest male chorus, will headline the vaudeville-motion picture bill at the Ceramic theatre during the first three days of the week.

This colorful spectacle was presented this afternoon and will be repeated tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday in the uniform of the Royal Welsh Guards of the sixteenth century.

The famous choir, eight times champion of Wales, arrived here yesterday en route to the St. Louis exposition. East Liverpool was placed on the American itinerary by the Arthur Spizzi agency, through which the Ceramic books its metropolitan features. The choir recently completed engagements in the large Keith theatres after a series of European triumphs.

Eight years has this choir carried off Eisteddfod honors in Wales. Their offerings extend from the martial "March of the Men of Harlech," to the rollicking "Jolly Roger" song of a gypsy number.

The choir will appear in connection with the presentation of the screen success, "Brown of Harvard," starring Jack Pickford, Mary Brian, Mary Alden, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and William Haines. Other picture features on the program are a Tuxedo comedy, "Honest Injun," with Johnny Arthur, and the first pictures of Gertrude Ederle conquering the English channel.

COAL WILL NOT GIVE UP TO OIL IS LABOR VIEW

Mine Federation Head Says Coal Will Come Back.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY

LONDON.—King Coal has many years of life before him and there is not the slightest chance of him abdicating in favor of King Oil, according to Frank Hodges, Secretary of the International Miners Federation, and one of England's most prominent labor leaders.

Pointing out that the world's reserves of coal are known to exceed those of oil, Hodges asserts that coal has only had a temporary set-back in its industrial development and will shortly regain its ascendancy over oil.

In this country and in most industrial countries," said Hodges in an interview, "coal-firing will always provide the bulk of energy developed until such times as the coal reserves are economically exhausted.

To Maintain Supremacy.

"The increasing use of the pulverized system of coal-firing limits the expansion of the use of oil for steam-raising, and coal will thus maintain its supremacy. The great advantage of the system is that low grade fuels become easily available for the production of power.

"Huge kuantities of these fuels, which are inseparably produced with better grade coals, and which represent a substantial item of the cost of production, will soon find a profitable market. Its increasing use will be an enormous economic help to the coal industry. I am not surprised, therefore, that it is being reported from the United States that oil-firing for steam-raising is being scrapped and pulverized coal-firing is being installed in its place.

"It is also well known that coal need not fear oil even on its own special territory, namely, for use in internal combustion engines and as a lubricant. There is no doubt whatever that what is known as the low temperature processes of carbonization of pre-treatment of coal for the recovery of its volatile constituents are now established as a commercial possibility. We now know that by these processes coal yields a large quantity of fuel-oil and motor spirit, as well as a smokeless semi-coke for power production and domestic fuel.

Pulverized Fuel.

"For power production, particularly in the capital stations fore-shadowed in the Government's scheme of reorganization there is no greater economic possibility than a combination of low-temperature carbonization and pulverized fuel-firing. Such a combination is now long past the experimental stage, and indeed a commercial plant having a capacity of 200 tons of coal per day is in operation in the United States at the Lakeside Station of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company as an adjunct of pulverized fuel-firing."

Woman Excavator Unearths Basket 12,000 Years Old

LONDON.—Basket work at least 12,000 years old, the first bread-wheat of prehistoric days ever found, and the earliest known sickle are among the treasures unearthed by Miss Caton-Thompson, a well-known archaeologist, while digging on the Fayum prehistoric settlements sixty miles south of Cairo, Sgypt.

These relics are now at the University College building here, where experts are attempting to unravel their history and if possible add to the world's knowledge of those far off days.

The basket work is chiefly remnants of granaries, revealed while removing sand, which took the form of pits lined with coiled straw or a species of reed, in some of which were wheat and barley grains stored there by prehistoric farmers.

Examination has proved the grains to be two kinds of cultivated wheat—enmer and bread. The former was known to be used in prehistoric times, but this appears to be the first record of bread-wheat in such early days.

FARMERS WAR ON POISON WEED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—War has been opened by Dr. F. A. Laird, state veterinarian, and the state department of agriculture on snakeroot weed, which this year is claiming its usual number of cattle as victims.

Death of eight cattle on one farm near here brought a warning to farmers from the state to destroy this weed whenever found.

A survey is being made in an attempt to stamp out the menace to the cattle.

Stockings must be hereditary. They seem to run in many families.—Zanesville Signal.

It may justifiably be said that the beautiful star really enters her own kingdom in the impersonation of the late Grand Duchess Tatiana of Imperial Russia and in describing her exceptionally brilliant dramatic work the reviewer finds himself more at loss for words that are broad enough to do her justice, than for words enough to fill this column. One might write pages about "Into Her Kingdom" were not some mechanical restriction a necessity. It's that kind of a picture and Miss Griffith was never more beautiful, never better cast and never better supported.

Elnar Hanson, a newcomer from Sweden, shares the spotlight with the star and judging by the way his smile and his sincere, youthful eyes registered with the feminine portion of the audience he'll be receiving loads of fan mail ere long. Hanson is an exceptional actor. Even with Miss Griffith's brilliance her picture would have suffered with any man less talented than Hanson, opposite her. Claude Gillingwater gives his usual good performance and Charles Crockett, Marcel Corday, Larry Fisher, Tom Murray, Evelyn Selbie and General Lodigenski as the Cossack leader, give their small but important parts careful attention. Both the American Theatre and Miss Griffith merit congratulations of an enthusiastic sort.

M'DONALD CLAN HOLD REUNION

Second annual reunion of the McDonald family was held Saturday at the Mill Creek Presbyterian church, near Hookstown, Pa. More than 100 persons attended the event.

The program consisted of athletic events, addresses and an elaborate basket dinner served on the lawn.

James Anderson, of East Liverpool, presided at the business session. The minutes of the gathering held at Georgetown last year were read by the secretary-treasurer of the organization, W. N. McDonald, of Youngstown, O.

Special music and interpretations were given by James Richie, piper major of the Kilties band of Youngstown, and Hugh Murray, also of Youngstown. Both were attired in kiltie costume.

Allen McDonald, of Chester, 83, eldest survivor of the direct descendants of the family emigrating to America, read an interesting paper which consisted of data of the events during the Scottish persecution which caused his ancestors to leave for the United States.

"Because my grandfather and your great-grandfather worshipped on this spot in the initial log church that antedated the succeeding two brick and subsequent frame structures now utilized it is particularly fitting that we assemble in reunion here," he said.

President Anderson in his remarks pointed out that no member of the family had died during the past year, but that three additions had taken place. Mrs. Joseph Gooley, 76, of Clinton, Pa., gave an exceedingly interesting talk in which she compared the customs of her early days with those of the present especially in the matter of women's dress.

Remarks were also made by Mrs. Frank Reed, of Mill Creek, Pa.; Mrs. Emma J. McDonald, of Chester; James A. McDonald, of Aspinwall, Pa.; James McDonald, of Mill Creek, Pa.; James McDonald, of East Liverpool, and T. T. Jones, of East Liverpool.

Letter of regret at her inability to be present from Mrs. Clara McDonald Swearingen, of Oscealo, Oregon, was read by Secretary McDonald. Mill Creek was chosen for the third annual reunion next year at a date to be later agreed upon.

James Anderson, of East Liverpool, and W. N. McDonald, of Youngstown, were elected to succeed themselves as president and secretary-treasurer.

Among those in attendance were: Allen McDonald, Miss Emma J. McDonald, Mrs. Daly Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. McDonald and daughters, Gaigle and Arline, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Walton, of Chester; Mr. and Mrs. W. N. McDonald and daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Sitler and grandson, Donald, James Richie and Hugh Murray of Youngstown; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cooley, of Clinton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cooley, of Franklin Springs, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Kennedy and son, Donald, of Coraopolis, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reed of Mill Creek, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Pollett and children, David, Peggy and Clewell, of Crafton, Pa.; Mary Henlin, of Florence, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Swearengen, of Mill Creek, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Roberts and son, of Beaver, Pa.; Mrs. T. K. Campbell, Beaver, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cowden and children, Elsie and Robert, of Hickory, Pa.; J. A. McDonald and daughter, Mrs. Helen E. Heen and granddaughter, Miss Helen E. EDNA HOPPER GROWS YOUNGER

Famous Actress Scientifically is 16 Years Old.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Edna Walace Hopper is ten years younger than she was last year. The American actress, known as the "Eternal Flapper" has just been examined at Vichy in France by Dr. Jaworski, discoverer of the "blood marriage" process of rejuvenation for old age, and pronounced scientifically sixteen years old. The French savants in 1925 declared Miss Hopper then had the appearance and physical functions of twenty-six.

"I am sixteen at sixty," Miss Hopper writes in a letter to Otis E. Glidden of Chicago. "I have lost ten years. What has become of them? Has anybody found ten years anywhere recently? Jaworski made his analysis in collaboration with the official physicians at Vichy where I am taking the waters. These men of science were amazed at my synthetic youth. I had proved for them, they declared, that youth is no longer a matter of years but of conservation of vital powers. They were convinced, they said, that science will yet discover the secret of eternal youth.

"Jaworski's 'blood-marriage' that has given him world fame consists of transfusing the microscopically pure blood of the young into the veins of old age. In many authentic cases, he has restored youth as by a miracle. But I have submitted to no treatments and when he asked me for my own formula that has kept me young young, I answered in two words, 'Correct living.' That means a correct balance of diet, exercise, work, recreation and sleep.

"Modern girls with their cocktails and cigarets and midnight indulgences will pay a heavy price for their pleasures by growing old at twenty-five. I am singularly fortunate to be old-fashioned. By correct living I am today youthful in spirit as well as body. I am as gay and light-hearted as in the happy days when I was only sixteen by the count of the years."

M'DONALD CLAN HOLD REUNION

Second annual reunion of the McDonald family was held Saturday at the Mill Creek Presbyterian church, near Hookstown, Pa. More than 100 persons attended the event.

The program consisted of athletic events, addresses and an elaborate basket dinner served on the lawn.

James Anderson, of East Liverpool, presided at the business session. The minutes of the gathering held at Georgetown last year were read by the secretary-treasurer of the organization, W. N. McDonald, of Youngstown, O.

Special music and interpretations were given by James Richie, piper major of the Kilties band of Youngstown, and Hugh Murray, also of Youngstown. Both were attired in kiltie costume.

Allen McDonald, of Chester, 83, eldest survivor of the direct descendants of the family emigrating to America, read an interesting paper which consisted of data of the events during the Scottish persecution which caused his ancestors to leave for the United States.

"Because my grandfather and your great-grandfather worshipped on this spot in the initial log church that antedated the succeeding two brick and subsequent frame structures now utilized it is particularly fitting that we assemble in reunion here," he said.

President Anderson in his remarks pointed out that no member of the family had died during the past year, but that three additions had taken place. Mrs. Joseph Gooley, 76, of Clinton, Pa., gave an exceedingly interesting talk in which she compared the customs of her early days with those of the present especially in the matter of women's dress.

Remarks were also made by Mrs. Frank Reed, of Mill Creek, Pa.; Mrs. Emma J. McDonald, of Chester; James A. McDonald, of Aspinwall, Pa.; James McDonald, of Mill Creek, Pa.; James McDonald, of East Liverpool, and T. T. Jones, of East Liverpool.

Letter of regret at her inability to be present from Mrs. Clara McDonald Swearingen, of Oscealo, Oregon, was read by Secretary McDonald. Mill Creek was chosen for the third annual reunion next year at a date to be later agreed upon.

James Anderson, of East Liverpool, and W. N. McDonald, of Youngstown, were elected to succeed themselves as president and secretary-treasurer.

Among those in attendance were: Allen McDonald, Miss Emma J. McDonald, Mrs. Daly Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. McDonald and daughters, Gaigle and Arline, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Walton, of Chester; Mr. and Mrs. W. N. McDonald and daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Sitler and grandson, Donald, James Richie and Hugh Murray of Youngstown; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cooley, of Clinton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cooley, of Franklin Springs, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Kennedy and son, Donald, of Coraopolis, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reed of Mill Creek, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. C. E.
